All We Know About Katie

There is a lengthy story written by Melissa Clawson Stroud that tells much of the story of the Clawson family. Martha Clawson was Katie's mother and a sister to Melissa Stroud.

Katie's father was James Brown. We know little about him except family stories that he was a school teacher. At the time of his death he was out of work and seeking a job. He learned of an opening at a school over the mountain from his house. He decided to go and try to get the position. He set out on foot against the warnings of family and friends. They tried to tell him there was danger of avalanches. He was never heard from again and the next spring they found what was believed to be his remains on the mountain pass.

Katie's mother remarried at an unknown date. Her new husband was John Carter. Katie, three of her siblings and her mother all became very ill in the coming years. Her brother's worked in freighting for their uncles, David and Milt Clawson. Lewis was the first to die in 1887. Their sister, Birdina "Birdie" married and died young, at age 24, perhaps in child bearing. Then in 1891 both Henry and Martha died.

Did some mysterious illness haunt this family? Martha's father died of a grave illness himself and perhaps it ran in the veins of his children. Melissa's story tells of the illness of her father, which was his reason for leaving Davis county, Iowa and coming west to Oregon in 1854. The change of climate helped him for awhile, but he eventually succumbed.

Subject: Re: Dorothy's ancestor, Margaret Elizabeth Hushaw Clawson

Margaret "Elizabeth" Clawson is buried at Dayton. She came west in 1852 from Davis County, Iowa with her husband, Eprhaim Clawson, their children and two hired men. One was Ephraim's nephew, John Buckles. I think John is also buried at Dayton.

The Clawson family went to Sauvies Island on the Columbia River where they wintered. In 1853 they went to Astoria and by 1854 they were living at Dallas, Oregon. Eprhaim died that year from his illness. He had it when he left Iowa and hoped the climate would cure it. It did not.

Elizabeth went on as best she could and did. She was a most remarkable woman of her time and her story is one of courage and determination. The narrative of Melissa Stroud tells it all.

In 1870 (or about) Elizabeth sold her farm and paid for the move to Dayton where her children were already involved in the community for a number of years. When she was in her late 70's she order her children to tie her rocking chair in the family wagon and she went on a cross country adventure with them. The trip took them from Dayton to the area around Wilbur, Washington and the Columbia River. And Elizabeth saw every inch of it from her rocking chair. (I think that would have made me seasick)

Elizabeth died in 1886 and is buried in the Pioneer cemetery at Dayton. Her son, David Clawson, is buried at Starbuck. Her daughter Sophia Elwell is buried at Pioneer cemetery. Catherine is buried at Mountain View cemetery. Martha is buried at Dayton. Milton????, Melissa is buried at Pioneer cemetery.

Commonly known to friends and family as Melissa. In about 1927, she sat with a writer and gave a detailed account of the 1852 Pierce wagon train her family was on; told of life in Oregon, life at Walla Walla, a few details of the 1862 gold mines, Rogue River war, and much more. Melissa's husband, Will, was seriously injured in a mining accident which would affect their entire lives
