

In June, Davy Kirby got married, and Lilla fell in the well. A boy got drowned, and a wife peddler drowned by Prohibition. was voted in on June 28, 1888, "Thank the Blessed Father in Heaven," Lavinia wrote.

As the months and seasons rolled by, assorted family members gathered cheerfully, bought sugar by the barrel, dried ginseng, canned blackberries and blackberries, attended funerals, weddings, baptisms and preachings, picked peaches and pears, raised wheat, played on the hoe, planted peas and put up hay.

On Jan 1, 1888, they watched wondrously an eclipse of the sun and, on Jan 16, an eclipse of the moon. "Old father Berry and old Mother Blake" married on Feb 19. In May they went to a picnic.

Lavinia briefly noted on June 6, 1888, that "Beattie burnt (sic) up." That month Jeremy and the boys went to a camp meeting, and a baby and two little girls in the settlement died. Young babies were common in Lavinia's time.

In July, the babies went to the lineworks, in August the babies boys headed ladder and, in October, George narrowed. Vance broke his leg in November, and, in January 1889, some children contracted scarlet fever. That month the girls "got a good hold on almost everybody."

Between the busy recorded births, deaths and weddings, Lavinia drops glimpses of typical early day family life. They grew just about everything they ate. They went to church and made their own clothing and their own tea. Although they work as from first light until the sun slipped over the hill, they found time to visit a sick neighbor. And the welcome mat at the hallway was always out.

Ray Lowery, his wife Doris, and Priscilla Lowery all from Alabama were in Dayton visiting their mother, Evelyn Bender Lowery. Ray and Priscilla are great-great grandchildren of the Bailey Family that had the furniture manufacturing business in Dayton. They were enjoying their tour of the depot and taking pictures of the Baileysburg Furniture the depot has on display. Ray and Priscilla lived in Dayton until 1948. This was Priscilla's first time back since then.

Marjolaine Folsom
Bailey

Marjolaine Folsom Bailey, age 83 years, of Escondido, California, died March 13, 2003, at the Redwood Terrace Health Center in Escondido. Graveside services were held Wednesday, March 19, 2003, at the Dayton City Cemetery in Dayton, Washington.

Marjolaine was born February 10, 1920, in Wenatchee, WA. Her parents were Claude and Alice Baker Folsom. She graduated from Washington State College with a degree in speech and drama and taught first grade for many years.

On December 24, 1942, she married David Paul Bailey in a ceremony held in Chicago, Illinois. Mr. Bailey was a Waitsburg boy and was in the service when they were married. After his discharge they made their home in California. He died on September 11, 1990.

Mrs. Bailey is survived by a daughter, Susan Blunt of Escondido, CA; two sons: David Paul Bailey, Jr. of Danbury, Connecticut, and Mark Davis Bailey of Ft. Collins, Colorado; and 13 grandchildren.

As will of course be easily seen, the diary of Mrs. C. B. ("Aunt Lucy") Ide, the only contemporaneous document in existence, which is now in the keeping of the Wisconsin State Historical Society, has been used as the basis of this narrative. To this account I have added such supplementary incidents from my own personal recollections as seem to me to add interest and historical value to the story.

Geo. B. Baker.

September 14, 1933

Fifty-five years ago today a wagon train that left Mondovi, Wisconsin, on May 1, 1878, arrived in Dayton, Washington Ter., and went into camp on the banks of the Touchet River, in a cottonwood grove about 100 yards below where the present Main street bridge is located.

As has often been stated there were forty-two persons in this party when it left Mondovi, but I have yet to see in print the statement that it eventually arrived in Washington Territory forty-three strong, the party having been augmented en route by the advent of Gifford, Jr., the son of Mr. & Mrs. John Gifford, who was born on August 2nd at the foot of the Wasatch Mountains in Utah.

The wagons and harness in our train were new and never were better matched teams found anywhere, most of the teams weighing from 1500 to 1600 pounds per horse. Six or seven members of the party had been members of the choir of the Baptist Church in Mondovi, so we never lacked for music.

On our third night out, at Winona, Minnesota, where we crossed the Mississippi River, there was wind and rain and some snow and we were permitted to camp in the Fair ground enclosure and put our horses in the barns; a few of the party later going to the hotel for the night.

May 4th Snow and wind, so we went only five miles, camping in a pasture with a barn for the horses, after which the weather cleared. The next day being Sunday we remained in camp, as we had decided to make Sunday a necessary day of rest for both ourselves and horses.

