Horsewoman

Lisa Russell and her favorite means of transportation

By NADINE GERKEY
Of the Union-Bulletin

DAYTON — She doesn't want to be famous. She just wants to ride horses.

"If I had to work eight hours a day, I'd like to work with horses," she says. "I guess I've just got horse manure in my blood."

And, although Lisa Russell, 25, may not work with horses eight hours a day every day, she gets pretty close.

She has owned a horse since she was 3. Today she owns six horses and five dogs. And she spends most of her time breaking or riding horses or teaching others how to ride.

Before she was old enough to go to school, she led a string of horses out to the bus stop hear her home in the Tucannon River area every day. She was there when the bus came with her two older sisters. They rode home together.

"I just wanted to ride," she recalls.

She rode an old mare called Buck.

"She was always scraping us off trees," she laughs. "But then she'd stand there and wait for us to get back on again."

Buck was left by the Indians, who used to gather the roots of a plant on the hillsides near the Russell home to make bread.

Once Miss Russell was almost run over by a car. And her friend's horse was killed.

"The car came around a corner fast," she says. "I hung on (to my horse), but we went down. He's still lame, but I still have him."

Miss Russell rode with a back brace for five years. But that didn't stop her from riding.

In 1965, the "year of the big flood," her father, Henry L. "Murphy" Russell, and sister, Pam, were stalled about six miles from home in snow waist-high. They had to abandon the car and walk home.

Pam and Lisa rode back to get the groceries.

"It was slow going, but we had some good old trail horses that kind of pushed their way along," she says.

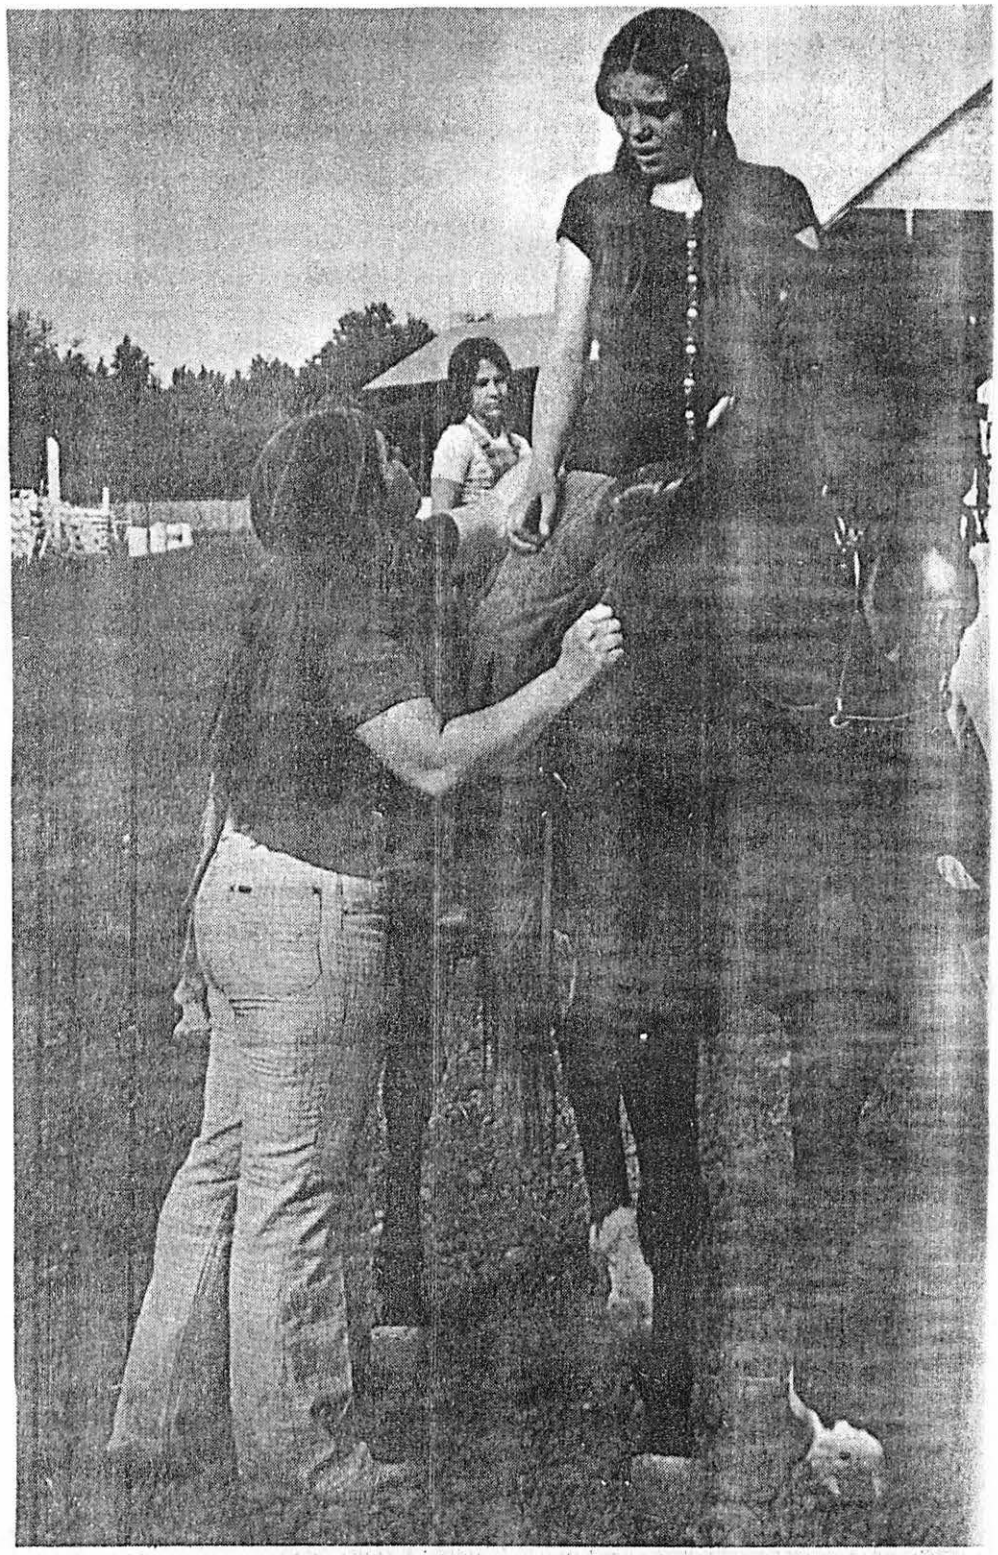
In 1971, five of the six Russell sisters challenged the Walla Walla 59ers to a ride to Jospeh, Ore., for the Joseph Days celebration.

"We'd trailed to Joseph for the first time the year before," Miss Russell says. "This time we said we could beat them (the 59ers)."

It's about a 125-mile trek. And the girls edged the men by two hours.

This July the Russell girls will ride to Joseph for the eighth year. It'll be a first trip for the youngest, Nicole.

"It's about a three-day ride," Miss Russell explains. "We cook and sleep out and bathe in the streams. One year we ran into a rattler on a narrow piece of trail. I think my horse Little Feller smelled it. We slid off the trail, but we were able to get back up."



U-B photos by Nadine

Lisa Russell helps her sister, Nicole, sit on a horse

Another year some paranksters changed all the signs, but the Russells didn't need signs to find their way.

Usually four or five people ride to Joseph with the sisters. They pay a fee of $50 apiece.

Miss Russell, who majored in art at Walla Walla Community College and rode for the Rodeo Club, says she'd rather work with animals or paint than go to school.

