Bingo - Hit pay dirt with the stuff you sent me. We have been trying to verify the location of birth for John A. Hull for some time. Only knew it was N.Y. The article you included about Orley Hull, is his brother and we knew nothing else about him except he went to the gold rush in Calif. in about 1851. The article listed his place of birth as Cortland Co. NY, town of Freetown. Their website is great, a lot of info, including numerous census reports. Not only located John, Orley and their parents, but also their grandparents and probably several uncles (about 12 of them) . Also found out that Heman & Elizabeth Hull (John and Orleys folks) had a total of 11 kids, we only knew of 4 before. The info. you sent was great. Thanks a lot. If you run across any more on the Hulls or Oakes, let me know. I did note on the one census for Oakes Charles Eugene Oakes is listed as a "Merchant". Do any Dayton records show what business he was in, back in 1886/1895. We know he owned a General Merchandise Store at Spokane Bridge (Wash/Idaho State Line) about 1910/1920.

Biographical Supplement

ORLEY HULL was born in Freetown, Cortland County, New York, June 18, 1821, where he lived with his parents, who moved to Huron County, Ohio, in 1832. At sixteen years of age he left home, and started the battle of life, going to Indiana with a brother. For the ensuing eight years he passed through and worked in, first, Illinois, then Missouri, and then Iowa in the city of that name. For two years he remained in Iowa City, and then went into the country and bought a farm claim. In 1842, September 11, he was married to Miss Mary Clark, whose parents lived in Johnson Co., nine miles from Iowa City. In 1850, they crossed the plains with a team to Oregon, wintering at the Dalles. In February of 1851, with his family he passed down the Columbia river in an open boat, and located for a time in the Willamette valley, and then moved to Yreka, California, where he spent two years mining. This proved an unsuccessful venture, and he returned to the Umpqua Valley and settled 12 miles west of Roseburg, on Ten-mile prairie. This was in 1853, and for the next five years that place became his home. While in this locality he participated in the Rogue River War, of 1856. He moved to the Coquille river, in Coose Co., intending to make stock grazing his business and this point his future home. "But the best laid plans o' mice and men, gang aft a'glee," says Bobby Burns, and Mr. Hull found that in his own case this line had become a prophesy; for in December, 1861, there came a flood from the mountains, through the Coquille river, that carried away his house and buildings, leaving him afloat in a ferry boat. He thought that, as this was not quite equal to the drowning of the world, in Noah's time, he might find dry land in some other part of it, and accordingly abandoned this locality and moved to Walla Walla, in August 1862. In January of 1863, he purchased 120 acres of the place where he now lives, of E. Davidson, for $2,500.00. Mr. Hull came to the Walla Walla valley with 260 head of stock, $500, and a reputation for honest dealing with his fellows as a capital to start with. For three years stock was the branch of industry that occupied his attention; but, as the years passed and the country became settled up, he concluded to make a home of it, and turned his attention to agriculture. From year to year he has added to that original 120 acres, until he now has 960 all told, 400 of which constitute the home farm, (see view in this book.) Horses and hogs are the principal stock now raised by him; of which he has at the present time 21 head of the former, and over 100 of the Magee Poland China species of hogs, that from personal inspection, we found to be very fine.

The home farm is situated seven miles east of Walla Walla City, and at the base of the Blue mountains, Russell creek running through his door yard. The land is like the other foot hill farms; it is all inclosed and under cultivation. He has 41 stand of bees, something rare in Washington Territory; an orchard of various kinds of fruit trees, including a number of varieties of excellent apples. Taken all together, it is a home worthy the effort to make it such, combining merit in production, with beauty in location, from where the Blue mountains loom up in the south east, and the beautiful Walla Walla valley lies like a dream of Canaan, stretching away towards the Columbia below and to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull have three children: Viola, wife of T. J. Anders, who lives in Walla Walla City; Hila, wife of Smith Swezea, who lives in Garfield Co., W. T.; and Eva, who lives with her parents. In conclusion we would say of these two, Mr. and Mrs. Hull, that the fortune, which, in the autumn of life, surrounds them, has been gathered by worthy hands and properly rewards the life labors of two pioneers of this country. It is not unfrequent, that those who struggle less and are favored according to their efforts, are envious of those who succeed; but we can only say, success is generally the result, as in this case, of intelligent and honorable endeavor to succeed. In the wandering to seek a favored spot for a life home, there have woven into their history some strange adventures and hair-breadth escapes, where want of food and the Indian scalping knife have lurked close upon their trail, but to detail these would require more space than is admissible in this work.