May 6th We started in the rain and journeyed through a nice farming country for the next three days, camping on the night of the 8th at the Eager farm belonging to a brother of Luther Eager, which was a little touch of home, especially for the women of the party. During the next two days we travelled about forty-five miles, taking us into Iowa on May 10th. It rained and the roads were memorably muddy all the way across Iowa, and no one who has never been on a wagon train, with wagon after wagon stuck in the mud, can appreciate what that meant. Travelling thru the state we passed thru Mason City, Clear Lake and Fort Dodge, which was then a nice little city of 6,000 people, with beautiful buildings.

May 17th Needless to say there were no highway signs in those days and small choice as to which roads to take. Leaving

Fort Dodge we took the wrong road and had to turn back, finally camping 6 miles from our starting point. Here we had the hardest thunder and rain storm to date, which soaked everything in the wagons thru and thru, including, please note, the beds. According to Aunt Lucy Ide, as Mrs. C. B. Ide was affectionately called by all, she was blue when she saw the condition of her own wagon but cheered when she found everybody else also had a wet bed, and her sunny disposition got and made a lot of fun out of the incident.

May 20th We saw our first hill in the State of Iowa and, again according to Aunt Lucy Ide, were so thrilled we felt like kissing it. From there on we had continual rain and mud until the 24th, when we stopped for supplies at Dunlap, a little town remembered for its fine churches and nice residences.

The night of the 25th we camped near Woodbine, and the next night camped on the banks of the Boyer river, which stream we followed all the way to Council Bluffs without much incident. We were thus 15 days crossing the then muddy state of Iowa.

May 28th We crossed the muddy looking Missouri River in box cars over a railroad bridge, into Omaha, Nebraska, where we got our first mail and news from home. According to the diary of Aunt Lucy Ide it was there we had oysters, lobsters, etc. on our menu, giving quite an "Oscar-of-the-Waldorf" effect, which must not be taken as indication of our daily fare, but which made a real bat of our Omaha stay.

May 30th In the evening we camped thirteen miles from Fremont on the banks of the Platte river. Scarcely had we set up our tents when a sudden wind and rain storm flattened them into so many wet and sodden heaps. It was all in the day's work to set the cold and flopping shelters/^{up}again and occupy them.

May 31st We again camped on the Platte, a wide, muddy looking river, flowing thru the dead level plains of Nebraska.

June 1st We camped a little way from the town of Columbus, where the time changed for the first time. At this point we had another experience with a thunder and lightning storm, tents being blown down around our heads before we had finished raising them. While there we had many callers urging us to settle. Some even tried to discourage us by telling us that we couldn't go on because of the hostile Indians.

Sunday, June 2nd About a dozen of the younger members of the party decided to attend church at Columbus, dolling up in their best bib and tucker for the occasion. Arriving at the church we heard the singing, and remarked: "we are just in time"; so we marched in and up to the amen corner, but when the singing ceased and we prepared to sit down the minister pronounced the benediction. The congregation smiled broadly; The minister coming from the pulpit to greet us, also with a smile, remarked: "Well, anyway you showed your good intentions." He knew the change in time was the reason for our tardiness. At his invitation we sat down and visited with him, finding him a regular fellow; so we claimed we had a better time than if we had been in time for the service.

June 5th Travelled 22 miles, going into camp at Grand Island. Some of the party considered looking for land in this good looking country, but decided to continue on with the wagons.

June 9th Saw our first elk on the prairie. Went into camp near the town of Kearney. Sunday 10th attended the church to hear Elder Morse, a brother of our old pastor in Mondovi.

June 11th E. B. Gifford went out hunting jack-rabbits, and in taking a shot at a rabbit the bullet struck the ground, ricocheted and struck a beef steer, breaking its leg -- and maybe he wasn't joshed by the crowd! When we went into camp that forenoon at Plum Creek, Gifford was arrested by the Sheriff, who turned out to be a brother of Roll Smith of Durand, Wisconsin, an old time acquaintance of Gifford's. He took us all thru the jail and courthouse. Gifford finally paid a $12.50 fine, and we had lots of beef instead of jack-rabbit maybe.

June 13th One of Gifford's horses died. We went into camp on the banks of a little creek for dinner, a beautiful camp ground, and discussed spending the night there, but the gathering storm clouds loomed so black and heavy that we decided to move to higher ground a quarter of a mile distant. Moving there we chained the wagons together and staked the tents down as firmly as possible. Such thunder, lightning, wind and rain as we had not had theretofore, broke over us. We waited the night thru supperless. The horses were terrified. Had we not moved our camp we would have been washed away into the river by a cloudburst, which struck the lovely spot where we had stopped that noon and washed away the railway bridge just below. As we started on our journey next morning we counted 24 telegraph poles and 4 dead horses all struck by lightning.