She's been breaking horses for years.

"I break about 12 every summer," she explains. "I like to keep a horse about two months. If an owner wants special training, it takes more time."

She tries to get the buck out of them before she gets on them. And she claims she's in more danger in the kitchen then she is out breaking horses.

"Bob is my favorite," she says. "When I got him, no one could ride him. But he turned out to be a good horse. I guess I was just nice to him."

She compares horses with people.

"It's how they're brought up," she claims. "You've got to spank them once in a while to make them mind. And you've got to show them you care. I start by sitting and talking to them."

She teaches them to give to the rein by driving them and by snubbing (leading them from another horse).

"The first time on is exciting, because you don't know what the horse is going to do," she says. "Some want to be their own boss. Some want to work for you."

She uses a training whip to make them mind. But she's careful not to hit them around the head because that can make them head shy.

For six years Miss Russell has been sharing her love for riding by young people how to ride right.

She is Columbia County Wranglers 4-H Club leader.

"It's a matter of balance and rhythm and learning the proper way to handle an animal," she says.

Miss Russell, superintendent for the 4-H and open horse shows at the county fair for the past three years, put her riding and art talents together.

Her "Suffering Cow" comic strip has been accepted by the Wide World of Rodeo at Billings, Mont.

The same cow is on the fair association's place mat. It's a Russell creation.

"I made her up based on the cow life I've seen," she explains. "My place mat is for fun. Sufferin' is real skinny. And she's standing there with a guy holding her. And she just got a first-place ribbon."

"It's a pun," she added quickly. "She's not representative of the cows in Columbia County."

On commission, she paints rodeo barrel riders on velvet. Or she paints dogs or houses or horses or whatever people want.

Training Act (CETA) worker at the fairgrounds for more than a year, she painted buildings, plumbed, poured cement and made colorful signs.

The signs, which mark each display area, portray chickens, rabbits and other animals exhibited at the fair.

In between jobs, she works at home. She builds fence. She helps Nicole with her sheep. She mucks stalls. She milks the cow and gardens and helps in hay harvest.

But her horses and her dogs come first.

She raises and sells Australian cattle dogs and another breed of cattle dog from Louisiana.

"I've always had a dog, and I like to train them," she says. "They go along with horses. And they are like horses. "You just got to get them to mind you."

She says she lives in the Never-Never Land of all play and no work.

"I'm riding horses. It'd be work for some. But, for me, it's all play."

Skeleton Believed That Of Missing Since 1884

Father and son carrying golddust came into town and were never seen by friends again. Their hungry horses were found. Their prepared bed unused.

By Frank Mock

When Mrs. Robert Gemmel read in last week's C-D about finding a skeleton where excavating was being done for the new St. Joseph's parish house, her mind at once picked up the memory of the disappearance in 1884 of a friend of her parents' family, a man by the name of Holbrook. Here is her story as reported to the writer:

Mrs. Gemmel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell, two sons, Isaac and Jimmie, and daughter, Lola (Mrs. Gemmel) in company with a family by the name of Harsh, including Charles Harsh, now of Longs Station,, and other families formed an immigrant train in Kansas in 1881 and started for the Oregon country. Winter overtook them and they stopped over in Utah until spring. As they started their journey anew, others joined them and in this group was a Mr. Holbrook and his son, Lonnie. Mrs. Gemmel was then three years old but remembers distinctly the beautiful cream-colored horses the Holbrooks rode.

Indian Scare

On the way north they came into murderous Indian country. The Indians had a short time before attacked a train and killed all the whites. The teams in her train were made up of horses, mules and burros. And she will never forget when the Indians came for what the immigrants thought was an attack.

The scouts ordered all teams to start circling and to get ready for the fight. But instead of fighting, the savages were friendly. Their chief was sick and they had come for help. Mrs. Gemmel says they all had rifles taken from the other train but that they just piled up in a circle and were friendly and offered the pipe of peace.

Mrs. Gemmel says that the chief was the worst looking critter she had ever seen, and as her mother, Mrs. Russell, was a good-looking woman, the savage picked their wagon to lay under, then lay there looking up at Mrs. Russell's pretty face. And were they scared! They tried to feed the Indian, but all he would say was, "Me heap sick, me can't eat or drink."

When the redskin felt better the tribe left the immigrant train and the latter moved on unmolested for the rest of the journey.

Stopped to Mine

The Holbrooks were prospectors, and stopped in the Oregon country to look for gold. The Harsh family stopped at Waitsburg. The Russells came on to Dayton and took up a homestead on the South Touchet.

About two years later (Mrs. Gemmel then five years old), this Holbrook and son made the Harsh and Russell families a visit, and their complete disappearance brought about the end of the visit.

Mr. Holbrook carried considerable gold dust, instead of money.

Mr. Holbrook while visiting the Russells decided to come into Dayton for an overnight stay. The Russells tried to persuade him that Dayton was a bad place for a decent man to stay overnight. The town had many gambling houses and saloons and a few stores.

On leaving for Dayton Mr. Holbrook promised he would be back the next day, but that was the last ever seen or heard of him or his son.

When they didn't return, Mr. Russell and his son, Isaac, came into Dayton looking for them. Their horses were found where they had made their camp near where the Dayton Feed and Fuel plant is now. The horses hadn't had any feed for two or three days. The lost men's bed was found all made up but not having been used. This camp was within 150 feet of where the skeleton was found last week.

It was supposed by many that the two had gone "up town" and were murdered for their gold and buried in a patch of brush. But where is the son? His bones may not be far away. At the time, the sheriff and all residents made a thorough search of the community, including the creek and its banks.

When Mrs. Russell read of finding the skeleton she immediately thought of the Holbrooks and their beautiful cream-colored horses. She describes Mr. Holbrook as being a fine, clean man, and the son just a spindling boy of 12 years.

Another vivid memory of Mrs. Harsh over the intervening years is the care given her by the Harsh daughters on the immigrant train. They carried her around and looked after her during all the long trip.

I would like to meet Charles Harsh of Longs and talk over their story.—Frank Mock.

98 LONG YEARS—Mrs. Louisa Russell who, Tuesday of last week, celebrated her 98th birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stella Bartels, on Dayton Avenue. Mrs. Russell was born in Ohio, January 25, 1857. Later the family moved to Kansas where Mrs. Russell was married. In 1880 she and her family came by covered wagon to Walla Walla, later moving to Columbia county where she has spent the rest of her life except for about 20 years when she lived in Garfield county.

Even at her very great age, Mrs. Russell most of the time is in possession of her faculties; although she has been bedfast most of the time since she was 96 when she broke her hip.

Those of her children still living are Mrs. Elmer Ogden of Leavenworth; Mrs. Dora Bartell of Canada; Mrs. Ed. Parker of Redmond, Oregon; Lowell Russell of Denton, Montana, and Ary Russell of Marysville.

History Of
Whitman County
State of Washington

W. H. Lewis, Publisher

J. C. RUSSELL.—Among the thrifty and substantial farmers of Whitman county must be mentioned the man whose name appears above, he being one of the leading tillers of the soil in the vicinity of Oakesdale. During the many years of his residence within the borders of the political division whose histo y forms the subject matter of our volume, he has been one of the forces which make for progress in social and material things, and it is with pleasure that we are enabled to incorporate here a brief sketch of his life.

