Local Man Killed On Railroad Job

Dillwyn Eroal Newby of this city, 45, who had been employed the last several months as track-walker for the Union Pacific railway at Simmons siding near Shefler on the Snake river, was instantly killed at about midnight last Thursday.

Mrs. Newby and their daughter, Eula Lee, were staying with him at his headquarters and had been walking with him along the right of way a short time before his death. They returned to the house to prepare his midnight supper, and then lay down to rest before his arrival which was expected within a half hour or so.

They dropped off to sleep and awakened around 2 a. m. to find that Mr. Newby had not come in, and they immediately felt alarmed. As soon as dawn began to break they set out down the track and were horrified to find his mutilated lifeless body about a mile west of the siding. They covered his body with a quilt, and as a train passed they cowered beside it fearing that the suction would draw him or them under the wheels.

Help was summoned as quickly as possible, and Harley W. Allen, county prosecuting attorney and coroner of Walla Walla, and Sheriff Archie Schick left early for the scene of the accident and returned to Walla Walla at about noon. They said the tragedy was plainly accidental, and had probably occurred because the right of way in that section is very rocky, and that footing near the track is very difficult to hold. Apparently Mr. Newby lost his balance just as an oncoming train passed, and was thrown in front of the engine or beneath the wheels of the cars. He was very strong and capable, and the fact that he met death in the manner he did seems almost beyond belief. He was a woodsman of the highest skill, had received his training under rugged conditions, and had, until the moment of his tragic death, been always equal to any emergency.

Born in Dayton October 10, 1897, he spent most of his life here. Before taking this position with the railroad company, he had most recently been employed by the Blue Mountain Canneries, Inc. He was a member of the Dayton Christian church.

Survivors include his wife, Esther Gemmell Newby and a daughter, Eula Lee Newby, Dayton; two sons, Duke R. Newby and Glenwood E. Newby, both of Portland; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Newby, and two brothers, Darrel and Heber Newby of Dayton; and three sisters, Mrs. C. M. Brady of Oakridge, Oregon, Mrs. Cecelia O'Brien, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Nina Nulph of Potlatch, Idaho.

Sgt. Marvin Newby in Japan

Sgt. Marvin (Sonny) Newby writes his parents that he has been in Japan for some time, but is not yet seeing much of the country because passes are so hard to get that they practically are not to be had.

His outfit is attached to the Fifth Air Force and is stationed at a place that must have been a Japanese training center at one time. The surrounding country reminds him of that near Oregon City, but he does not say that he likes it as well. He does not know whether he is in for a long stretch of duty in his present location, but if he is, he will have plenty of company, as thousands are going out to Japan as many more thousands come in.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE NEWKIRK-ALLEN FAMILY
By Coleman S. Newkirk -- 1940

Julia*

Introduction:

In an attempt to comply with a request from some of the members of our family, I have written what I can of our family history from family tradition, memory, and from personal experience. I have approached the matter with much hesitation, feeling incapable to treat the subject as it should be treated, but with sister Mamie, an ex-"schoolmam", to act as editor to correct my syntax--which is sinful--my punctuation, something I use only when I think of it--my spelling, this I do by ear--and my hearing, which is very defective; and with my dear niece, Vera (Newkirk) Nelson supplying from a record she has compiled dates of births and deaths, and another darling niece, Gladys Harman, to assist in arranging the composition, she another "school mam"; with others helping with suggestions, I feel that if I flunk the job, these others will be fully competent to carry on. My loving niece, Mae-Opperman_Hayden, asked me for the story of our trip as "Covered Wagon" immigrants with ox teams from Mexico City, Missouri into California in 1862. Sister Lizzie has asked for the story of our trip from California to Washington Territory, in 1880. I, the writer, will volunteer what information there is available from tradition of the Newkirks from the beginning of the name in Scotland, also I shall try to fill in some of the movements and experiences of the two families between their arrival in California to the departure of the Newkirks in 1880 for Washington Territory. I will begin with the Newkirks in Scotland--exact date not know, and with the Allens in North Carolina at the beginning of the 19th century.

The Newkirk family tradition does not tell us what their family name was before the great split came in the established church, our people, with many others, ceded from the mother church and became known as the new church, or in the Scotch, "New-Kirk". Our family, in their zeal to express their fealty and support of the ceding branch, dropped their original family name and renamed themselves, "Newkirk", thus telling the "Old Kirk" they could go "jump into the lake". Through love of freedom and religious liberty, and from the persecution to which they were subjected by church and state, they became wanderers on the face of the earth, instilling into their beings the migratory spirit. This explains the causes that impelled us to shift from place to place. In our rolling from place to place, we have "gathered byt little moss", but what wonderful rolling we have done!

W

While sojourning in Holland, these refugees, (Newkirks and others from Scotland) heard of the Pilgrim Fathers who had fled from England and settled on the New England coast in search of religious liberty, and the right to worship according to the dictates of their own consciences. So they chartered a ship and came to America. But when they arrived, they found that no one was permitted to worship except in the way the Puritans dictated. They found the Puritans burning witches, persecuting Quakers, banishing Baptists and fining, imprisoning, and pronouncing ghe death penalty on all who neglected to attend church on Sunday, the Puritan church, of course. This did not suit the Newkirks.

Some of the family fought in the Revolutionary War. Later, across the Appalachian Mountains they wandered. They settled in the wilderness to the South and West of the mountains where Tennessee, Indiana, and Kentucky come together. They found many people whose religious and political views were much like their own.

The most democratic of all the various religious sects who believe as strongly in liberty for others as for themselves, were the "Old School Baptists" or "Hardshell Baptists". Here they settled down to enjoy the first real liberty they had ever known. They joined that church and remained supporters of the same, for generations. Our direct line finally drifted from Indiana to Mexico City, Missouri, where they remained until the beginning of the Civil War.

Grandfather Barnett Newkirk was born in Indiana. I don't know where Grandmother Newkirk was born. Her relatives, the Dawsons, were of the same people who were driven out of Scotland. From Indiana, Grandfather Newkirk came to Missouri, bought land and settled at Mexico City, Missouri. The town was built partly on his land. He served as a judge for years in Mexico City, Missouri. There were seven boys and one girl in his family. Elder I. N. Newkirk, our father, was one of these boys. The others were Joe, Ben, and Lâfe. Grandmother and these boys died and were buried in Mexico City. Silas, a sergeant in the army, dropped out of sight. No one knows what became of him. Dick went to Lompoc, Shelton to Stockton, and Kit went to Woodland, California.