June 15th We camped 5 miles from North Platte; bridge washed away.

June 16th A stray pony came into our camp today which proved to belong to Buffalo Bill! A train of ten wagons camped near us containing about the toughest looking lot of people we had ever seen. We and they fixed the bridge so that we could get the wagons over, and camped for the night opposite a big ranch owned by the celebrated Buffalo Bill. We were told there were 149 different varieties of grass in the Platte River Valley, and we saw a great many different kinds of cactus with blossoms as large as dahlias; also many varieties of other beautiful flowers.

June 19th We saw vast herds of cattle around the town of Ogalalla. They told us there were 75,000 head of cattle just driven up from Texas, herded by Texans and Mexicans, each with a broad-brimmed hat, couple of revolvers and a bowie knife making them look very formidable. Each also had a whip with a short handle and a lash 20 feet long. They shoot at each other on the slightest provocation, and shooting scrapes were frequent.

June 20th Still nothing but cattle and ponies as far as we could see in any direction. We should soon be crossing into Wyoming.

June 24th Cushman Hunter came up from Cheyenne with the mail and we had another feast of news from friends at home. A bright spot in the monotony and loneliness of this far away prairie country.

June 25th At noon we took our dinner on a point of rocks on which Kit Carson had carved his name. Many other names were also carved there. In the afternoon Mrs. Nettie Christian was taken sick and we were obliged to camp early.

June 27th While at dinner we saw a covered wagon coming toward us. In it was Mr. James Hunter, who had taken his ailing wife out to Cheyenne by railroad previously and stayed there with her at his brother's home. We were very glad to see him, and he to see his children, who were with us. He took his daughters back with him into Cheyenne to see their mother. That afternoon Mrs. Henry Hunter suddenly became quite ill, and two doctors were summoned from Cheyenne, who said she could not live until morning; but we continued on into Cheyenne the next day where we remained for several days. Mrs. Hunter was then 43 years old, and she lived to be 93.

June 28th Arrived in Cheyenne and made camp just on the edge of town.

June 30th Sunday, -- While we were camped in Cheyenne we saw an interesting thing happen. Near us some freighters were camped and while we with much curiosity were examining their freight wagons, a heavily armed man rode into camp on a good looking pony. He wore a carbine and six-shooter on his saddle and a six-shooter and guard knife on his belt. He, too, was apparently ~~was~~ much interested in the freighters' wagons, when two other men arrived, dressed in black frock coats, white shirts, etc. and with a general professional air. They also walked thru camp and discussed with each other the wonderful freight wagons. Finally one of them addressed the heavily armed fellow, who turned to him to answer a question. At that instant the second man asked him a question and when the heavily armed fellow turned to answer him he found himself looking into the muzzle of a six-shooter and heard the command: "Stick 'em up," which he immediately did. These two men then disarmed him, showed him their badges as officers, hand-cuffed and put an Oregon boot on him, put him in a hack and took him off to jail. It seemed he was wanted for killing a man about 100 miles from Cheyenne.

July 2nd Started on our way at 9:00 o'clock, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hunter. The Chaplain from Fort Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunter of Cheyenne went with us five miles of the way where they bade us goodbye, and we started on our way over the Rockies. We camped for the night at Cheyenne Pass.

July 3rd We were slowly ascending the mountain and the beauty and grandeur of the rugged peaks, deep canyons and beautiful flowers were beyond description, but never to be forgotten. Where we camped for dinner wild strawberry blossoms were found just a few feet from great banks of snow. That afternoon we reached Laramie City, about 50 miles from Cheyenne, where we camped for the night.

July 4, 1878 Seemed very little like the nation's birthday, altho the cannon at Fort Laramie announced the fact in the morning. We decided to go by Bridger's Pass. Started at 1:00 P.M., and heard celebration cannonading at Fort Sander all the time.

Drove 22 miles and camped near the Little Laramie River.