Mr. Russell is a native of the state of Vermont, born February 17, 1851. When he became four years old his parents took him to Green county, Wisconsin, where the next decade of his life was passed. He then accompanied the remainder of the family to Howard county, Iowa, where he completed his educational discipline. He worked in various localities in that state until 1874, which year is the date of his advent to California. He followed lumbering in the Golden state until 1881, coming then to the territory of Washington, his first home being in Walla Walla county. In 1882 he moved into Whitman county, settled on a farm five miles northwest of Oakesdale, where we now find him, and engaged vigorously in the effort to lay the foundation for the future comfort of himself and family. As time passed his realty holdings were augmented by further acquisition, until he is now the owner of four hundred and eighty acres, all fine agricultural land. A thrifty, progressive man, he has long since developed to the fullest, by cultivation, the natural richness of his land, and improved its appearance and value by the erection of a fine home and good substantial outbuildings.

In Marysville, California, in the year 1878, our subject married Miss Mary Turrell, a native of Ohio.

J. H. RUSSELL, one of the prominent citizens of Garfield county, Washington, was born near Marazion, Cornwall, England, February 6, 1848, son of James and Ann (Treloar) Russell. His father, also a native of Cornwall, was a miner by occupation. In 1849 the family removed to the town of Bodman, where the subject of our sketch was reared to manhood, and where he, too, was employed as a miner.

In 1873 Mr. Russell left his native land and emigrated to America, locating in Pennsylvania, and finding employment in the mines of Lackawanna county. He remained there, however, only a few years, and in 1876 we find him enroute to the Pacific coast. For about three years he mined in Mono county, California, and in Esmeralda county, Nevada, in the White mountains; then went to Butte, Montana, where he mined from 1879 until 1883. In 1883 he came to Garfield county, Washington, and took up a pre-emption claim near where he now resides. At this writing he and his brother are joint owners of 800 acres of land, all in the same neighborhood, about nine miles from Pomeroy and near Gould City. Of this tract they have nearly 150 acres under cultivation, the rest being utilized as pasture.

Mr. Russell is a member of Dove local, of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, and has taken a prominent part in the Alliance movement. He is secretary of his local alliance, and since July 1, 1893, has been president of the County Alliance. He has been a delegate to conventions, and has served as a member of the County Central Committee of the People's party, but at present is independent in his political views. Mr. Russell is a man of energy and ability, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the community with which he is identified.

THOMAS A. RUSSEL.

Thomas A. Russel, deceased, was for a number of years actively engaged in farming on section 3, township 6 north, range 35 east, Walla Walla county, and met with gratifying success. He was born in Ohio, September 26, 1831, and there grew to manhood and received his education. In 1849 he accompanied his father John Russel, to California, crossing the great unsettled plains of the west by team, a long, tedious and dangerous journey, and again in 1852 he came to the coast by the overland route, but each time he returned to Ohio, where he maintained his residence until 1864. In that year he went with his bride by horse team to the Sacramento valley of California, where he lived for three years, during which time he taught school. They then removed to Bowling Green, Missouri, and for twenty-one years he was a resident of that state. During that time he engaged in the practice of law, successfully appearing in most of the more important trials of his district. In 1888, however, he removed with his family to Walla Walla county, Washington and the remainder of his life was devoted to agricultural pursuits.

Mr. Russel was married in 1864 in Ohio to Miss Mary C. Willman, also a native of that state. To their union were born ten children: John B. and William, both of whom are deceased; Frank; Thomas and Anna, who have passed away; Phoebe L.; Lincoln and Grant, twins, and Leslie, the two latter being deceased; and Joseph, who resides in Canada.

Many interesting experiences came to Mr. Russel in his long life, and from the time he accompanied his father to the west in 1849 until his death he was much interested in this section of the country, even while still residing in the east or middle west. He found great pleasure in watching the process of development that has made the west a rival of the east in all that pertains to the highest civilization, and his influence was invariably cast on the side of progress. He passed away in January, 1901, and was laid to rest in the Mountain View cemetery.

CHARLES RUSSELL was one of the first settlers in the Walla Walla valley. The missionaries were here before him, so were the Hudson's Bay Company's servants, Canadians, and prior to the war of 1855–6, the Americans had attempted a settlement here and had been driven away by the Indians. When the soldiers came to chastise those Indians, Mr. Russell came with them as Wagon Master, and has been here continuously since. He is a native of Boston, Mass., where he was born September 18, 1828. His father was a doctor; but the boy saw no luring light in the future of a professional life, and longed for the free open sea and to look upon the scenes of other lands and countries, where his youthful imagination pictured castles of hope and a life of excitement and adventure. At ten years of age he left home and went to sea, and in 1846 enlisted in the Marine Service and sailed on the sloop of war Dale for the Pacific Coast. He participated in the war that gave California to the United States, and finally was discharged from service in New York in 1850. He then came again to California, by the Isthmus route, where he soon entered into the U. S. Quartermaster department, and was connected therewith most of the time up to 1855, with General Allen. In 1855 Lieutenant Robert Williamson in command, accompanied by Lieutenants George Crook, Horatio Gibson, Phil. Sheridan, and Abbott, visited Oregon for the purpose of finding a railroad route through the Cascade range of mountains, and Mr. Russell accompanied them in charge of the pack train. In November of that year the party disorganized at the Dalles, and Mr. Russell took charge of transportation in the Yakima expedition under Major Raines, after the Indians; and later came in charge of transportation to Walla Walla, under Colonel Steptoe, where he arrived in August, 1856. From that time until 1859 he was in charge of transportation for the Government, under the Quartermaster, in this section of country, having from 50 to 120 citizens in his employ most of the time. Under his supervision all the war parties were fitted out, including the ill-fated Steptoe reconnoissance, and the famed raid of Colonel Wright. Farming was introduced into the country by him, while acting for the Government; as is more particularly noted under the head of "Agriculture." In making this statement we do not forget that Dr. Whitman had tilled the bottom land around his mission years before, and that the Canadians had raised little patches of grain and herbs. He has been an active man, and his operations have become a part of Walla Walla's history, and will be found woven into various places in this book. To avoid repetition they are not recorded in this connection.

The farm where he now lives consists of 720 acres, lying along the creek bearing his name, and there is no finer locality between the two great ranges of mountains. It is all fenced and mostly cultivated, and has sufficient orchard for all except market purposes. It is situated three miles in an air line east of Walla Walla city. The soil is black bottom land and very productive. In 1881 Mr. Russell raised 9,500 bushels of oats, 5,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 bushels of barley, and 500 tons of hay upon his farm. In 1860, November 21, he was married to Miss Annie Sheets, daughter of John Sheets, of Walla Walla, and their children's names and ages are as follows: Charles, born September 12, 1861; Mary, born January 2, 1863, died March 12, 1863; William, born May 20, 1864; Harry, June 8, 1866; Davinia, August 26, 1868; Nellie, December 31, 1872.

WILLIAM L. RUSSELL, one of the bright young business men and excellent farmers of Walla Walla county, Washington, is a native of this State. He is a son of Charles and Annie (Sheets) Russell, and was born May 19, 1864. The father of our subject, Charles Russell, was one of the first settlers in the Walla Walla valley. The missionaries were here before him, as were the employes of the Hudson's Bay Company, mostly Canadians. Prior to the war of 1855–'56, the Americans had attempted a settlement here and had been driven away by the Indians. When the soldiers came to conquer the Indians, Mr. Russell came with them as wagon-master and lived here continuously until his death, August 7, 1891.