The I.N. Newkirk branch of the tribe remained in various localities of California for a time. Grandfather and Grandmother Barnett Newkirk, together with their son, Dick, his wife and two sons and three daughters, (probably Shelton), Catherine and her son, John B. and daughter, Mary)Molly) by her first husband, John Allen the second, Ob Green, her second husband, and their two boys and one girl, some of the other Greens and Boleses and others, separated from us here and settled on the Sacramento River above Sacramento City. Dick's family went west into Sanoma County.

We visited Grandfather and Grandmother Newkirk, Uncle Ob and Aunt Kit, at their homes on the banks of the Sacramento in 1868 and again in 1869. At this later date we, with Grandfather Newkirk, went on to Uncle Dick's at Hieldsburg, Sanoma County, where at Green Valley School house, father was ordained "Elder" and mother was baptised into the "Hardshell Church". Julia had six weeks of typhoid and lost all of her hair. Then we went back to Millville.

I cannot trace Grandfather Allen's family farther back than to himself in North Carolina. He was very small and sickly. Grandmother still had a suit of his clothes when I was about eleven. I put on the coat, and it was too small for me at that time.

Some one has asked if our Grandfather Allen was a minister. I have never heard so, though the following sotry was told by Uncle Will Allen which may have some significance. Will and another boy had been trying to climb a tree one Sunday. Will slipped and fell and said "dam". Grandfather happened to be in hearing. He told Will he was going to thrash him, but it was Sunday, and so he would wait until next day. So on Monday he cut a "hickory" and gave him a "devil" of a beating. Thus I suppose if he was not a preacher, he was not far from it. He was a very strict Methodist Sabbath observer. He would not allow his boys to play marbles on Sunday.

In the Grandfather Allen family there were seven boys and two girls. Grandison and John were twins. Grandison married cousin Harriet Williams. He died and was buried at Millville. John, the second, married Catherine Newkirk and was buried in Mexico City. William married Katherine Boice, Julia Gilgore, and later Celie Hearst. He was buried at Upper Lake. Green married his second cousin, Hulda Martin and was buried at Petaloma. Betty, our mother, married I.N. Newkirk, and was buried in Dayton, Wash. Mary married Henry Hoover and was buried in North Carolina, I think. Grandfather Allen was buried in North Carolina. Grandmother Allen was buried in Upper Lake. The family went back to North Carolina where mother was born, and where Grandfather Allen, and I think, Aunt Mary died. Aunt Mary married a big Hollander by the name of Henry Hoover.

Aunt Mary was very small. Her clothes were too small for mother at nine years of age. Grandmother Allen then came back to Missouri and bought land near the Newkirk's. An Allen boy and an Allen girl married a Newkirk girl and a Newkirk Boy. Grandmother Pauline (Williams) Allen traced one branch of her family back to the "French Huguenots". The Williams were probably English. The three families intermarried, (no inbreeding, except Grand and Mx Harriet who were first cousins) and increased, becoming quite a large community in and around Mexico City, Missouri.

Missouri, being the middle ground between the two warring forces, was raided and devastated by detachments of the armies of both sides. They were in constant dread of being drafted into service by both sides. Their sympathies were with the South, but yet they did not believe in slavery. Tus, not wanting to support either dside, they began to talk of the "Golden West" as a place of peace and security.

A company of Union soldiers found a gun hidden in Grandmother Allen's pasture. They put this and that together and arrested Uncle Bill and tried him in a "drum-head court" for having concealed weapons, but failed to find any evidence that it was Will's gun. Thus they gave him a big scare and threats and turned him loose. Later, a detachment of Union hired German soldiers had a battle with the Confederates. They, the German soldiers, were badly whipped. They they came downt o Mexico City, mad. Some were said to be drunk. While they were on the streets, a young farmer/s team became frightened and started to run away. The soldiers ordered him to halt. He could not stop a the team at once so the soldiers fired a volley into him and his wagon. He fell out, mortally wounded. A guard was placed around him and they would let no one near him. His young wife came and tried to get him. She was held back and forced to watch her husband die without aid. This act of violence and brutality was the final determining factor in our move "West". Thirty of our relatives, with a large number of others pulled out with a long train of twenty-one covered wagons which were drawn by oxen. We were headed for California. It was a long six months of trials and hardships. Men walked with whip and goad, were dusty, weary and footsore, often thirsty and hungry. Women, sick and discouraged, rode in the wagons or trugged on foot beside the wagons. Babies were born and babies died and were buried by the wayside. Some were buried in the road ahead of the wagon. Then the wagons were driven over the graves to destroy any marks of the grave. This was to keep unfriendly Indians from digging up the bodies to get the clothing, etc. A brother, Stirling Price, who was born April 16, 1862 in Missouri, was buried in the road while on this trip across the plains, September 22, 1862. The fortunate part of the entire journey westward was that no Indians were actually met. (If you have read "The Covered Wagon", you can get a better idea of the struggles they endured.) We organized at Independence, Missouri, got our supplies, elected Uncle Will Allen captain and guide. Then on we went through Kansas, making a difficult crossing of the Platte in western Nebraska, touching at Cheyenne and Laramie. We halted for a rest at Salt Lake City, Utah. Here the men took a swim in the lake. Father got into a big row with the Mormans. He did not like their religion, morals, social or domestic relations and told them so in no uncertain terms. You can imagine in what manner he did it. So the train decided they were rested enoughto drive on. They had heard the reports of what the "saints" had done to other immigrants. We crossed the Humbolt desert in Nevada. Along about here Aunt Catherine, Uncle Will's wife got a message from the "stork" that she was expected to pull to the side and wait for further ~~notize~~ orders. So we all pulled in to Honey Lake and waited until her stork flew in with Jim Allen and dropped him into Aunt Kit'sk lap. This was after we had crossed Carson Sink, north of Carson Lake and over the Nevada-California line in Califofnia. It was here that the train partly broke up, some taking the southern route while we, the Allen's, I.N. Newkirks, Williams, etc., pushed on through into Shasta County where we all remained for several years.