July 5th Had to cross the river at this point, but found the toll bridge would be quite an expense for us so, led by a man who had been driving along with our train for a few days, we attempted to ford the river. This man was driving six mules and two wagons tandem. He crossed first and then as each wagon reached the opposite side he hitched his mules on in front of our horses and pulled the wagons up the bank. Just as the wagons started across, the owner of the toll-bridge rushed upstream and began throwing railroad ties into the river, hoping to foul the wagons and horses and stop our crossing. Mr. Gardner seized his gun and rushed over and threatened him, succeeding in stopping him from throwing the ties in, and we were able to get across and continue on our way.

July 6th Crossed a spur of the mountains and got on one of the worst pieces of road encountered on the whole trip. At times it took five or six men to keep the wagons right side up. At the foot of the hill we came to Rock Creek, and had to pay 50¢ a team to cross.

July 8th Another toll bridge, and we were asked 50¢ a team. The water was not deep, but running swiftly, and on saying we were not going to pay, we were treated to another deluge of railroad ties. However, some of the men went upstream with poles and held the ties back until the wagons were forded safely over.

July 12th Passed thru Bridger's Pass. This was a sand mountain standing between two green clad mountains. It looked more like a splendid picture than reality.

July 12th We came to another toll bridge asking 50¢ a team. This bridge was built over the old ford, so after going out and threatening to tear the bridge up and go over, we were allowed to pass for 10¢ a team.

July 13th Started at the usual time. Our Dakota friends with the mule team left us there and headed for California. In the afternoon we had the hardest experience of the whole trip. We came to Bitter Creek, reputedly a poison stream. We were told not to stop there nor use the water for ourselves or horses, so we had to travel on all night long; a beautiful moonlight night. One of the horses got loose and drank his fill, with no ill effects. This was a gloomy mountain road thru deep cliffs, with towering rocks and little valleys with great beds of alkali.

July 14th All very tired, and so were the teams after the all-night drive. It was Sunday and we rested. During the previous afternoon and night we had travelled over 50 miles. Near us camped a company of Princeton, New Jersey, college students, hunting minerals, petrified wood, fossils, etc. We went down to see their collection. It seemed so strange to meet refined and cultivated people away out there hundreds of miles in the Rockies. In the evening these students came up to Henry Hunter's camp and sang college songs, and then we all joined in singing some of the Moody and Sankey songs.

It was probably a long time before the Rocky Mountains echoed again to the voices of so many good singers together.

July 15th Going thru deep canyons, past rugged rocks, we travelled 18 miles before camping, but stopped on the way at a cave large enough to hold a couple of hundred persons, where we carved our names as many had done before.

July 17th We came to Goose Creek, in which they had put a lot of boulders to make fording impossible, and where there was a very swift current. There was a toll bridge there with a gate locked with heavy chains and a padlock which they would not open unless we gave them $10.00 a wagon. Our captain, Clint Gardner, offered $10.00 to pass all the teams over, and said if they refused he would cut the gate open and cross free. The man at the gate then called his two companions from a log hut about 100 yards distant, each of whom was wearing a six-shooter, and they threatened to fill us with lead if we attempted to cut the gate, but there was no bluffing our captain. He told Will Allen, who was on the first wagon, to get the saw and when these men made another threat to shoot, Gardner told them he was a damn good shot himself. After the saw was raked across the gate they then offered to let us pass for the $10.00, but Gardner said "no", he had "been put to $10.00 worth of trouble and delay" and now we were "going to cross free", which we did and camped on the opposite bank for dinner. Eleven miles further along as we were making camp, a mule deer was scared out of the brush, running right through the camp.

Clint Gardner, our captain, leveled his Maynard rifle on it and we had venison for several days. He was a wonderful shot at moving objects - the best I ever saw, and our camp was greatly indebted to him for many a supply of fresh meat and game.

He proved to be a wise and capable leader of the Company. In the next two or three days several attempts were made to steal some of our horses, which attempts we charged to the men at the toll bridge.

July 18th Rough mountain roads, and we came in sight of the railroad again. Passed the Devil's Teapot and other noted rocks; reached town of Green River about 6:00 o'clock, the first town we had seen since leaving Laramie nearly 500 miles away. This day closed sadly for us. Two teams from Utah joined our company. With them were father, brother, husband, wife and baby boy going to Colorado for the lady's health, but as they came up the mountain she began to fail and when we met them we advised them to get her back home if possible, as she was scarcely able to breathe the light air of the mountains, so they overtook us on their return, they crossing Green River, we camping on the East side as we wanted to get supplies before we went on. They had crossed and just turned their horses loose when they perceived the lady was dying. She breathed a few times and was gone. They came over to tell us she was dead, so we advised them to hitch up their teams and come over to us, where we would do all we could for them. This lady had no woman with her, but the men did all they could and seemed almost heartbroken; the little child was only 8 months old, but the men cared for it as nicely as a woman could. It was afraid of us so we could not do much for it. Lucinda Hessler and Mrs. Henry Hunter washed and dressed the corpse, who looked as if she had been sick for a long time. Aunt Lucy Ide went to her trunks and from a large choice got out a suit of clothing beautifully made and laid by itself especially for just this occasion she thought. It so impressed her that she took it and put it on the corpse and the men went to town and purchased a coffin in which the remains were gently placed. We felt very sad as we lay camped by the river bank, with this strange lady lying dead and dressed for burial in a covered wagon a few steps away.