Charles Russell was a native of Boston, Massachusetts, born September 18, 1828. His father was a physician and would doubtless have been pleased if his son had decided to adopt his profession, but as a boy he had been adventurous and desired to see other countries, and at the early age of ten years left home and adopted the sea as his profession. In 1846 he enlisted in the United States marine service and sailed on the sloop-of-war, the Dale, for the Pacific coast. He participated in the war that gave California to the United States, and finally was discharged from service in New York, in 1850. He then came again to California, by the Isthmus route, where he soon found employment in the United States Quartermaster's department, and was so connected until 1855, under General Allen. In 1855, Lieutenant Robert Williamson commanded a party, consisting of Lieutenants George Crook, Horatio Gibson, Phil. Sheridan, and Lieutenant Abbott, which visited Oregon for the purpose of finding a railroad route through the Cascade range of mountains, and Mr. Russell accompanied them, in charge of the pack train. In November of that year the party disorganized at the Dalles, and Mr. Russell took charge of the transportation in the Yakima expedition, under Major Raines, after the Indians. Later he came to Walla Walla, in charge of the transportation under Colonel Steptoe, where he arrived in August, 1856. From that time until 1859 he was in charge of transportation for the Government under the quartermaster in this department. Here Mr. Russell had from fifty to 120 men in his employ all of the time. Under his supervision all of the war parties were fitted out, including that of the ill-fated Steptoe reconnoissance, and also for the historic raid of Col. Wright.

Farming was introduced by Mr. Russell in the spring of 1858. The first crop raised in the State was by him on his present farm. Said crop was one of oats, and he sold the product to the Government at $5 per cental. The crop was threshed out by the old rudimentary process, horses being used to tread it. The following season he brought to Walla Walla the first thresher ever introduced into the Territory and present State of Washington. The machine was transported by wagon road over the Cascade mountains, and the freight charges alone amounted to $1,400. In fact, Dr. Whitman had tilled the bottom land around his mission years before, and the Canadians had raised little patches of grain and herbs, but no extensive cultivation of the land took place until the work was inaugurated by Mr. Russell.

During his whole career Mr. Russell was an active man and his life is a part of the public history of Walla Walla county. The farm where he lived and died consists of 720 acres, lying along the creek which bears his name, and there is no finer locality between the two great ranges of mountains. The farm is all fenced and the most of it is cultivated, and with it is connected an orchard sufficient for household purposes. The farmstead is situated three miles from the city of Walla Walla, the soil being black loam and very productive. As an instance, in 1881 Mr. Russell raised 9,500 bushels of oats, 5,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 bushels of barley, and 500 tons of hay upon the farm.

The marriage of Charles Russell took place November 21, 1860, when he wedded Miss Annie Sheets, daughter of John Sheets, of Walla Walla, and the names of their children are as follows: Charles, born September 12, 1861; Mary, born January 2, 1863, died March 12, 1863; William, born May 20, 1864; Harry, born June 8, 1866; Lavenia, born August 26, 1868; and Nellie, born December 31, 1872.

Our subject was reared on the farm, attended the common schools when a boy, but later the military academy at Oakland, California, spending eighteen months there. Following this training, he entered the St. Augustine Academy at Benicia, California, from which he graduated with honors in 1883, receiving the silver medal for first honors in the graduating class. His instruction next was received in the Berkeley Gymnasium, at Berkley, and from there he entered the State University of California, where he took one course, and then returned to his home, having had advantages far beyond those of the average young man. Soon after this he was appointed Chief Clerk of the Quartermaster's department at St. Louis, under Captain John W. Pullman, and there he remained for two years.

Returning to his delightful home, our subject then decided to begin an agricultural life, and has since remained on the farm. With his two brothers, mother and sister our subject now lives on one of the farms, consisting of 440 acres, three miles from Walla Walla. Here the young men carry on an extensive farming business and are engaged in the raising of fine horses. They have the Hambletonian and Bellefontaine stock, and own some excellent animals. One, Metropolitan, bought of J. B. Haggin of San Francisco, California, is valued at $5,000. One of the young horses, "Nellie Russell," made a record of 2:29¼ at the fair at Spokane Falls, October 21, 1892. Several others are very promising, but have not been put on the track.

Our subject was married, May 23, 1892, to Miss Minnie Sturm, an accomplished young lady of Walla Walla, where she was born and reared. She is the daughter of Christian and Mary Sturm, the former a native of Germany and the latter of Illinois, now residents of Walla Walla and extensive farmers.

a little later at the Cascades. With his company he walked to the upper Cascades and took the boat to The Dalles and from there he marched with his troop to Fort Walla Walla. He was five years in the army and during his enlistment he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. In the army he saw much real fighting. In 1858 he was in the expedition to Colville, which was in command of Colonel Wright. They encountered the Indians, nearly twelve thousand strong, who opened fire on the troops, and the famous battle of Steptoe was fought. During this battle Captain Taylor was killed. Captain Taylor was wearing a silk sash which he took off and presented to Lieutenant Sturm of whom he was very fond. The sash he always kept in memory of momentous hours of danger and as a sacred memento of a true friendship, and it now hangs in its familiar place in his widow's home. The Indians that fought at Steptoe consisted of the Yakimas, Colvilles, Palouses, Spokanes and Coeur d'Alenes. In this famous battle the troops fortified themselves on Steptoe Butte and how bravely they fought history tells. During the battle many Indians were dispatched and as many as one thousand Indian ponies were killed.

After retiring from the army as lieutenant, acting as assistant quartermaster, First Cavalry United States of America, 1862, at Fort Walla Walla (the same fort that President Wilson ordered used in 1917 for a training camp for the Washington State Field Artillery, under command of Major Paul Weyrauch) the wonderful opportunities of the Inland Empire country made a strong appeal to Mr. Sturm. After spending a year mining at Orofino, Idaho, he returned to Walla Walla and went into the livery business with Fred Kraft. After a short time he disposed of his interest in the livery and engaged in the general merchandise business with O. B. Brechtel for a partner. Their store was one of the first in Walla Walla; it was a headquarters for miners returning from the Orofino placer mines; the miners would deposit their gold dust with Messrs. Sturm and Brechtel for safe keeping, there being no banks at that time in Walla Walla. After remaining in the mercantile business for five years Mr. Sturm bought one hundred and sixty acres of land from H. M. Chase two and one-half miles from Walla Walla and engaged in farming. He acquired another adjoining one hundred and sixty acres; also homesteaded one hundred and sixty and preempted one hundred and sixty; then, in later years, he bought five hundred acres more. He was one of the most successful wheat and stock raisers in the valley.

Mr. Sturm was married in 1865 to Miss Marietta Roff. Four sons and two daughters were born to this union, and two sons and two daughters survive. Mrs. Sturm was born September 12, 1844, a daughter of Frederick Roff. Her girlhood was spent in Illinois, but in 1864 she with her parents left Quincy, that state, and they crossed the plains and mountains, using ox and horse teams, the crossing requiring six months. Many were the hardships they endured. Among others, their oxen got on a "poisoned meadow" and died. During the last part of their journey they traveled with a government train and arrived in Walla Walla, October 16, 1864. Mrs. Sturm's father, Frederick Roff, was perhaps the first man to take up a homestead in the valley, filing on one hundred and sixty acres about two and a half miles east of Walla Walla. He there resided until his death, August 2, 1890. Mrs. Sturm survives her husband and resides at the old Sturm home in Walla Walla. More extended mention in regard to the family of Frederick Roff is made in connection with the sketch of Oliver DeWitt, whose wife is a sister of Mrs. Sturm.

Mr. Sturm, who died on January 11, 1909, was one of the foremost pioneers of the western country. Taking up his abode in the northwest when Walla Walla boasted but a few log buildings and the tributary country was but a wilderness, he was one of those sturdy, upright characters who did his full share to help develop the country and make it the success it is today. At all times public spirited and keenly alive and devoted to the interests of the community he was one of the country's true builders. As one of the distinguished pioneers of the country—as a man who performed many good deeds in his day—his name will always be remembered and ever held in the highest respect.