A sister, Mary, was born on "Cow Creek", a few miles from Millville during the summer of 1864. She lives but a short time and was buried there on the ranch. Mother lay for many weeks between life and death. She had "child-bed fever". Father sent for a doctor who was drunk when he came. He bled mother. He must have drawn the most of her blood. I remember they held the washpan and it seems that the pan was almost full. When our regular doctor hear of it, he came down and was mad enough to murder the drunken "sot." He said mother needed more blood then she had before the bleeding. It was Grandma Allen who named the child "Mary" She was very partial to "John" and "Mary" as names. When the last girl arrived Grandma Allen still thought there should be a "Mary" and thus Mary Augusta Newkirk (Harman) was christened.

One member of the family has asked why father ever took his family from Shasta County in California. This question requires some explanation. When Father asked for sixteen-year-old Betty's hand, Grandmother made him promise that he would never take Betty far away from her. He promised and that was a grave mistake, for when they reached Shasta, Father's mother-in-law settled down on a forty acre farm of gravel and hills that never produced anything but a little home garden truck. There was nothing father could get to do but a day's hard labor now and then at usually only one dollar per day. But he kept his promise for about twelve years, except for eighteen months that we spent in Sanoma County, near Santa Rosa where Mary Augusta (Harman) was born, on June 7, 1872. There were some "Hardshells" in Sanoma County and father was anxious to preach. This gave him a hearing. Later, we returned to Shasta, moving around from place to place until the spring of 1874. In this year, November 20th Isacc Newton, Junior, was born. Grandfather Newkirk died in Red Bluffs and left father his wagon, team, and harness, and a share in his Mirrouri farm that sold for the sum of $300. This set father to thinking of how and where to invest the $300.00. We hitched up, loaded our few possessions, and drove down into Butte County. Father got a job in harvest. When that job ran out, we drove over to Bear Valley, Western Colousa County. Here he got another job. When this ended, we were so near Lake County that we just natural had to drive over to Upper Lake. We liked it so well there that when a fellow offered to sell father a forty acre claim, he had on Scott's Creek, father closed the deal with him on the spot, giving the man the $300.00. We took possession. Of course this broke father's promise to grandmother and left it to her to make the next move. She made it by selling her place in Shasta and with Uncles Will, Gid, and Green, she moved to Upper Lake. Grandmother was a good business "man". She knew which card to play to the best advantage. She was a better business manager than was father.

We were kept busy in Shasta County dodging the Indians and fighting for sustenance. Mother has told us of her life of fear in California and of living on an Indian trail which kept her in constant terror. Father had to be away from home at work all the time. Mother had a trap door built in the floor for safety. Her only weapon was a hatchet. One night a neighbor, thinking to have some fun, came to the well near the door and acted in a way to make her think it was in Indian. Mother said she stood by the door with her hatchet raised to "brain" the first one to try to get in. The neighbor thought it a great joke as he told about it later.

Uncle Will Allen's wife, Catherine Boise, was killed by the Indians and their four children left for dead. Two were left with broken skulls, the third badly bruised and beaten, and the baby not much hurt. The Indian killed a neighbor woman one fourth mile from us and came on to our place for mother, sister Julia, and myself. The Indians stood outside the gate, sharpening their knives and asked where the men were. Mother stood them off and they finally left without attacking us. She told them that the men were over the hill. Father, at the time, was away from home.

In so far as I know, all the old covered wagon pioneers that left Missouri, May 1862, have "gone with the wind" long since, except John Allen, Uncle Will's boy, and myself. John is at present living near Eureka, California. He is one of the children whose skull was broken by the Indians.

In the spring of 1876, I think it was, I apprenticed to Tom Jones' Blacksmith at Upperlake. After working for Jones, I worked for Joe Seigler Blacksmith at Zacitegue in Bachelor Valley.

When Julia was nineteen, she taught the Scudamore School in Scotts Valley on a second grade certificate. She had sixty pupils. This was in 1876. Then she took an intensive course of study at Kelley's Academy at Lakeport. She took examinations in twenty-two subjects, securing a first grade certificate, good for three years. She then taught a school at East Lake. After that she taught another one farther up the Lake.

The old "Liberty School House, District Number 1" still stands in Scott's Valley. In 1935, Mary and Lizzie visited it and enjoyed looking over its presises. Lizzie tells that she attended school at Upper Lake where she had only a speller for a text book. No two had the same books.

Leaving our home in Scoot's Valley, July 26, 1880, we drove to Upper Lake to Uncle Green Allen's home and with his good-bye, "the Lord be with you", we finally began to roll. When mother's health failed and the question of moving came up, there was quite a debate as to whether we should go to Texas or to Washington Territory. However, Washington Territory finally won out. They were also influenced to move North by Elder A. H. Hagens.

Following is the group which migrated North: Father, Elder I. N. Newkirk, born in Mexico City, Missouri, May 16, 1833, Phoebe Elizabeth (Allen) Newkirk, born in North Carolina, March 2, 1840; Julia Newkirk, born in Mexico City, Missouri Jan. 13, 1857; Coleman Shelton Newkirk, born in Mexico City, Missouri January 22, 1860; Elizabeth Newkirk, born in Millville, Shasta County, California, November 5, 1867; Mary Augusta Newkirk, born on Puuet Creek, Sanoma, Near Santa Rosa, California, June 7, 1872; and Isaac Newton Jr. Newkirk, born in Scott's Valley, Lake County, Nov. 20, 1874.

It was on July 26, 1880 that, with a covered hack and a covered wagon, each drawn by a two horse team, we, the Newkirk family, and Jesse Bullington, a church brother and a warm friend, were ready again to begin rolling towards the new promised land of Washington Territory. We think the equipment is worthy of detailed description. The wagons had double floors. The under section was stored with supplies, etc. On top of the floor was a bed. The wagons were covered with canvas. Old Nell ----- we kept a long time after the trip, ~~was~~ were hitched to the hack. The younger children learned to ride on Nell who later hanged herself on the manger. On our way up, we stopped at Uncle Green Allen's home at Upper Lake. With his good-bye and "the Lord be with you", we finally began to roll. If i remember corcctely, we drove by Lake Port, Lelseyville, and Lower Lake, along the lake shore, the base of Uncle Sam, an extinct volcano, on by Sulphur Springs "that smelled to high heaven". At the first or second camp~~ing~~ place, we fell in with a family from Ukiah about thirty miles west of where we had lived. This was the Baylor family, Mr. and Mrs. Baylor, Leslie, Mary, several smaller kids and Mrs. Baylor's borhter, Wilfred Mock. They, with three covered wagons and teams, were on their way to Washington Territory, also. We camped, got acquainted, and talked together of our hopes and plans. Upon an unanimous vote of all we decided to keep together. When we reached the Sacramento Valley, the Bayers detoured to visit friends. We drove on to Norman Station where we stopped over two nights and a day to visit with friends of Jesse's and mine, by the name of Raiper. The Rappers had a preacher visiting them at the time, so we, with father's assistance, had much talking, much preaching, singing, praying, and very much good feeding. Then we drove on to join the Baylor's at Stony Creek Crossing. Here we found them waiting for us. At Stony Creek, Jesse Bullington decided to go back to the "girl he left behind", in Scott's Valley, to try to persuade her to marry and elope with him. This she refused to do. So that left Jesse to come on the next spring to Smith Hollow, still a bachelor.