July 19th Stayed with these people to help bury their dead. A good many people came from town and she was buried in the cemetery which lies at the base of the mountain, the Green River rushing by in the distance.

July 20th Got our supplies and started on our way. Forded the Green River, which was rightly named as the water is a clear beautiful green, quite deep and quite wide. Had good luck all day.

July 21st Sunday, -- Obligated to travel all day as there was no feed.

July 25th Reached Evanston, Wyoming; good live town, lots of Chinese there.

July 26th At Echo Canyon. Beautiful scenery, 29 miles thru and down-grade all the way, with high peaks on either side. Railway side by side with the road, sometimes not more than six feet away; lovely camp in a natural glen, We could see the sun only two or three hours at mid day.

One of the horses got mixed up in Jim Hunter's tent rope and in getting away took half the tent with him. Mr. Hunter was sure it could not be fixed, but Aunt Lucy Ide and Elma Hunter got their sewing kits and fixed it so it was just as good as ever.

July 27th Stopped within five miles of the mouth of the canyon and camped over Sunday.

July 29th Eclipse of sun today. Arrived at a little town at mouth of canyon called Echo City.

July 30th We passed thru Weber Canyon, the scenery in which surpassed everything, no matter how magnificent, we had seen before. It was the wildest scene, with a place described as the Devil's Gate, one solid mass^{of} rock towering hundreds of feet above us, and the other side down hundreds of feet, with the Weber River rushing madly along over great boulders, one seething mass of foam. Such was the roaring in this deep canyon we could hardly hear ourselves speak. The road was just wide enough for a wagon, and barely that in places. We all walked while passing thru this Devil's Gate. We then came to the Devil's Slide; two parallel walls of granite down the mountain side, only about three feet apart.

July 31st Arrived at Ogden about noon. Camped three miles out in order to get pasture for our team.

August 2nd Saw the arrival of a new member of our company, when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Gifford as we camped at the foot of the Wasatch Mountains. Went into Ogden and saw a city of beautiful gardens with fruit and shade trees, but the dejected, degraded looking women would condemn the Mormon doctrine if there was nothing else. We had a cordial invitation to attend the services at the Tabernacle, which we had to refuse because of the excessive heat.

August 5th On our way again with mother and new baby doing very well. Went 18 miles and camped in a very nice place.

August 6th Left at 7:00 A.M. Went out to see a boiling spring. Here there were two springs side by side, one so hot you could hardly bear your hand in it and the other one very cold. The water was salty and there was salt lying on the ground. We washed in the hot spring and drank of it and went on in a short time, coming to a place called Corinne where we stopped for the night. It was a Gentile town and looked very dilapidated and poor as did all Gentile towns thru that Mormon country.

August 7th This town was being deserted on account of hostile Indians, with the exception of one saloon keeper who refused to leave, asserting that no ---- redskin could scare him out. The few remaining inhabitants told us that we could go no further as the Indians were burning dwellings, destroying property and murdering people beyond there. Our party divided, some wanting to turn back and others wanting to go on. A decision was reached and we moved on, going 12 miles to camp.

August 8th Traveled in dust.

August 9th Traveled 12 miles. Stopped at the ranch of a man named Dilly, who had two wives; one looking quite smart and intelligent and the other very dull and inferior.

August 10th Remained in camp until noon and set tires on some of the wagons. In the afternoon traveled 15 miles and camped on a ranch at a place called The Sink.

August 11th Altho it was Sunday it was deemed advisable to travel all day because of the short distances being made daily.

August 12th At another ranch; one of the Eager horses tired out yesterday. They traded it off for a pair of ponies and left some of their load at that ranch.

August 13th Reached Marsh Basin. Landlord at this hotel offered some of our girls $7.00 per week to stop and work for him but they decided to go on with the train.

