John Berry, one of Dayton's oldest and most respected pioneers, died very suddenly Wednesday night at 10:45, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ora B. Weatherford, Commercial street, aged 75 years and 6 months The cause of death was due to apoplexy. The deceased had been feeling unusually well the past few days and Wednesday evening ate a hearty supper, and shortly after retired. About 10:30 o'clock he called his daughter, Mrs. Weatherford, and complained of being very ill, and Dr. E. H. Van Patten was summoned, but before he could arrive the old gentleman had passed over the great divide.

Mr. Berry was born in Illinois and at an early age moved to Lansing, Iowa, where he resided until 1862, at which time he crossed the plains and settled at Salem, Oregon, where he engaged in the mercantile business. He came to Walla Walla in 1875 and entered the employ of the Holley Dodd Implement Company. In 1880 he came to Dayton and with several other citizens organized the First National bank, of which he was president and cashier for a number of years. After severing his connection with the banking business, Mr. Berry entered the employ of Schwabacher & Broughton as bookkeeper, which position he held until about seven years ago, when he retired from active business life and made this city and Walla Walla his home until his demise.

The deceased leaves two daughters, Mrs. Ora B. Weatherford of Dayton, and Mrs. Georgia Frary, of Walla Walla, and one son, James W. Berry, of Twin Falls, Idaho, and a host of friends to survive and mourn his loss.

BATTLE OF PRAIRIE GROVE

Celebrated at Hotel Dayton by the Blue and the Gray.

LOYAL TOASTS ON BOTH SIDES

Dinner Given in Honor of Rev. P. W. Bishop, Chaplain of the Thirty-Seventh Illinois Volunteers.

Last Saturday, Dec. 7th, was the thirty-ninth anniversary of the battle of Prairie Grove, Arkansas. It is claimed by those who know, that that battle was the pivot on which the final result of the war turned. The confederate forces up to that time had been masters of the situation west of the Mississippi river, but after the battle of Prairie Grove, which was decided in favor of the union forces, the union army met with success after success until the entire west was under the control of that army.

In this city there are a few of the veterans who participated in the battle of Prairie Grove, among whom are W. T. Dickinson and Chaplain P. W. Bishop. At that time W. T. Dickinson was a member of Co. B. Thirty-seventh Illinois and Chaplain Bishop was first sergeant in Co. D Ninety-fourth Illinois.

On Saturday last W. T. Dickinson gave a dinner at Hotel Dayton in honor of Chaplain Bishop, who has been in the city several weeks visiting relatives. The dinner was given on the seventh in commemoration of the battle. In order to continue the good feeling now existing between those who wore the blue and those who wore the gray, a number of confederates were invited to the banquet, and from the friendly remarks and loyal toasts which went round the board, it was evident that the good feeling was genuine on both sides.

Those who were present were: J. F. Martin, of the 73rd Ohio Volunteer Infantry, enlisted at Chilicothe, Ohio; M. R. Hanger, 5th Va. Infantry, of Lexington; B. F. Franklin, First Tenn. Reg., Fayetteville, Tenn.; W. T. Dickinson, Co. B, 37th Reg. Illinos Vol.; W. H. Gillis. Co. A, 4th Infantry, Arkansas; Z. T. Stahl, Co. I, 15th Iowa Vol., of Burlington; J. M. Proctor, Co. I, 6th Va., cavalry; Chaplain P. W. Bishop, 37th Ill. Vol.; James Royce, 7th Mo. infantry.

When the invited guests had assembled at the festive board, Mr. Dickinson appointed Chaplain Bishop master of ceremonies. The chaplain offered a short blessing and announced that the program would be concluded after the repast. The dinner was served in the elegant manner in which the hostess of Hotel Dayton has become famous, and for which the entire party wish to express their sincere gratitude and satisfaction.

After the cloth had been cleared away the veterans responded to toasts as they were called upon.

Capt M. R. Hanger responded to "The Confederate," having participated on that side. Mr. Hanger's remarks were most appropriate, expressing the sentiments of the southern people at the the breaking out of the war, the feelings of the confederate soldiers at that period and the environments, which in most instances mold a man's character and cause him to act according to sentiment more than upon sober thought. He did not doubt, that had the union veterans gathered around him, lived in the south where he did, and under the same circumstances and environments, they would have been in the confederate ranks and would have contended for what they thought was right with as much vigor and patriotism as they had displayed on the other field of battle. Mr. Hanger said that the confederate went to war with the purest of motives, and when he submitted to defeat, he returned to the civil walks of life to become a loyal and patriotic citizen.