WILLIAM M. SCOTT.

William M. Scott belonged to that class of honored pioneers who have laid broad and deep the foundation upon which has been built the present prosperity and greatness of the state of Washington. He was a resident of Walla Walla from 1905 until his death and for many years was prominently identified with the wheat industry in Umatilla county, Oregon. He was born in McLean county, Illinois, December 29, 1837, and was a son of John B. and Rena (Halsey) Scott. During his infancy he was taken by his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Halsey, with whom he remained until his ninth year, when his uncle, Dr. A. K. Scott, became his foster father, and with him William M. Scott remained until 1855, when at the age of eighteen years he started out in life independently. He went to Coffey county, Kansas, where he remained for one year and then started to return to Illinois but stopped off in Daviess county, Missouri, and decided to remain. He there continued until 1859, when he again went to Kansas and in 1860 he started across the plains for the western country, his objective point being the Walla Walla valley, of which he had heard much. The lure of the California gold fields, however, drew him as a magnet and his course was diverted. He was one of the party to which J. L. Stubblefield belonged. The company subsequently divided but Mr. Scott and others proceeded to California. After spending several months in that state he came, in 1861, northward and located at McMinnville, Oregon, where he attended college for a time. In 1862 he engaged in freighting with ox teams from Wallula to Lewiston and subsequently from The Dalles to the Idaho mines. In the fall of 1863 he went to Salem, Oregon, where he resided for seven years. He then crossed the mountains, locating near Prineville, where he was engaged in the live stock business for eight years. In 1878 he removed to Umatilla county, Oregon, where he took up a homestead and a timber culture near Helix. One of these claims subsequently sold for two hundred dollars, but later he bought it back for forty-two hundred dollars. He acquired a full section of six hundred and forty acres of the best land in the wheat belt and engaged in farming eight hundred acres, leasing a quarter section adjoining his place. One year he harvested sixty-six bushels of wheat to the acre upon his farm and he averaged from year to year from forty to forty-five bushels. He experienced all the hardships and priva-

members of the Congregational church and they enjoy the high regard of all with whom they have been associated because of the many sterling traits which they display. Mr. Nilsson is a self-made man. He borrowed the money from his brother with which to pay his passage to this country and as the years have gone on he has steadily progressed in a business way until he is today one of the most substantial citizens of Dayton. He has ever been watchful of indications pointing to success and has never feared to venture where favoring opportunity has led the way. He has closely studied the market and the public demand in his line and has ever carried a stock that has been able to meet the needs of the most particular. In all his dealings he is thoroughly reliable as well as progressive and his word is considered as good as any bond solemnized by signature or seal.

OLIVER DEWITT.

On the 4th of July, 1864, Oliver DeWitt arrived in Walla Walla, a young man of twenty years, with twenty-three cents in his pocket, representing his entire capital. Today he is the owner of valuable farming property, from which he derives a gratifying annual rental that supplies him with all of the comforts and many of the luxuries of life. The intervening period was at the outset a struggle for existence but since then, step by step, he has steadily progressed and his record indicates clearly what may be accomplished when there is a will to dare and to do. Never afraid of hard work, he has also displayed sound business judgment in the management of his interests.

Mr. DeWitt was born in Knox county, Ohio, on the 7th of January, 1844, a son of David H. and Rachel (Starner) DeWitt, who removed from Ohio to Iowa in 1850, settling in Mahaska county near Oskaloosa, where they remained until called to their final rest.

Oliver DeWitt had very limited educational opportunities. In fact he is a self-educated as well as self-made man and many of his most valuable lessons have been gleaned from the school of experience. On reaching his twentieth year, in 1864, he decided to leave home and seek his fortune in the far west. Accordingly he bade adieu to friends and family and crossed the plains with an ox team to Boise City, Idaho, and from there made the journey to Walla Walla on foot, arriving as previously stated on the 4th of July, with twenty-three cents as his entire capital. The following day he secured employment with a farmer to pull onions. He worked for wages that fall and winter and in 1865 he engaged in teaming and packing, which business he followed for about ten years. He then became actively engaged in the live stock business, settling four miles northeast of Walla Walla. In 1877 he purchased two hundred and forty acres of land on Dry creek, nine miles northeast of Walla Walla, and taking up his abode upon that place, turned his attention to general farming. He subsequently increased his holdings to four hundred and fifty acres, which he still owns. For the past twenty years or more he has spent the winter seasons in Walla Walla in order to give his children the advantages of the city schools. The summer months were largely spent upon the home farm but for three years he has remained steadily in Walla Walla, renting his farm to others. He belongs to the Farmers Union and is one of the directors of the Farmers Union Warehouse Company.

In May, 1874, Mr. DeWitt was united in marriage to Miss America A. Roff, a daughter of Frederick and Rachael (White) Roff, who crossed the plains with ox teams from Missouri to Washington in 1864, settling in what is now Walla Walla. They made the trip with nine children and were six months and one day en route. On reaching his destination Mr. Roff had but fifty cents in his pocket. However, some of his Masonic brethren came to his assistance and after a short time he had made a good start. Four of his nine children were old enough to work and wages were good, the girls receiving nine dollars per week. The father engaged in farming and with the exception of a year and a half spent in Oregon he made his home continuously in the vicinity of Walla Walla up to the time of his death, which occurred in 1902. He was one of the well known and valued pioneer settlers of this section of the state. His widow survived him for six years, passing away in 1908. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt are the parents of four children, as follows: Ella, who is the wife of Edward Bradbury, of Waitsburg; Harry L., who owns and operates a large ranch near Starbuck in Columbia county; Arthur Clyde, who is engaged in the grain business in Waitsburg; and Elsie D., who gave her hand in marriage to William L. Estes, a farmer of Walla Walla county. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt have also reared a nephew, Charles F. Myers, whose parents died when he was seven years of age and he is now living on the farm.

In politics Mr. DeWitt is a stanch republican, exercising his right of franchise in support of the men and measures of that party. Fraternally he is identified with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, belonging to Washington Lodge, No. 19, and also to the encampment, while both he and his wife are identified with the Rebekahs. Narcissa Lodge, No. 2, presented Mrs. DeWitt with the veteran's jewel, given for long and faithful service in the order. Mr. DeWitt belongs to the Methodist Episcopal church, while his wife holds membership in the Christian church. They are people of genuine personal worth and Mr. DeWitt is ever ready to extend a helping hand to those who need assistance. He comprehends what difficulties mean, having had his own hard knocks. He sympathizes with those whose lot has not been as fortunate as his and yet he does not condone the shirker nor have patience with the shiftless, because his life has been organized along lines that call for a full dole of labor within each turn of the wheel. Because of his industry and perseverance, obstacles and difficulties have vanished before him like mist before the morning sun and step by step he has advanced until he has reached the heights of prosperity.

RUSSELL SCHOOL DISTRICT #49

This school was organized in 1890 and held in a small building no one seems to know where.

In 1895 a new building was constructed on land given to the district by James A. Russell, a pioneer who came to the area in a covered wagon from Coffee County, Kansas in 1878. The school was therefore called the Russell school. A member of that family, Murphy Russell, still lives on the property. One teacher Kathrine Frey married Jack Russell, son of James A., and father of Murphy Russell.

The setting of the school was a very beautiful one, along the Tucannon River with lots of trees and very high hills surrounding it.