I drove his team and my wagon. Then we settled down to the main business in hand, passing through Willows, Germantown, Orland, on to Red Bluffs where Grandfather's body lay buried. At this place we made the mistake of crossing the Sacramento River instead of going on up the river and crossing at Cottonwood and as usual, we had to pay by having our livers almost jolted out of us by a day's drive over the most terrible piece of road we found on the whole trip. There were continual rocks and ruts, but finally we had better "going". We failed to reach Millville in Shasta County, our objective for the day. We did not reach there until the next morning. Here, one mile from town up Clover Creek, we came to Grandmother Allen's old homestead where she had lived for thirteen years, after landing from our trip from Missouri. The freshening of many memories held us here for some time. It was in this house that Lizzie was born in 1867. While visiting here at one time, Grandma Allen had given Mamie some pink material for a little dress when Mamie was only two and one-half years old. Mother made the material into a lovely dress on a hand-turned machine. Mamie still has the dress just as it was made. It was never laundered. Her granddaughter, Verdean Loraine Harman, has a picture which was taken while dressed up in the little dress. This dress material is the only memory Mamie has of Grandma Allen. She recalls sliding off mother's lap to run over to accept the gift. Mamie visited Grandmother's grave in 1935, the first time she has been back since the day of the funeral in 1876.

It was here that Aunt Catherine Allen, Will's wife, was brought for burial after she had been killed by Indians some ten miles east. The Indians found her and her four children alone on their ranch in what was called Basson Hollow. They came into the house. One of them reached up for Uncle Will's rifle which was hanging on the wall. Aunt Catherine tried to get the gun from him. In the scuffle, she grabbed a necklace of large beads he was wearing. He turned the gun on her and shot her. The ball struck her on the point of the chin, glanced down and split her throat down to the collar bone. The beads were still clutched in her hand which could not be opened so she was buried still holding them. The skulls of the two oldest children were fractured. The next had had his face and head stamped by a hobnailed boot. The baby was not seriously hurt. The three oldest were brought to grandmother who took them and nursed them back to life and then raised them till they were grown. When Aunt Catherine had been found by Uncle Green and had been moved to Grandma's, she was so distorted and stiff that a special coffin had to be made to put her in for burial. From these delays she became badly decomposed and to deaden the scent they sprinkled cologne over the body. To this day I can not enjoy the perfume of cologne. Another memory is one of the greatest frights that I have ever experienced. Bears had the habit of coming down from the hills and catching hogs. One night, while I was sleeping alone in a little bedroom cut off from the end of the front porch and sided up with thin sugar pine shakes with a flimsy shake door shutter, I was awakened by bears raiding the pig pen out by the barn. There seemed to be a number of them, two at least. I awoke to hear the pigs squaling and the bears growling, making a terrible din. Just think of a little boy alone in that little outside room, a little shaver, some six or seven years old, imagining the bears shoving their big clawed feet through that flimsy wall with their bloody slavering jaws reaching for him! Gosh! It scares me yet! The next morning we went out to see what the damage had been. No one had the nerve to go out in the dark. Grizzlies are not good fellows to monkey with. We found about six shoats torn and mangled, one or two were still living with great chunks of flesh torn out of their bodies. There were many other memories which came rolling in, not all so tragic and gruesome as those just related. Of an evening, with the family grouped around the open fire, Grandmother would relate in detail all the happenings and traditions of the family life and much of the neighborhood gossip from the places she had lived. We are indebted to her for what we know of her family history. Grandmother's home was the center for many of the Allen families, and the Newkirk families. Here they gathered for glorious loving and affectionate family reunions. In circles around the large open fire place, sometimes two or three deep, what talking, singing, laughter, and jokes! It was wonderful! And dear old Grandma, the most wonderful of them all! I have the picture of her dear old face before me on the stand, while I write these lines, calling up floods of childhood and youth, some of sorrow and of grief, but much of joy of love and trust. Grandmother Polley, "Aunt Polley" Allen! One of the truly great and good, with the memories flooding in upon me, I could write a book.