W. T. Dickinson responded to "The Union Veteran" as follows: He said that he could not promise to confine his remarks entirely to the union veteran, but after eulogizing the union veteran and congratulating him upon his good citizenship, he turned to the confederate veteran and in part said: "Us men, who met him face to face in battle, received and returned his fire, know he was a good soldier. His bravery in battle during the war, his accepting the situation at the close of the war, his loyalty to the government since the war, entitle him to the confidence and respect of all men, especially the union veteran. Turning to both union and confederate veterans he said, some one in trying to balance the books discovered that the cost of the war was paid, one half in the blood of men, and one half in women's tears. Comrades, side by side, around this board, are men who went down on this side and on that side, in the same battle. Here are men who 39 years ago this minute, stood face to face in the firing line at Prairie Grove, Arkansas, in both union and confederate armies. Comrades, both union and confederate, I say unto you, well done. In war you have acquitted yourselves honorably, in peace by your exemplary deportment you have demonstrated to the world that soldiers make good citizens, and today you remain loyal to your government and loyal to the women who shed the tears.

Judge J. F. Martin then responded to "The Southerner" as follows: Here's to the Southerner. On going to his home, you will meet with the most generous hospitality. He stands upon his word and his honor. He is a warm and true friend, to a friend, but when pressed by his foe he has been known to be a hot number. I bear witness to the latter, having been branded by him at the second Bull Run, Va., interview in 1862.

In closing the remarks upon the occasion Chaplain Bishop said: Comrades, in trying to perform our part on this occasion, we will begin our remarks by calling your attention to that glorious message that was delivered to the shepards who were watching their flocks by night, some nineteen hundred years ago, "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Again we call your attention to that rich bequest made by the divine Master to His disciples, when He said, "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Coming now to the event that we are here memorial zing today, that is, the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark., Dec 7th, 1862. That was the first time that we ever heard the muttering thunder of the cannon, and we still feel and we still seem to realize that the same inspirations and the same hopes of that hour, are still alive and burning upon the sacred altar of our hearts; that it was the voice of our God or the "fourth beast," calling, calling, calling, upon a then divided people, to reunite; to lay aside their arms of warfare and to clasp hands over the gulf that had divided them, and thus have peace restored to our borders; and standing thus reunited, feel ready if needs be, to take the former munitions of war, and standing side by side, use them to bring peace to all the nations of the earth May these sentiments here voiced by each and every one of us, be reverberated to the uttermost parts of the earth, until all the nations of the same shall unite in calling upon the God of the universe to give to His creature, man, a realizing sense of the promise made in these words, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kindoms of our Lord, and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11:15. In closing our remarks to you, my brothers, allow us to call your attention to the toats given by the three American citizens who happened to meet in London, Paris, or some of the European cities, during the first part of the civil war They were discussing the then transpiring events, and were all in sympathy with the government and were in hopes that she would succeed, and in the grandeur of her majesty move on in that grand galaxy of the nations until the arrival of that period before mentioned, "When the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord," etc Finally one of them proposed to give her a toast, to which they all agreed. The first began "Here's to the government of the United States of America, bounded on the north by British America, on the south by the Gulf of Mexico, on the east by the Atlantic and on the west by the Pacific ocean" Now, that took in all the territory, but the second one was not satisfied by any means; (we presume they were all Scotch-Irish like myself,) and when he came to the front he called out: "Pat, why did ye not give her bounds? Why did ye not give her bounds? Here's to the government of the United States of America, bounded on the north by the north pole, on the south by the south pole, on the east by the rising and on the west by the setting of the sun." Now that, it would seem, ought to have satisfied any man or set of men, but the third one seems to have had a soul larger than all the earth.

When he came forward he said: "Gintlemen, if we are going to do justice to the subject under consideration, why should we confine ourselves to the narrow limits which ye have prescribed. Here's to the government of the United States of America, bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, on the east by primevial chaos, and on the west by the day of judgment."