The new building was a large one with 12 foot ceilings. It was heated with a large iron stove that burned wood and had a wide strip of tin encircling it. The stove was located in the center of the room. Other buildings on the grounds were a wood shed and barn for horses of those who rode horseback to school and two outhouses.

Teachers usually boarded and roomed with the family nearest to the school.

All the schools in the area went up to Waterman School for programs and dances as that school had a stage and was large enough to accommodate more people.

Margaret (Maggie) Jackson who was 95 years old in 1990 attended Russell School as a child. She says the water supply came from the Tucannon River.

Each day two pupils from the school took the pail and went to the river for water. She and Dewey Donohue would go for water together and sing as they walked along. If they were to have a program Maggie and Dewy would practice the songs they were to sing for the Literary Society. Katie Frey played the organ and taught her pupils to sing.

Winter was lots of fun, the children built barrels staves sleds, and would slide down the many hills in the area. Sometimes they would pack the snow down hard and even pour water on the snow so they would have a smooth surface to skate on. They even did square dances on it. One boy could play the harmonica so as he would play while the rest danced. Sometimes there were enough students to have two or even three sets. Maggie was the caller. They always had a lot of fun.

Some of the teachers who taught there were - Mildred Minnick, Mildred Warner Trump, Carolyn Oliver, Ara Burkhart, Alice Ryan, Mr. Olmstead, Jack griffin, Nelson McGride, Louise Hermes, Mary Flynn, Edna Hogberg, Christine Carter, Kate Hathaway, Mary Bayliss, and Ash Oliver.

Frequently the Indians camped in the area. They fished and hunted and dried the meat and hides which was interesting for the children to see.

Someone tells an story about a teacher, Mr. Shaffer, who had a peg leg. One day he found a snake that a youngster had put in his desk drawer. If frightened him so bad, he fell back and his peg leg flew off. What a surprise for the children.

The school continued until 1943 when it consolidated with Marengo School District. It was then moved to the foot of the Blind Grade by the government trapper Merle Hooshagen who built one more room and used it as a residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Russell

Couple celebrates 55 years together

Mr. and Mrs. Don Russell will be celebrating their 55 years of married life together on March 18.

According to Mrs. Russell a psalm from the 36th chapter and fifth verse, personifies how each feels about their marriage: "Your steadfast love, O Lord, is as great as all heavens. Your faithfulness reaches beyond the clouds. Your justice is as solid as God's mountain. Your decisions are as full of wisdom as the oceans are with water. You are concerned for men and animals alike. How precious is your constant love, O God! All humanity takes refuge in the shadow of your wings."

"It's the whole thing," she said. "That's how we feel."

The Russells were each born and raised in Dayton. They have three sons; Kenneth and his wife Gene live at Richland. He is a school teacher at Hanford. Hubert and Lois Russell live in Dayton. He is a building contractor. Philip and Marilyn live in Walla Walla. He is manager of the Shell fertilizer plant at Clyde. They have eight grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Russell was a painting contractor and owned Russell's Paint Store o Main Street for 20 years. They not during the past 30 years they've done lot of horseback riding in the mour tains and now they walk every da with their dog Rowdy.

Mrs. H. E. Russell 95, Passes Away

Pioneer Woman Had Been Helpless Invalid for Twenty-Two Years.

Mrs. Hannah E. Russell, one of Columbia county's early settlers, passed away Monday night at the Brining hospital, where she had been cared for for some 18 months. She was 95 years old and was probably the oldest resident in Columbia county. Some 22 years ago she was stricken with paralysis, and had been a helpless invalid since, first being cared for by her children for many years and later taken to the hospital. Her husband, the late Miles Russell, a veteran of the Civil war, passed away many years ago.

Mrs. Russell is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jane Owens and Mrs. Ida Monteldo, and four grand children.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel, with the Rev. S. M. Mathes, pastor of the United Brethren church in charge. The deceased had been a member of the United Brethren church for many years.

MISS CYNTHIA RUSSELL

News has been received in Dayton of the death at Medical Lake Sunday morning at nine-thirty o'clock of Miss Cynthia Russell, a well known resident of this city for many years. Funeral services were held at Medical Lake Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock and interment was made at the cemetery in that city.

The deceased was born in Kansas more than 60 years ago, and moved to Iowa with her parents in her early youth. The family moved to Dayton sometime in the eighties and this has since been their home. Much of Miss Russell's life was devoted to the care of her invalid mother, Mrs. Hanna Russell of this city, who survives her. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. J. E. Owens of this city, and Mrs. Montaldo of Medical Lake.

Polly Jane Owens

Mrs. Polly Jane Owens, widow of the late John W. Owens, died at her home in Railroad addition Thursday morning following a brief illness. Funeral services were held from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. Frank Van Doren of the First Christian church in charge.

Polly Jane Russell was born in Pennsylvania February 25, 1860, and moved to Kansas in early childhood. She was married there, and came here with her family about 50 years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. J. M. De Blasio, Yakima, and Mrs. Archie Williams, Dayton, two sons, James Owens, Dayton, and H. C. Williams, Oroville, California, a sister, Mrs. Ida Montaldo, Medical Lake, and several grandchilrren.

Bert Russell Suicides.

Friday forenoon Bert Russell was discharged from the county jail where he had been serving a three months' term for assault. He departed for Walla Walla in the afternoon to visit relatives near College place.

For several weeks Russell has shown signs of being slightly demented, but no serious result was anticipated. Sunday morning his parents received a telegram stating that Bert had committed suicide by cutting his throat. Mr. and Mrs. Russell departed for Walla Walla Sunday forenoon, returning with the remains of their unfortunate son Monday. The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the M. E. church and was largely attended. Bert Russell was well known in the county and was never known to be quarelsome excepting the one time which resulted in his incarceration in the county jail and which finally resulted in his ruin. The parents of the unfortunate young man have the sympathy of the entire community.

More About Russell.

Mr. Russell informs us that he is of the opinion that his son Bert did not commit suicide. He says that Bert jumped through a window and that he cut his throat on the glass. Mr. Russell personally inspected the window and says that a pointed piece of glass sticking up from the bottom of the sash contained blood stains. After Bert was hurt he butted his head against a fence post and then against the house. He was then taken into the house where he wrote several pages of manuscript in which he says that he did not know how it all happened.

to Kansas as a small boy, traveling by wagon train, and in 1884 moved to Washington and settled at Dayton.

It took five months to cross the plains. Russell, Kansas, was founded by an uncle of Grandpa Russell. Russell and Waddell were freighters, and their families were massacred at Russell, Kansas. There were 128 wagons in the train that came across the plains. His family was the only ones reaching Dayton as others left the train at Boise, Walla Walla and various other towns along the route.

The first home was at the head of Payne Hollow. They moved to a homestead north of Dayton close to the New Hope school house on Willow creek. His last schooling was at New Hope school house. There is where he learned to dance and play the fiddle. He has been an old time fiddler for the last 60 years.

During his residence here, Russell operated a plumbing business and was also employed by the city of Dayton for 17 years, at one time being water superintendent. He retired from business several years ago and was active in Columbia County Pioneer association affairs, serving as president at one time.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Bertha Russell; two sons, Harold Russell and Don Russell, Mrs. Wesley Quigg of Dayton, both of Dayton; one daughter, and 18 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Lola Gemmell of Dayton. Two children preceded him in death.

Mrs. Louisa Russell, 101 Years, Called by Death Sun. Morning

Last rites for Mrs. Louisa Russell, 101, oldest resident of Columbia county, were held Tuesday afternoon, March 11, from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Melvin Fenner, pastor of the Congregational church. Interment was in Covello cemetery, near Turner.