But we must drive on or we will never reach our destination or overtake the Baylors who have driven slowly on, leaving us to shed our tears and bid farewell to those ghosts of the departed joys and memories of long ago. We overtook the Baylors somewhere in the vicinity where Aunt Kit had been killed. Then we began to climb up unto the Siskiyou Mountains. The road was so steep in places that we had to double the teams and take the wagons up one at a time. That night we camped in what was known as Tamarac Flats. Father had at one time worked herefor a road building gang as a sour dough cook. We had been warned that there was a gang of horse thieves operating in this vicinity. So we took turns as armed guards with the horses during the night, but we were not otherwise disturbed. When it was time to roll out in the morning, we found the ground white with frost--first week of August. We started out with barefooted horses. Now they began to get lame. Finding a stock ranch with a small kit of blacksmith tools, we camped and I filed and nailed shoes on them. They traveled much better after that. We camped one night on Hat Creek where we saw a number of the Hat Creek Tribe of Indians, who a few years before had been ugly. The soldiers were sent in to straighten them out. Jesse Bullington had been with them as a volunteer. It was thought that those who killed Aunt Catherine were some of these, but they seemed perfectly peaceful and friendly at this time. We passed near Mount Lassen, the only active volcano in the United States. We were glad it was not having jitters while we were in the Hat Creek Canyon. We passed Falls City Mills and Pitville near here. Then on through Burney Valley and Big Valley to the west of Beiber, and Canby. Many ducks in the sloughs and little lakes were noted, but having to drive, we did not get a chance to do much hunting. Sometimes Julia drove a while and I got a few. She drove the hack motts of the time. Father never would drive if some of us kids could manage it. After many days of driving over a rolling rocky, and sometimes grassy or timber table land, we came to the Lava Beds of the Modock country not far from the line between Modoc and Syskiyou Counties, and camped one night on the edge of a long natural trench where we thought that a part of the Modoc War had been fought. The trench was about six feet wide at ehe surface and from four to six feet deep with a level sandy floor. It is likely that sand had been blowing in for ages, filling up the crack to its present depth. Before reaching this camp. Julia took my team. Taking my shotgun, I went to a small lake for ducks. After shooting them, I had to wade out to my armpits to retrieve them. Then to find camp! It was getting dark so the folks in camp fired signal guns to direct me. Well, it all resulted in plenty of "duck soup". At this camp we saw a family who were on their way back from Washington Territory. They had had enough. They said the Palouse Country, Baylor's destination, well named as it was a good place to "puul loose from". They said they were on their way back to God's country, the Sacramento Valley. The next point of interest was the crossing of Lost River. We had to ford this stream. The water was so deep that it almost floated our wagon beds, but by the assistance rendered by ourlady folks, God bless the, by their skilled "back-seat driving" and screechings which had a tendency to steady the nerves of the dirvers in guiding their almost swimming teams through the dangerous crossing, we came through without any serious damage. Then we went on to and along the shore of Kalamath Lake, some ten miles wide and thirty miles long, a beautiful body of water. It was here that I committed the greatest act of disloyalty of my life. I had read of and seen pictures of that wonderful bird that the American people have shosen as an emblem of their freedom and independence, the American Eagle. Here I saw him th the flesh, alive, perched in the top of one of the tallest trees on the lake shore! I stopped my team, took up my rifle and shot him. I went up to the wagon and got Jesse's square out of his tool chest and measured his wing spread. It was seven feet one inch from tip to tip, a magnificent bird. I do not suppose that Uncle Sam ever knew what happened to his pet, but this solves the mystery of the loss of (the emblem) of American liberty and independence. This act of my thoughtless youth was probably a part of the inspiration that prompted father to write his immortal poem, entitled, "Uncle Sam's Birthday", a copy of which is treasured by each of his children and many of his grandchildren. I cut off the eagle's mighty talons and his head for souvenirs. Then we drove on up the lake. We camped one night at Kalamath Mission or Linkville.

From Farewell Bend, we left the Deschutes to cross the desert to Prineville on Crooked River. At about halfway across one of Mock's horses went lame. Mock, Leslie, and I stopped to work on the horse's foot while the rest went on. It was a terrible job in the heat and sand! We had to dig gravels from between the shell of the foot and the inner bone with no way of holding him, but by main strength. He reared and plunged from the pain. But it was almost as tough on the men as it was on the beast. At one time almost every thing began playing "ring around the rosy" with me and the world was "blacked out." I dropped the foot. They caught me and laid me out under a small juniper bush and poured what water we had in our jug, on my head. I rallied and we went on, overtaking the others in the night. Before reaching Prineville, they had found a spring. Mock had to sell or trade his horse to a man in Prineville, because the next day it was too lame to travel farther. From Prineville, our course lay toward the northeast. We crossed John Day River at Lenord's Bridge. Then, on passing Heppner at some miles north of us, we crossed Willow Creek. Grass failed us, here. I suppose sheep had been herded all through that section of the country. We found a settler on Butter Creek who said he would sell us hay at one and one-half cents a pound, at the rate of thirty dollars per ton. This seemed rather stiff, but that was not the worst of it. He weighed out the hay for us. We paid him for it and carried it to camp, fed the hungry, tired horses, got our upper and went to bed. In the morning, when we went out to feed them what we had saved over, we found the horses had not eaten any of the hay. Instead, they were begging us for feed. I am satisfied the old "bilk" had doctored that hay so the horses would leave it and after we had gone, he planned to rake it up, put it back in the shed and sell it again to the next "suckers" who might come along. The dirty thief! We traveled many miles over rolling semi-desert country, covered with bunch grass, grease wood, ground squirrels, badgers, and jack rabbits. We came on to Pendleton. Here we forded the Umatilla River and then came on to Weston. Here, father found a "Hardshell" church. There was to be a meeting the next Saturday and Sunday. A case of dynamite could not have driven us on until that meeting was over. So our friends, the Bayers, being Seventh Day Adventist, and not being interested in "Hard Shell Meetings", said they had to drive on. We were not happy to part company with these fine people, but we would not have traveled much farther on with them anyway. We had a glorious visit with these Weston Baptist church people, made many warm and lasting friends, and Monday morning rolled across the Oregon-Washington line and shortly pulled into Walla Walla, some time between the first and middle of September. I have forgotten the exact date. Any way, it was about six weeks from Scott's Valley, California.

Here, father ran on to a fellow who had a squatter's claim on a one-half section of school land on the lower Waitsburg-Walla Walla road, a mile south of the Touchet River and between Waitsburg and Prescott. The man had broken fifteen or twenty acres of sod for crop that fall. He wanted to sell his right to father. So father made what he always called a "dicker". He gave my hack and Julia's $60.00 which she had saved up, and we moved on the place. There was no house but a one-roomed sod dug-out, a well, completely ruined for us by bushels of dead grasshoppers. The claim turned out later to be a valuable piece of property. But we could not stay there for the winter. There was no house or barn, no fence, (plenty of range stock), no fuel no food and no money. So we loaded our junk into the big wagon, hitched on the four horses and pulled our freight for a hardshell church, in Johnson Hollow, some five or six miles east of Dayton, Washington.

A mile above Waitsburg, we took the old Mullin Road and wound and wound around the hills and hollows, over the old Territorial Road, until we came to Smith Hollow. We camped for the night at the home of David Kirby's, a fine family. They took us in and treated us as relatives. They saw the directors and got the Smith Hollow School for Julia to teach. They let us have a vacant house for the winter. This would give us a chance to look around and decide what to do. So we piled our junk in the house, hooked up our team and continued our search for the Johnson Hollow Church. We finally reached the home of Elder J.P. Allison, the pastor of the church. So that was all right again. We went to church Saturday and Sunday, (the Hard Shells always have a two days' meeting once a month). When this matter was finished, we returned to Smith Hollow. Julia commenced her school. I went down below Waitsburg and Julia commenced her school. I went down below Waitsburg and got a job on the O.R. and N. Railway which was being built that fall and winter. Father began cutting and hauling winter wood from the Tucanon. Mother hauled many loads of wood, herself. This brings us to the end of that long trip.