The company then repaired to the hotel office where an hour was spent in story telling of the most interesting character. During this hour it was learned that after the war W. H. Gillis and Capt M. R. Hanger owned a flour and saw mill, and conducted a store on the old battle field of Prairie Grove. They often bought lead from boys who gathered the minnie balls from the battle field One of the union veterans present claimed a rebate on the lead, saying that about 50 rounds was his due, but Capt. Hanger sp iled the deal by saying that one day, while running a large log through the saw mill, the saw came in contact with a piece of shell imbedded under the bark. The result was that the saw went out through the roof of the mill, wrocking everything in its path. So he guessed they would have to call it square all around, or he would claim damages for the saw.

The Chronicle reporter endeavored to find out whether any of the veterans present remembered having taken garden sass from him and burning the rails from around his garden during the war. No one plead guilty, but Capt. Hanger said the only reason he did not commit the depredations was simply from the lack of an opportunity to do so.

The Battle of Prairie Grove.

Since the celebratio n of the battle of Prairie Grove by the veterans in Dayton the CHRONICLE has endeavored to find a full description of the event, but so far has only been able to get a meager report which is to be found in Ellis' History of the United States. It will be noticed by the brief account which follows, that the 37th Illionois regiment, to which Mr. W. F. Dickinson belonged, is conspicuously mentioned, but the 94th to which Chaplain Bishop belonged is not mentioned at all. Here is the account:

The uni n forces under General Blunt and Herron in northwestern Arkansas were opposed by General Hindman, who, with about thirteen thousand men, inteposed himself between two smaller divisions of the union army, under the respective officers named. While trying by forced marches to unite with General Blunt, Herron's detachment of four thousand men was confronted at Illinois creek, near Prairie Grove, by the entire confederate force, strongly intrenched in woods which hid their strength. Herron attacked with great spirit, driving the cavalry of the enemy across the creek, where he found their artillery and infantry strongly posted on a wooded ridge. A union light battery, which was sent across, was driven back. General Herron then sent another battery over at a different point, and followed it with three other batteries and regiments, which in the course of an hour silenced the confederate guns. The unionists then advanced across an open field, until within a hundred yards of the ridge, when the Twentieth Wisconsin and the Nineteeth Iowa charged and captured a battery, but, unable to hold it, fell back. The confederates now charged the three union batteries but were repulsed with severe loss. The Twenty-sixth Indiana and the Thirty-seventh Illinois, by a brilliant dash, captured the battery but it was retaken by the confederates. Just then the sound of General Blunt's guns was heard, announcing that his division, which had been making forced marches to the relief of General Herron, was at hand. Before the united attack of the two union divisions the confederates were obliged to retreat to Van Buren, after which the fighting in that section became aimless and indecisive.

P. C. Bishop, 85, Buried Monday

Philander C. Bishop, pioneer resident and carpenter of the Dayton community, died at his home in Irrigon, Oregon, Saturday, and the funeral was held from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Monday afternoon. He had lived at Irrigon since it was a new settlement. He was 85 years and 10 months of age.

Be was born in Clarksville, Butler county, Iowa, a village named in honor of his mother's people. He lived in Iowa through his boyhood and early manhood, and in 1880 came west to Dayton, Washington, by way of Columbia river steamboat and the narrow-guage railway. In Dayton he joined his uncle, Dr. Jeremiah Clark, who was practicing medicine here.

In 1882 Mr. Bishop and Robert Hawks ran for justice of the peace in what is now Huntsville. The election resulted in a tie and the two young men decided that the justice should be chosen by lot. Mr. Hawks drew the winning straw and laughingly said to Mr. Bishop that he would marry him free of charge, not knowing that he was engaged at the time. Several days later, to his surprise, his friend presented himself and Miss Harriett Rose Walker, daughter of Judge Walker, early pioneer of Walla Walla county to Mr. Hawks to be married. To this union were born four daughters, Vera, Alma, Lena and Helen. Three of the daughters died before reaching their twenties.

Mr. Bishop was a carpenter and pioneer builder in the town of Dayton. Among the buildings on which he worked that are in service today are the courthouse, the hotel and the Christian church. He was a charter member of the church which he helped build. Before Mr. and Mrs. Bishop made their permanent home in Irrigon, they resided in the cities of Ellensburg, Spokane and Seattle, and he worked on one of the buildings of the University of Washington in Seattle. At Irrigon he continued to work at the carpenter trade until his last years, purchasing a small acreage there and making it his home until his death.