Mrs. Russell, who observed her 101st birthday on January 25, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stella Bartels, in Dayton at 1:30 a. m. Sunday, March 9. She had been in ill health for a month preceding her death.

Born in Ohio

Mrs. Russell was born January 25, 1857, in Portsmouth, Ohio, one of seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. John Boldman. She moved from Ohio to Kansas and there married Jim Russell. Two of their four sons were born in Kansas. One boy was five months old and the other was 18 months old when the family made a three months covered wagon trip to southeastern Washington in 1880 and settled near Walla Walla.

Shortly after that Mr. and Mrs. Russell and her parents moved to the Dayton area. The old Boldman place is located at the top of the hill behind the Columbia school house. She and her husband owned a ranch on the Tucannon where they ran sheep.

Home with Daughter

After her husband's death in 1931, Mrs. Russell visited with her children. For the past 21 years, she has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Bartels. Up until six years ago when they moved to Dayton, Mrs. Bartels and Mrs. Russell lived on a farm in the Linville Gulch area of Garfield county near Pomeroy.

For the last three years Mrs. Russell was confined to bed. When she was 96 years of age, she fell and suffered a broken hip. Until her latest illness she was alert and interested in her surroundings.

She is survived by seven children. They are: Ary Russell of Marysville, Mrs. Dora Bartels of Barrhead, Alberta, Canada, Mrs. Avis Ogden of Leavenworth, Mrs. Stella Bartels of Dayton, Mrs. Elmer (Lucy) Fletcher of Dayton, Lowell Russell of Benton, Montana, Mrs. Blanche Parker of Redmond, Oregon; one sister, Mrs. W. R. (Ida) Booth of Opportunity; 27 grandchildren, 45 great grandchildren and ten great-great-grandchildren.

Native Daughter Passes Sunday At Mount Vernon

29 June 1961

Mrs. Pauline E. Knight, 52, a resident of Route 3, Mount Vernon, died Sunday, June 25, following an extended illness. She was born in Dayton on March 13, 1909, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ary Russell.

Private cremation services were held in the Hawthorne Lawns Memorial Park Crematory at Mount Vernon Monday morning, June 26.

Mrs. Knight received her schooling in the Dayton area and was united in marriage to Lawrence J. Knight on March 13, 1930, in Lewiston, Idaho. In 1930 the couple moved to Skagit county and settled in the Bayview vicinity. In 1935 they moved to Route 3 where she had resided since.

She was an active member of the Meadow Grange.

Surviving are her husband, Lawrence, at the family home; one daughter, Mrs. Leota VanWieringen of Seattle; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ary Russell of Marysville; two brothers, Gilbert Russell of Arlington and Hugh Russell of Woodenville; two sisters, Mrs. Marjorie Johnson of Seattle and Mrs. Phillis Rask of Redwood City, Calif.; one grandchild and numerous nieces and nephews.

"EARLY PIONEERS"

My G G G Grandad, Franklin F. Russell and wife Esther, came to Washington by way of Russell, Kansas from Pennsylvania. They arrived here around 1882, with their children, James E. (my G G Grandad), Lola and George.

It took them 5 months to cross the plains. Frnaklin's family were the only ones to reach Dayton.

Their first home was at the head of Payne Hollow. They later moved to a homestead North of Dayton close to the New Hope School. At this site, James Russell, (G G Grandad), learned to dance and play the fiddle. For the last sixty years of his life he was an old time fiddler.

While living in Dayton, James Russell worked at a variety of tasks. He operated his own plumbing shop, worked for the City of Dayton for 17 years, and at one time served as the City Water Superintendent, he also helped get the water and sewer lines laid in Dayton.

After he retired, he was an active member of the Columbia County Pioneer Association, and served as it's president at one time.

In 1895, James E. Russell married Minnie M. Burtchett. They made the Dayton area their home, and reared their family of five children there. The children were born in the original family home, built a little at a time, on Brooklyn Hill, by James. The hill is more commonly known as the Reservoir Hill on Whitman Street.

In 1913-14 they moved to a house on the old McCubbins property on North Cottonwood Street. This was their family home for the rest of their lives.

Floyd Eugene Russell, one of the sons of James E. Russell was my G Grandad.

Time was . . .

Being a collection of information and stories and articles related to the history of Columbia County. Stories of people who contributed to the development of the county . . . and some who didn't. Stories of people who came to stay and a few people who left quickly one night.

But mainly it is a book about the people and the events of Columbia County (coupled with some stories that have been handed down from generation to generation and change with each telling.)

by Jim B. Schick

Ollie Mary Finn (Ryerson) age 20.

Ollie Mary Finn Ryerson
born 1866 in Wisconsin

As told by her granddaughter Iola Ryerson Bramhall

Her life had many generations of people, as she lived to be at least 91. She used to tell us that she was our father and mother all rolled into one. She spoke in cliches quite a bit and quoted poetry, and really stressed learning and that going to school was important.

She was 60 years old when she took us (3 granddaughters) to live with her. (Neil Ryerson, her son, had separated from their mother, so the children went to live with their grandmother.) She came out west because there was a Catholic doctor who was enamored of her and she was very much prejudiced against Catholics because of their treatment of women. She came out west to be a long ways apart, which showed a lot of character and strength that she had courage to come out alone. When she came out on the train, she came with Mrs. Ina Broughton . . . they rode out together, and were always good friends. Grandpa Ryerson owned a drug store. He saw her go by one day and said, "That's the girl I'm going to marry."

When he bought the Aurora Orchards, Neil was in the 8th grade, they moved out into the valley. When we came down here, I think we were packed into the back of the truck in bed. All three of us didn't think anything about it, we just lay there and looked up at the sky, as it was dark. My little sister can't remember anything about it except that she woke up in a strange bed. We had been living in Kettle Falls.

One time, when we were in our granddad's truck on our way to Kettle Falls by way of Central Ferry, the truck wouldn't make it up the steep grade and started back down into the water and we were terrified in the back of the truck. There was a cowboy nearby who roped the truck and helped to pull it up the grade.

Grandma would tell us stories after we got to the ranch. She would fall asleep in the middle of them and we would wake her to finish. No wonder she was so tired and exhausted taking on three lively children to raise. She never nagged us, no matter what we did. She just let us roam, and I don't remember her ever warning us about anything. We were brought up by the Touchet River and if we hadn't been so timid, we would probably have been drowned. We were never lonesome as we had each other to play with. We had a happy time.

When I was 6½, I started school, walked to school, which was 2 miles. I don't remember getting any rides. Nobody took kids to school or gave them rides, we were expected to walk. The next year, she started my little sister age 5½, and she was really pretty young to walk 2 miles. One day we stopped to eat our sandwiches at Baileysburg and we were all covered with jelly and were late for school.

Later when we moved to town, we lived two houses from the primary school on Fourth Street. One afternoon, I went home, and grandma always had a big meal ready for us at noon, and afterwards, I just sat on the steps daydreaming. She just let me dream, didn't tell me to go to school, until I finally was late for school. I was so embarrassed, but it was a good lesson because I never did it again. From then on, I was very concious of time. That was her method—you just took the consequences of your deeds.

When we lived in town, she had an olive green, woolen bathing suit, and it was below her knees. She would put on an old bathrobe and some stiff and ugly wading shoes and we would walk about three blocks down the street over to the river. She didn't know how to swim but she would go in with us and hang onto a branch and bob up and down in the water. She never cared what the neighbors thought, but would take us swimming a lot. I learned to swim when I was 6. This is where Babe, our aunt, entered into it. She really paid a lot of attention to us. She had a lot of compassion, a big heart. She pittied the "three little birds," which was what Vera Conrad Hoskins called us. She and Babe were going to school at that time.