August 16th Camped at Rock Creek, a very pretty little stream, a welcome relief from the sagebrush and dust thru which we had driven day after day.

August 17th Traveled 18 miles to Mud Creek. We were now right in the Indian country, where so many depredations had been committed.

August 18th Stopped over Sunday at Stage Station. We were now on a stage road.

August 19th Crossed Snake River on a ferry. Stopped at another stage station where fortifications had been thrown up, windows barred, ditch dug, etc. in preparation for Indian attack, as Indians had robbed the stage in this section many times. Still we saw none. At this point, Mrs. Ide and Elma Hunter climbed a difficult rocky slope of about 100 feet to see the source of a very beautiful waterfall. They found a shallow pool like a little lake, in which there were at least a dozen fountain-like jets shooting up, about three or four feet in the air. They explored the pool but were afraid to go too near to the edge of the falls. A stop was made at Miladd River, a great curiosity, which was a swift stream running thru a gorge 300 feet deep in places. The sides of the gorge were perpendicular, and at times no wider across the top than a few feet. Lucinda Hessler and Mrs. Ide sat one on each side of these perpendicular walls and could have touched hands across the gap if they had not been afraid of venturing too close to the edge. It was an ugly looking place in which the water fell a great distance out of sight, and then came up over the rocks, only to disappear again. Camped at Miladd River stage station and saw Mr. Buck, who came in on the stage from Wisconsin.

August 20th Started at 7:00 A.M. and met a wagon train of soldiers, who threw us a hardtack; they were Indian fighters and scouts, who told us that the Indians were camped about a mile from there and that a troop of cavalry was camped about a mile from the Indians. We drove about 18 miles and camped.

August 21st Drove 11 miles and camped at the foot of King's Hill at the stage station for dinner. It was here that we saw some horsemen in the distance driving a band of horses, but could not distinguish whether they were Whites or Indians. We learned from the agent, who crawled out of the brush with an armload of guns, that his station had been raided by the Indians, who were on the warpath, and all the relay horses had been driven off, so that when the noon stage stopped for fresh horses there was none to make the change. We left about 1:00 P.M. over King's Hill, which was surely a hill -- 4 miles long, over which most of us walked. We stopped two hours later and camped for the night in a draw, but made no fires. About 8:00 o'clock we learned that the Indians were camped about a mile from us in the same draw, and 2 hours later we moved over into the next draw. Early in the morning the Indians came up the draw in which we had been camped, rounded the head of the draw in which we were camped and rode back to the road thru a third draw, thus missing us. In passing thru the third draw they came on a man and his family who were camped there; they ran them away from their wagon and took their four horses, leaving everything else intact. When we came along the road the next morning, this man, his wife and three children were in a little stone hut, which had been built with loopholes for guns by someone for protection from the Indians. We loaned this man four of our horses and he drove along with us to the next stage station, where he bought four ponies and then continued with us until we reached Walla Walla.

August 23rd Went 22 miles; did not camp until long after dark, then used an old camp that soldiers had occupied. Rather long faces, as it was very dark, and after supper we lay down in uncertainty as to whether we might be attacked before dawn.

August 24th Cheered up by daylight we moved on within two miles of Boise City, where we stopped at a ranch owned by J. F. Walling, who had come there 31 years ago with oxen. He sold some of his oxen for beef to General Fremont's perishing soldiers, thus saving their lives.

August 25th Enjoyed stopping over at Walling's ranch very much. The women especially enjoying the privilege of sitting in a rocking chair. Mr. Chase, whom some had known in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, and who was now the Marshal of Idaho, called to see us.

August 26th Started for Boise bright and early; found it quite a nice place. Some of the party discussed stopping there as good wages were offered. The Ide family took their wagons out of the train, as also did the Eager family and Lena Hunter, but in a short time Gifford went back and said to the Ides: "you are not going to stop, come along to the store and get your supplies" which they were only too glad to do and rejoined us. The Eagers and Lena Hunter stopped as they had planned. While in Boise we saw the cavalry come in from fighting the Indians and they looked as though they had seen hard work.