When the next will begin and where it will end is on the knees of our gods. I will bring this story to an end by saying that from this Smith Hollow home, the five children grew up, married, scattered out in various directions and raised families of their own. Mother died, November 21, 1895, and was buried in the Dayton Cemetary. Father died at Walla Walla, March 13, 1909 and was laid beside her.

From this time forward, the younger members of this generation are more qualified to write the biographical history of their own individual families than is this writer. So he will proceed with his own private meditations and activities.

With profound regard, esteem, and love for all the members of this excellent and worthy family of ours, I remain your father, brother, and uncle.

Historical Richardson Home To Pass Into County History

By Fred Norris

A landmark of the Touchet Valley since before the turn of the century is soon to come down as a modern home replaces the old Richardson house, located on Highway 410, just west of here.

A modern, ranch type dwelling is being erected just east of the old home by Roy Eslick who has occupied the pioneer dwelling for a number of years.

Reputedly the largest dwelling ever built in Columbia county, the home is an imposing three-story structure containing 18 rooms and a partial basement. The windows and glass in the doors are bordered with French stained glass of various hues, some "gingerbread" trimming and gable roof, all adding to the attractiveness of the old line home.

Historical Ground
The ground on which it stands has county historical significance as it was homesteaded by Jesse N. Day, founder of Dayton, who received a patent for the land September 15, 1866. They sold it to Dusenberry and Stencil, old-time merchants of Dayton, and the Richardson family purchased it in September, 1889.

The property had a number of owners until 1910 when Miles C. Moore of Walla Walla (the last territorial governor of Washington) acquired it from Frank Hoskins.

The Newland family owned it during the intervening years and planted a windbreak of fir trees along the west side. The ravages of time have taken toll, however, until today only a few of these trees are standing.

Railroad Station
The Oregon Railroad and Navigation Co. acquired a right of way through the property in 1880 and a way station named "Clum" was built. This has long since been abandoned.

The property still stands in the name of the Moore family, being leased by the Eslick brothers who operate it along with the old Thompson farm on Rock Hill.

U.S. Highway 410 was built through the property in 1923 and it passed to the rear of the residence. Many newcomers have wondered why the building was constructed with the rear facing the highway, but the home originally faced the county road when the valley route wended its way along the foot of the hill in front of the home.

The old Richardson house will pass into the limbo of Columbia county history with the completion of the modern dwelling.

Back on the ranch

family. On the porch of the white house is Hoskins' mother and the person dressed in white just to the right of the large white gate is the Chinese cook. Hoskins tells us that right after this photo was taken he fell off the cow and was the laughing stock of the day. Photo courtesy Ward Hoskins

TWO PIONEERS OF THIS COUNTY TELL HISTORY OF TOUCHET VALLEY

JUDGE C.F. MILLER AND D.C. GUERNSEY ARE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS AT MEETING OF PIONEERS

Those arriving in 1860, were Elisha Ping and family, G.W. my mother and I being the family, Jesse N. Day and family, and three bachelors, Henry B. Day, and Jack and Newt Forrest; The Forrests were brothers of Mrs. Day. Miller and Ping settled on their previously located homesteads on the Patit, and Jesse Day on the Touchet; the Forrests had located the Richardson place the year before and settled there, selling out to R.G. Newland in 1861; Henry Day having 320 acres in the valley, was not eligible for a homestead, but engaged in the cattle business.

The immigration of 1861 was as follows: William Sherry settled on the Patit above Miller; Alexander Montgomery, Albert Woodward and Cyrus Armstrong on the Patit above Rexford; Jonathan Buzzard on the old Cross place in Johnson Hollow near Dayton; Ambrose Johnson where the trails crossed Johnson Hollow; Tom Whetstone where the trails entered Whetstone Hollow; Amasa West between Stubbs and the Baileys; Uncle Zeke Hobbs between the Baileys and "Kentuck", John Winnett and Henry Owsley further up the Touchet, and Uncle Tom Winnett and his sons, Bill, Dock, Bob, and Lew, on Whiskey creek and the Hogeeye. There were three young fellows with the Winnetts, who do not seem to have taken up land at that time; they were Simon Critchfield, Cp Mathew and Fred Kenney. This year the Paynes bought out Hearn at Columbia school house, and the Forrests sold to R.G. Newland. During this year my father rented the Stubbs place, broke out a portion of the land and fenced it with cottonwood rails made where the Main street bridge now crosses the stream.

The following paper was read by D.C. Guernsey:

"BY ONE WHO WAS THAR"

TO THE PIONEERS OF DAYTON AND COLUMBIA COUNTY WASHINGTON, GREETING,

Let me digress and list the old settlers and new ones coming about this time, taking Dayton as the initial point, up the Touchet, John Mustard, John Rainwater, Uncle Zeke Hobbs, William (Bill) Newland, George Kirk, E.B. Brown on south fork, then up the Spangler fork on Main Touchet, Ed Wineland, John (Buckskin) Winnett, Hank Stanfield, Joe Abel, William (Bill) Able and James Stearns.

NEWLAND 100 YEARS OLD

Rufus G. Newland of Puyallup Passes Century Mark.

On June 20, 1822, just when people were beginning to get settled down after the War of 1812, and Abraham Lincoln was busy splitting rails on the then frontier, there was born in West county, Virginia, a boy named by his parents Rufus G. Newland.

On June 20, 1922, just 100 years later, sitting on the porch at the Masonic Home at Puyallup, was an elderly looking man who, if you chanced to ask his name would say, "I'm Rufus G. Newland." It is the same Rufus G. Newland born in Virginia on that eventful spring morning 100 years ago in 1822.

Wars have come and gone. Great statesmen have come into prominence and passed on into practical oblivion. From the ox cart modes of transportation have advanced until now they shoot through the spaces in machines equipped for the purpose; the sewing machine has been invented; electricity has been harnessed and we can talk through the air for thousands of miles.

All these things has Mr. Newland seen, and many other startling occurrences. And there are many other things he hopes to see.

Mr. Newland, who is celebrating his 100th birthday at Puyallup Tuesday, was one of the first legislators in the state. He was the speaker of the house in 1830, just 42 years ago.