Grandpa Ryerson had an old car called a Cole, a black touring car with open sides and two bumper seats behind the front seat, where the little girls sat. He was a terrible driver. One time we were coming along the road from the ranch where there was a real steep bank. Lawana and I were with him. He took his hands off the wheel and started to light a cigar. The car swerved and started to head for the bank, and I grabbed the wheel and saved our lives. He liked to show off with the car. Everytime we passed that spot I always had a scared feeling and it wasn't until I was older that I connected it with the driving incident. Grandma never knew a thing about it. After we moved to town, we would often walk out to the orchard to play, because the woods were so pretty. We even lit fires, so it is a wonder we didn't burn down the orchard.

Grandpa's driving was notorious. One time, Babe and Mabel Rinker were going on a trip with him and they made out their wills before they left.

When we lived in town, grandma walked everywhere. We would be downtown, people would offer us a ride, and she would always say, "No, thank you! We'll walk!" Then she would take us by the arm and we wouldn't be able to keep in step with her, so we would be mad about it.

One time, we jumped in through the kitchen window and broke her nice dishes and it almost made her cry. So when we went to Sunday School, Lawana and I would change our nickels into pennies, and then we would put a penny into the offering plate, every Sunday, until we had saved up enough money to go down and buy her a creamer and sugar bowl of yellow glass (depression glass). We gave it to her as a present. We had robbed the Sunday School, but she just laughed and laughed and thought it was funny. She liked it.

I was sick a lot when I was little. I would have coughing spells at night. She had to get up with me a lot. She would fire up and make me hot milk and crackers, and put on my chest a plaster of turpentine and lard. Turpentine was the cure-all for everything. It would burn, but it felt good and warm. I would stop coughing. It amazed me that she would get up at night to fix me up.

Grandma had a dust mop, which was called the devilish dusting stick. The stick had a split end, where you could put a dust cloth and reach under the piano. One time she took after Muriel with this stick and gave her a swat with it. The stick opened up and pinched her flesh, and left big welts which didn't go away for a long time. She never used that stick again. But she would take the end of it and snap it, and we would really jump to attention. She never used it on Lawana or me . . . in fact, I never remember getting a spanking.

Grandma always had the Louisa May Alcott books around for us to read. She kept the good books, which would build good moral character. We could all read well.

Lawana and I battled with Muriel. It was very hard on Muriel when we moved into town, because she preferred the country life where she could ride horses and be outside. One day when grandma wasn't there, we locked her out. So she took a brace and bit and bore a hole in the back door. It scared us to death and we thought we would be in trouble, but when grandma got there, she didn't say a thing. Somehow, it was all repaired.

Grandma walked everywhere. She usually had a basket on her arm. She had gone to get some eggs from a neighbor and it was icy. Somehow she slipped and fell, and she was so tickled at herself, because she held the basket of eggs up and not a one broke. She thought it was a big joke.

My sister, Lawana, was a perfectionist. She fussed about things. I can't remember what it was now, but there was something she really wanted. She couldn't have it, and was pouting over it when grandma started to sing a song, "Poor little country girl, she has never seen the streets of Cairo. Poor little country girl."

Grandma could be very frustrating. She had a sharp tongue. There was a generation gap, and I'm sure she didn't always understand us. We would be reading and be really entranced in reading when she would come in and turn the lights off at 9:00 sharp. That was the time to go to bed.

Grandma gave us almost complete freedom when we were growing up. We didn't cause any trouble. But when we got to be teenagers, she started to warn us about living a pure life. There was one gorgeous female she held up as a bad example, and she was brought up continuously. "Do not do the way she does!!" She let us go to the school dances but not public dances. She wouldn't let us work out. She knew that money would give us independence and she wanted to keep us under control. She wouldn't let us go out and pick apples but she found plenty for us to do on the farm or in the house.

My sister, Lawana, had started school at 5, and at first she was very far behind the other kids. Her teacher was Mabel Rinker. Mr. Nelson wanted to hold her back, but grandma wasn't going to let that happen, so every night she would hold Lawana on her lap and tutored her to bring her up, and she did it, too. Lawana became valedictorian of her class.

We helped with the washing, hanging out the clothes and chores. She would fold all the towels and put them on the chair, and then we would sit on them when we ate to press them. We irrigated, picked up rocks, because there was a lot of work in the big orchard. She would take a jar of brown liquid, probably Black Leaf 40 poison, and dilute it with water and then she would put the tips of the little apple trees in it. She had a big garden and canned a lot. She would take clothes which people would give us, and make them over into clothes for us . . . and she did a beautiful job. She was a worker.

Little boys really liked Grandma Ryerson. In later years, they would tell how they remembered Grandma Ryerson.

Many people would come up to her and tell her what a fine job she was doing in raising her granddaughters. Also, they would come up to us and tell us what a fine job she was doing. We were well-liked by older people.

One incident was about Babe. She said some nasty words and grandma peppered her tongue. She said, "Yum, yum, good!" Babe wasn't going to admit to any punishment. Babe was in her 20's when we came to live with the. She would come to get us to have a ride in the mountains. Let us ride on the fenders of her milk delivery truck. In the winter, she would tie our sleds behind her truck and give us rides all over town. One time, she brought us two little baby goats. We let them in the house and the first thing they did was make a mess. So, out they went and got sick and died. She was always bringing us animals. Sheep and a pig. She was always the one who gave us haircuts. And she would cut it so short about our ears that we hated it. She saw to it that we had piano lessons and had grandpa buy a piano. I can play about the 4th year of music. We had only about 2½ years, but we had enough to appreciate music.

Babe would take us down to Minnie Moe's ice cream parlor for chocolate sodas. She was really neat.

When we were older, we rolled up snowballs and the snow was just right to be compact so we could mold it. We took it into the woodshed and started carving it. We did a nice job with a head, the neck, shoulders and the body. Then we made two snowballs to put on the front and were busy shaping them up right well, when who should drive into the driveway but Babe. When we saw her coming, we took a knife and went whoosh and made our lady flat-chested. She came up to it and said, "That's really good! But she sure has a flat chest." Then we giggled and confessed to what we had done.

Babe always spent Christmas with us and she felt so bad because we didn't have much in the way of presents. One year, she managed to have two little doll buggies wheeled in for us. Then we felt sorry for her because she never got anything at our house.

When I was 18, I went to work for her, and she taught me how to drive. She let me have her car to drive. I wasn't a good driver. Once I didn't get the clutch in or something and ran into the barn out at Bramhall's place. One time a spider came down and scared me so I ran into the ditch. I told her that I had done these things, but she was most generous. She had a big heart and was always mothering us. She did the fun things which grandma couldn't do.

About this time, Babe decided that she would give me cigarettes. I had such weak lungs that I would just cough and cough. So I was lucky I didn't become addicted. She was all for anything wild.

Babe would always take us horseback riding. At the ranch, we had a neat little sorrel called "Old Fay" and we got to ride her. She had such a nice disposition. We loved horses.

One year, Babe won the state championship in bridge. Babe had a great appreciation of music and took me to the ballet. She knew good food. She had a boarding house near the school where she cooked for many people. Doctor Day ate there. Both she and grandma were gourmet cooks.

Often, we had Yorkshire pudding. One time in school, I had the gall to tell a teacher at school who was describing a plum pudding with flaming brandy, and called it Yorkshire pudding, that was no Yorkshire pudding. Nobody in the class knew anything about Yorkshire pudding but me. We had a background of understanding good food.