- August 28th Traveling thru beautiful country -- prosperous, with good gardens and orchards.
- August 29th Came to Snake River and crossed for the second time. We were now in Oregon.
- August 31st Traveled as far as McDonald's ranch and camped there for dinner. Got fresh beef there and saw cattle branded for the first time.
- September 1st Sunday - Stopped over, as we were exactly where the Indians had been raiding, and stealing horses and cattle.
- September 2nd Down to Willow Creek and camped in Canyon.
- September 3rd Crossed Willow Creek Mountains and camped at the foot of mountains at Smith's ranch. Here we learned of a sister of Mr. Gilkey of Mondovi, and Will Allen went out to see her.
- September 4th Cold and windy; in sight of Eagle Mountains.
- September 6th Crossed the mountains and reached the town called Union.
- September 7th Traveled 22 miles to town of Somerville a most desolate, run-down looking place at the base of the Blue Mountains.
- September 8th Now 40 miles from Walla Walla.
- September 9th Going up and up. The scenery grand; pines, fir and hemlock. Mrs. James Hunter quite sick.
- September 11th Mrs. Hunter no better; camped on the bank of the Walla Walla river. Bought our first apples.
- September 13th Arrived at Walla Walla and camped in a corral.

Indians camped in the same corral. Mrs. Hunter better; went up to Dry Creek and camped all night.

FALL ON KNIFE BLADE FATAL TO LOCAL BOY

Harold Bales, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bales, was instantly killed about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the knife with which he was playing accidentally pierced his heart. The tragedy struck shortly after a group of children had left a matinee at a local theatre.

The children had turned up Third street and were near the Methodist church. Harold was whittling a stick with his knife when one of the boys started chasing him. Harold, with his knife open, started running and took a cut through the church yard. As he swerved to turn into the yard, he crashed into a tree with such force that the impact forced his arm to the body driving the knife into his heart.

Eye witnesses of the accident told authorities that the boy lay unnoticed for a minute before he was picked up by the children. He was rushed to a physician's office where almost instantaneous death was declared.

Harold Bales Junior

Beautiful and impressive funeral services for Harold Bales, who lost his life in a tragic accident Saturday afternoon, were held at the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. T. O. Weatherby of the United Brethren church in charge. Lovely music was provided by Miss Pearl Martin and other members of the church choir, and the following young friends of the boy were pallbearers: Laverne Whiting, Jack James, Jean Crall, Robert Hudson, Norman Martin and Ivar Mings.

Harold Bales Jr. was born at Bend, Oregon, May 12, 1927, and was brought here by his parents at the age of two months. He was in the fourth grade, and at different times during his school life he had made his home with his grandmother, Mrs. Rosa Rich, and an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Bales. He was a kind and affectionate boy, devoted to his family and friends, and very appreciative of any kindness shown him. He was a lover of flowers and beauty, and was never so happy as when giving to others. One of his last acts on the afternoon of his death was to leave a Christmas gift to be sent to his younger brother who was away at the time. His sudden death was a great shock to his family and friends, and he will be greatly missed by all who knew his happy smile and cherry greeting.

Besides his parents and a younger brother, Bobbie, the boy leaves his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bales, and Mrs. Rosa Rich, Dayton, his great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ross, Dayton, and Robert L. Cox, Waitsburg, and other close relatives.

ALEXANDER BALDWIN

Alexander Baldwin was born in Montgomery township, Gibson county, Ind., January 28, 1827, and is the son of John and Margery (Trigg) Baldwin. He lived on the farm until he married Martha Music, on the second of March, 1851. He then rented a farm for four years. Moving thence to Washington county, Illinois, he farmed there nine years. He started across the plains, and after a journey of nearly seven months, arrived in Yamhill Co., Oregon, in the last days of October, 1865. In the fall of 1866, with a family of a wife and five small children, and with but a wagon, two horses and a colt for capital, he came to this region and settled on Hogeye cree, six miles from Dayton. With is small beginning he has pushed himself forward to the position of one of the substantial men of Columbia county. He owns 400 acres of land, meadow, grass and pasture, including forty acres of timber. A view of another page shows his ranch and improvements. Of a family of nine children born to him there are five living. The children were John Fleming, deceased, Elinora, Julia Ann, Olive, Almira, Ephriam deceased, Garrett, James William, and two who died in infancy.

Willis Baldwin first came to Columbia County in 1865, but later 68, returned to Illinois where he was raised, Two years later he came west again and homesteaded south of Dayton. He sold that place and moved to town. In 1883 he bought 420 acres close by the Blessingers on Johnson Hollow. He made a very attractive place of it and was most proud of the 250 tree orchard he set out. Willis Jr. farmed that and additional acres long after his father retired.