At that time he lived at Dayton, Wash., where he had moved from Iowa in 1861. He has always been interested in legislation. He attends the state legislature as often as he can and takes a great interest in following the work of the various conventions.

The centenarian started his political career in Iowa, where he was a probate judge, a justice of the peace, a school director and an official in other ways.

He has been a farmer the greater part of his life. His time in Washington has been spent near Dayton up to eight years ago when he went to the Masonic home at Puyallup to live.

Abraham Lincoln is the one and only president of the United States with which Mr. Newland had conversed, he says. In fact, Lincoln is the only president he has ever seen.

He attributes his age to a quiet life and the non-use of tobacco and intoxicating liquor. The last two he has never touched.

Despite his advanced years he is

Despite his advanced years he is hale and hearty at the 100 mark. He walks up several flights of stairs every day to and from his meals, and is unusually active in other ways. For instance, he says when he has trouble with his knees he goes out in the garden and hoes a while and the trouble disappears.

Friends from far and wide gathered Tuesday afternoon at the Masonic home to join with him in celebrating his 100th birthday.—Tacoma Paper.

Dayton Pioneer to Celebrate 100th Birthday.

Lars Nilsson is in receipt of a letter from R. G. Newland, one of our early settlers, now at the Masonic home at Puyallup, saying he will celebrate his 100th birthday June 20th, 1922. He is very much interested in the organization of the pioneer association here, and says he would come over for one of the meetings if he were but a little younger. Mr. Newland dates his residence here from 1860, and was one of the managers in the organization of Columbia county. His name not infrequently appears in the items of thirty-six years ago.

Laura Newland Benson

"News Of An Old Time"

18 Sept 1947

From Mrs. Warren Kenoyer of Lynden, Wash., has been received a clipping from the Bellingham - Herald of August 24 pertaining to the eighty-fifth birthday of Mrs. Laura Benson of Bellingham, a daughter of Mr. & Mrs. R. S. Newland, prominent pioneers of Columbia County. The article says in part:

Out at her home at 1112 Roland Street Saturday Mrs. Laura Benson was 85 years old. She probably celebrated by going out and chopping a couple armloads of wood for the kitchen stove or taking a horse-back ride.

She can wield an axe as well as her sons and doesn't even regard it as exercise, as President Coolidge did - it's just splitting wood to her. She splits the wood and stores it away. And she doesn't want anybody else doing it for her.

Mrs. Benson was born August 29, 1862 in the Walla Walla valley to which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Newland, came across the plains from Kansas in 1861. The Civil War was on then, but it seemed very far away out in the wilderness valley where the couple pioneered and where she was born. Their huge farm was near where Dayton, Wash., now stands but Dayton as a town came considerably and was named for Mrs. Benson's uncle, Jesse Day, also a pioneer there. Mr. Newland had a large and productive farm, a big home, herds of cattle and lots of horses. Everybody in the family rode and drove horses - it was their only way of going anywhere, as well as doing the farm work.

Horses were second nature to Mrs. Benson. She was riding all over the place when she was five years old - and that's 80 years ago. She had a number of saddle horses of her own in her childhood and girlhood, and her own team of spanking horses with her own buggy and she remembers them all. She rode side saddle of course - who ever heard of a woman's riding astride in those days?

"My father bought a beautiful saddle trimmed with silver. He gave $80 for it," she relates. Eighty dollars was a lot of money then and bought a fancy saddle. "And I had long riding habits, that came down to horse hoofs, almost. One, I remember was black, and had gold buttons on the jacket. And one I liked very much was red, trimmed with black braid.

In a box of old photographs there is a picture of her then, a pretty young girl looking out with the same bright eyes she has today, poised and dignified but missing nothing.

"But I liked to ride without a saddle," she went on, "I liked just a blanket and a surcingle." And that is the way she rides once in a while, even today.

Her father served eight years in the legislature back in those days when Washington was just a Territory, and he was speaker of the house. In 1875 at a Fourth of July celebration Mrs. Benson was the Goddess of Liberty in a Walla Walla pageant. She was used to taking part in all kinds of things. That's why she was so much at ease in the Blossom Time Festival parade last spring riding along in a buggy behind a spirited horse.

Mrs. Benson has 2 sons, Assistant Chief of Police Fred Benson, and Dean, known as Jack, who is a farmer in the Mountain View district. She also has three daughters, Vesta Benson, who lives at home with her mother, her twin Esther, who is Mrs. Lee Sapp, and lives just across the street on Roland, and Edna, who is Mrs. Frank Westlund of Snoqualmie.

The picture above and the following remarks came to us through the courtesy of The Bellingham Herald:
DOESN'T FAZE HER—Many a husky man would be a bit dismayed at the size of this woodpile and the prospect of having to split and store it, but not 85-year-old Mrs. Laura Benson. She showed the Herald photographer and reporter just how to go about it. When the photographer had some idea of "staging" the picture and started to sink the axe into the hunk of wood, Mrs. Benson hauled off and gave it a good swing and buried the blade in the wood. Even though she did sort of dress up for this picture, to appear on her birthday, she took the proper grip on the axe handle and got the wood properly poised on the chopping block. Mrs. Benson has chopped wood since she was a child and still splits and stores it away at her home on Roland street.—Herald staff photo.

Niece of Dr. Day Native Visits Walla Walla

From Union Bulletin

Anna L. Benson, 86, born two miles from Dayton before that place became a city, arrived here Monday on her first visit to this area in many years. She was accompanied by her son, Fred Benson, chief of police of Bellingham, his wife and son.

Mrs. Benson vividly recalls many incidents connected with the early day history of this region. Other than being slightly hard of hearing, she is alert and extremely interested in visiting relatives and descendants of people she knew many years ago.

Father A Packer

Her father, R. G. Newland, operated one of the first pack trains between Walla Walla and Orofino, Idaho. Mrs. Benson recalled that he started his business with one horse and on the first trip he walked the entire distance, leading the animal over the Snake river hills. The first trip netted Newland enough money to buy a second horse.

When he retired from that business several years later Newland was operating a string of 320 horses. Following this he served as speaker of the house in the territorial legislature for eight years, starting in 1875.

Niece of Dr. Day

Mrs. Benson is a niece of the late Dr. J. H. Day, prominent in the early history of both Walla Walla and Dayton. Several of this city's early buildings were financed by Dr. Day.