Mr. Bishop was a kindly man and self educated through extensive reading and deep thinking so that he was very well informed and many enjoyed partaking of his philosophy and wit. He was a devoted and noted Bible student.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Alma Greaves, of Irrigon, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Norma Cross, of Wenatchee. He was the last living among five brothers who came to Dayton in the seventies and eighties to engage in farming or carpentry work.

Home From the Mines.

Walker Bishop arrived Monday from Idaho where he has been working in a mine all summer with his brother Archie Bishop. Walker came out on snowshoes, his brother accompanying him for a distance of 35 miles. The snow is eight feet deep. Fortunately a man on skiis was a few hours ahead of them, who broke the trail, making traveling much easier. It took Bishop eight days to make the trip, traveling on snowshoes, by stage and rail. He has a full fiery beard which he says is a fine radiator to possess in the cold, Idaho mountains.

At the mine this summer the boys have been employed in putting in a stamp mill. It was so late and cold by the time the mill was completed that they could not run. Their ore tramway from the mine to the mill filled up with snow every night, so they concluded to shut down until spring. The water was so cold also that they could not save the gold, the amalgam rolling up and passing out of the sluice boxes.

Walker is going to have his picture taken and present it to Cayuse Johnson.

FIFTY-ONE YEARS AGO.

P. W. Bishop Hauled Lumber Thirty Miles to Build House in LeRoy.

Rev. P. W. Bishop has sent us several articles which he desires published in the CHRONICLE. Last week we published an article from his pen in regard to the Battle of Prairie Grove. The following article is concerning the early history of Mr. Bishop, published in the Leroy, (Ill.) Eagle. Another week we shall publish an article in regard to the Cumberland Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Bishop is a minister.

The above picture was taken from a photograph of Mr. P. W. Bishop, who lived in this city and erected a house here 51 years ago. There are three and one quarter acres of land at the south edge of this city upon which he erected his house, the lumber for which he hauled thirty miles. This property of late years has been known as the Buck property.

When Mr. Bishop left here many years ago he sold his property to a gentleman by the name of Paton, who was at that time professor of the LeRoy public schools.

On returning to this city a few days ago, Mr. Bishop went to see the old place, and in talking to an Eagle reporter, said that the same house and the same well which he erected in that early day are still there. Mr. Bishop gives us a history of the building of the house which we give in his own words.

"It might be of interest to some of the numerous readers of the Eagle to have a story of a house that was built in your own city fifty-one years ago last March. The frame of the house was made of timber which grew in Money Creek township, 18 or 20 miles north of LeRoy. The trees were cut down and logs sawed off and hauled still further north eight miles to Lexington, at which town there was a steam saw mill. The logs were made into lumber suitable for the frame of the house and was then hauled to LeRoy on sleds, the same way the logs were hauled to Lexington. To obtain the siding, finishing, finishing lumber, lath, doors and windows large hard maple or sugar trees were cut and hauled to Lexington, as the former trees had been. These trees were sawed into 4x4 inch posts which were then hauled to Bloomington to be made into fancy bedsteads, as they were called in that day and age. The cash obtained from the sale of these posts was invested in pine lumber, as above mentioned, to be used as siding and finishing lumber, etc. The I. C. railroad having been completed at that time pine lumber was being delivered in the city of Bloomington in small quantities, but of very superior quality.

We had paid $200 for the three and one-quarter acres of land upon which to erect the house, and Uncle Neddie Greegs, of much noteriety in that day, built the house. Our object being to obtain two years more schooling in the seminary then being conducted by C. P. church.

We will close our remarks for this time by stating that this work was all done in the winter of 1854-5. We have made this brief statement of our labors and efforts performed in the period mentioned so that the young men of today may be able to compare their advantages, their surroundings and environments, with those of the young men of the middle part of the past century. We close now with this brief statement, that we feel free to say that it was the determined energy of the young men of that early day that has lifted up and is holding up to the eye all the world the beauties, the glories and the grandeurs of that flash of lightning that went out of the mouth of Patrick Henry on the Fourth day of July, 1776, in these words:

"Give me liberty or give me death."

In closing we wish to offer the cl ing remarks of a speech we made more than 50 years ago: "Effort insures success, if so, bright and glorious results are sure to be consumated." For the continuation and perpetuity of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, we wish, under the surroundings and environment of to-day, to offer the above declaration.