HISTORY

WILLIS S. BALDWIN

Willis S. Baldwin, a prominent citizen of Columbia county, was born in Gibson county, Indiana, about three miles west of Owensville, March 8, 1832, a son of Greenburg and Lucy (Ruslem) Baldwin, the father a Southerner by birth, probably a native of North Carolina, and the mother born in Tennessee. The latter died when our subject was but twelve years of age, and his father's death occurred only one year later, in Washington county, Illinois, where they had moved in 1840.

Willis S. Baldwin grew to manhood in Washington county, and resided there until 1865. In that year he crossed the plains to the Pacific Northwest, following the old stage route through the south side of the Platte, Fort Laramie, North Platte, crossing Green river near the mouth of Bitter creek, thence to Granger, up Ham's fork of Bear river, and by way of Soda Springs, Snake river, Gibsons's ferry, Butler, Boise City, La Grande and Baker City to Walla Walla. Although the Indians were quite troublesome that year, this party had little actual difficulty with them, but trains immediately behind and ahead of them suffered considerable damage from the savages. Mr. Baldwin left home April 13, 1865, and arrived in Waitsburg, on the Coppei, October 15 of the same year. He located in the Winnett neighborhood, seven miles southwest of Dayton, where he remained until 1868, and in that year returned across the plains to the East. In 1870, however, he again came to Washington, and although other means of travel were then to be enjoyed, he chose to cross the plains by wagon, arriving in Columbia county after a pleasant trip of a little less than four months. Mr. Baldwin took a homestead in the same neighborhood where he had formerly lived, but eleven years later sold that land and moved to Dayton, which has ever since been the family home. March 19, 1883, he purchased land seven miles northeast of this city, and now gives his personal attention to farming that place, which consists of 160

WILLIAM A. BALDWIN

William A. Baldwin, a prominent citizen of Columbia county, was born in Gibson county, Indiana, about three miles west of Swadesville, March 8, 1835, a son of Frederick and Lucy (Ruel) Baldwin. The father a Southerner by birth, probably a native of North Carolina, and the mother born in Tennessee. The latter died when our subject was but twelve years of age, and his father's death occurred only one year later, in Washington county, Illinois, where they had moved in 1840.

William A. Baldwin grew to manhood in Washington county, and resided there until 1855. In that year he crossed the plains to the Pacific Northwest, following the old stage route through the south side of the Gatte, Fort Laramie, North Platte, crossing Green river near the mouth of Bitter creek, thence to Granger, on the fork of Bear river, and by way of Soda Springs, Snake river, Idaho's Ferry, Butler, Boise city, La Grange and Baker City to Walla Walla. Although the Indians were quite troublesome that year this party had little actual difficulty with them, but trains immediately behind and ahead of them suffered considerable damage from the savages. Mr. Baldwin left home April 15, 1855, and arrived in Kalaburg, on the coast, October 15 of the same year. He located in the Winnet neighborhood, seven miles southwest of Dayton, where he remained until 1865, and in that year returned across the plains to the East. In 1870, however, he again came to Washington, and although other means of travel were then to be enjoyed, he chose to cross the plains by wagon, arriving in Columbia county after a pleasant trip of a little less than four months. Mr. Baldwin took a homestead in the same neighborhood where he had formerly lived, but eleven years later sold that land and moved to Dayton, which has ever since been the family home. March 19, 1885, he purchased land seven miles northwest of this city, and now gives his personal attention to farming that place, which consists of 100 acres of deeded land and a quarter section of leased school land. He cultivates over 300 acres of the tract, and had made all the improvements now existing there, among which may be mentioned an orchard of 250 trees, 200 in bearing, consisting of apples, pears, plums, prunes, cherries and peaches.

Mr. Baldwin was married in Washington county, Illinois, in 1850, to Miss Caroline Taylor, who died there in 1852. His present wife, to whom he married in February, 1854, was formerly Miss Adaline Mitchell, a native of Kentucky, and daughter of James and Rebecca Mitchell. Our subject and wife have had eleven children, of whom seven are now living, viz.: Sirrelda, wife of J. H. Horsey; Caroline, wife of David Evans, of Walla Walla county; Mary Vandelia, wife of Lon Nulf, of Genessee, Idaho; Ida Catherine, now Mrs. Ed. Pollard, of Stevens county, Washington; Violet ann, wife of John Nelson of Spokane county; Willis and Perry, Salem. Mr. Baldwin is a Democrat in political matters, has served as a member of the County Central Committee, and has frequently been a delegate to conventions. He enjoys the highest standing in the community, and is known as a man of whom it may be said, "His word is as good as his bond."