Mrs. Benson resided near Dayton until she was 27. The family then moved to a large cattle farm near Lind and later to Moscow and Lewiston, Idaho. Her children were all born in Idaho.

The Bensons expect to visit both Lewiston and Moscow before returning to Bellingham next week.

An Old Settler Gone.

The announcement Thursday of the death of Mrs Jane Newland was in no ways a surprise, as her death had been hourly expected for about three weeks. She was entirely unconscious and had been for over two weeks. The funeral took place Friday from the family residence. Mrs Newland was born in Virginia on the 9th of January 1823 and hence at her death on December 5, 1889, was 66 years, 10 months and 26 days old. She was married to R. G. Newland in 1814 and moved to Leavenworth Kansas where they lived until they crossed the plains to Walla Walla in 1861. There were at that time but about 12 white women in what is now Columbia county. Mrs Newland has been a great sufferer from asthma for over 12 years being confined to her bed a great part of that time. The immediate cause of her death was drop-sy of the heart. Mrs. Newland leaves a husband and three children, David, Harve and Laura, also four brothers, Jesse N. Day of this city, Elton H. B. Day of this city, Dr. J. H. Day of Walla Walla, and Hon. David Day Post Master at St. Paul Minnesota.

Services Monday For Mrs. Benson.

In the passing of Mrs. Anna Laura Benson Thursday, death stilled busy little hands that kept performing useful tasks nearly a century.

Ninety-two years old last August, Mrs. Benson enjoyed what she called perfect health until about eight months ago when she suffered a slight stroke. A recurrence made her a hospital patient.

But until that time, at her home at 1112 Roland St., she went about household tasks and busily pieced quilts, for one thing. She couldn't stand to be idle. Until a few years ago she chopped her own kitchen wood, bought it by the load, split it and stored it away. On her 35th birthday she posed for a news picture sailing into a big pile of wood. She swung the ax with swift precision and said she had been chopping wood since she was a child on a huge Eastern Washington farm.

At the time of this exhibition of skill and strength she only weighed 100 pounds, was snowy-haired but erect and quick in her movements and her black eyes snapped with interest in everything that went on.

That is the way she remained until a few months ago. The last few years, however, she had passed up the wood chopping.

RODE HORSEBACK

Also she rode horseback until a few years ago. She had learned to ride a horse as a child of five on the Eastern Washington farm, rode and drove all through her girlhood and young womanhood, as that was the chief mode of transportation. She had vivid memories of spirited horses she had ridden and pictures of herself in long flowing riding habits when she rode sidesaddle. It was unheard of then for a woman to ride astride, but she confessed, with a twinkle and a smile, that she liked riding with a blanket and surcingle, completely minus saddle, best of all.

Mrs. Benson was born Aug. 23, 1862, in the Walla Walla valley to which her parents had come the year before from Kansas. Her father was R. C. Newland who became a large landowner in that part of the state, and her mother's brothers, the Day brothers, were doctors and lawyers. The town of Dayton, Wash., took its name from her uncle, Jesse Day.

She was widowed in 1936 with the death of her husband, Charles D. Benson. They came to Bellingham to live in 1924. She is survived by two sons, former Police Chief C. Fred Benson and Dean (Jack) Benson of Ferndale; twin daughters, Miss Vester Benson and Mrs. Esther Sapp, both of Bellingham, and another daughter, Mrs. Edna Westerland of Snoqualmie; eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral services have been arranged for Monday at 2 p. m. in the Cathedral Chapel of the Westford funeral home. The Rev. C. Eugene Sabine of the First Christian Church will officiate, and burial will follow in Bay View cemetery.

RUFUS G. NEWLAND DEAD
Pioneer Dayton Farmer Dies at Puyallup—Age 100 Years.
TACOMA, Aug. 8.—Rufus G. Newland, until eight years ago a wheat farmer near Dayton, Wash., died this morning at the Masonic home near Puyallup, just 56 days over 100 years of age. He was a member of the first Washington territorial legislature and in 1880 was speaker of the house in that body.

BENSON—Charles DeLass Benson, aged 67 years, beloved husband of Mrs. Anna Laura Benson, passed away at the family home, 1910 D street, Sunday evening, Jan. 25, after a lingering illness. Mr. Benson has resided in Bellingham for the past ten months, coming here from Winchester, Idaho. The surviving relatives are the widow, Mrs. Anna Benson, two sons, Fred and Dean Benson, at the family home, and three daughters, Mrs. R. C. Hingley, Winchester, Idaho, Mrs. Lee Sapp and Miss Vester Benson of this city, also one grand daughter, Virginia Hingley of Bellingham. The remains are resting at the O. R. Hollingsworth funeral home and funeral announcements will be made later.

Rufus G. Newland.

A Tacoma dispatch of August 8th says:

Rufus G. Newland, until 18 years ago a farmer near Dayton, Washington, died this morning at the Masonic home near Puyallup, just fifty days over 100 years of age. He was a member of the first Washington territorial legislature and in 1880 was speaker of the House in that body.

Newt James was probably the last person from Dayton to visit Mr. Newland. While on a motor trip a week ago Mr. James called on Mr. Newland. He was then in bed but had no notion of passing away. He talked of his old friends in Dayton and desired that Newt give them all his regards.

The Chronicle published a short biography of Mr. Newland in June, when he celebrated his one hundredth birthday.

Volume I

NEWMAN, W. A., of Dayton, County Treasurer of Columbia County, was born in Adams County, O., in 1849. His father was a merchant of Maryland, his mother being from Ohio. Third in a family of five children, young Newman completed his rudimentary studies in the public schools. Coming West in 1869, he entered the college at Forest Grove, Ore., taking only the preparatory course. He taught school in Linn County of that State for two years, and two more in Washington County, thence came to Washington Territory and located at Dayton, his present residence, finding employment in the Dayton Flour Mills for a period of twelve years, when he erected a small mill, which he operated for five years. He was appointed in 1890 County Treasurer by the County Commissioners of Columbia County, and was elected to fill that office at the last general election. He was married in 1871 to Miss Mary E. Clark, a native of Indiana. Five children grace their union. He is a property-owner and deeply interested in the educational interests of Dayton. He is a member of the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, and Ancient Order of United Workmen, an active politician, and an uncompromising Democrat, being the Chairman of the Central Committee of that party and devoted to its advancement.