ORLEY HULL.

Attracted by gold discoveries in California, Orley Hull came to the Pacific coast and throughout the intervening period until his death was a resident of this section of the country. He was born in Iowa in 1825 and there the period of his boyhood and youth was passed amid the conditions of frontier life, for at that time the state of Iowa was yet a part of the great western territory that lay uninhabited and undeveloped west of the Mississippi. He continued in that state until he reached the age of twenty-four years, when the news reached him concerning the discovery of gold in California and he determined to try his fortune upon the Pacific coast. Accordingly he made the necessary arrangements for the trip, securing a covered wagon and an ox team, with which he started across the plains in 1849. The journey was a long and arduous one over the hot stretches of sand and across the mountains, but he pushed on day after day and ultimately reached his destination. After spending some time in California he determined to make his way northward and came to Walla Walla county, Washington. Here he took up the occupation of farming and stock raising, to which he devoted a number of years, becoming one of the representative agriculturists of the county. Eventually he established his home in Walla Walla, where his last days were passed.

It was in Walla Walla that Mr. Hull was united in marriage to Mrs. Hannah M. Laird, a native of Rochester, New York, and a daughter of Dr. Hiram Preston, of that city. After reaching womanhood she married Leonard Laird and they subsequently removed to Minnesota, where he engaged in farming for a time. He possessed considerable musical talent and took an active interest in religious work. On leaving Minnesota he removed to Hillsboro, Oregon, where he conducted a hotel for two years, but about 1877 brought his family to Washington, and located on a farm seven miles from Walla Walla, where he spent his remaining days, dying there in 1879. To Mr. and Mrs. Laird were born six children, of whom four are still living, namely: Miss Florence, a resident of Walla Walla; George D., of Portland, Oregon; Jennie, the widow of Millard Roff, of Walla Walla; and Nellie A., who is the widow of James A. Delaney and is living with her mother in Walla Walla. During the Spanish-American war Mr. Delaney entered the service and died of Manila fever. He left one child, Adrian L., now a guard at the Washington penitentiary in Walla Walla.

Mr. Hull was a stalwart and loyal member of the Masonic fraternity, in the work of which he was actively and helpfully interested, being ever ready to extend a helping hand to a brother of the order. He also took an active part in the upbuilding of the city of Walla Walla and his aid and cooperation could be counted upon to further any measure or movement for the public good. Those who knew him esteemed him as a man of high purpose and of honorable life and when he passed away in April, 1892, his death was the occasion of deep and widespread regret in the southeastern section of the state, where he had long made his home and his funeral was widely attended. He was a man of marked integrity and his word was always as good as his bond. Page 479-480

HISTORIC SKETCHES

WALLA WALLA, WHITMAN, COLUMBIA AND GARFIELD COUNTIES
WASHINGTON TERRITORY

BY

FRANK T. GILBERT
PORTLAND, OREGON
1882

PORTLAND, OREGON;
Printing and Lithographing House of A.G. Walling, corner First and Ash streets.

ORLEY HULL was born in Freetown, Cortland County, New York, June 18, 1821, where he lived with his parents, who moved to Huron County, Ohio, in 1832. At sixteen years of age he left home, and started the battle of life, going to Indiana with a brother. For the ensuing eight years he passed through and worked in, first, Illinois, then Missouri, and then Iowa in the city of that name. For two years he remained in Iowa City, and then went into the country and bought a farm claim. In 1842, September 11, he was married to Miss Mary Clark, whose parents lived in Johnson Co., nine miles from Iowa City. In 1850, they crossed the plains with a team to Oregon, wintering at the Dalles. In February of 1851, with his family he passed down the Columbia river in an open boat, and located for a time in the Willamette valley, and then moved to Yreka, California, where he spent two years mining. This proved an unsuccessful venture, and he returned to the Umpqua Valley and settled 12 miles west of Roseburg, on Ten-mile prairie. This was in 1853, and for the next five years that place became his home. While in this locality he participated in the Rogue River War, of 1856. He moved to the Coquille river, in Coosue Co., intending to make stock grazing his business and this point his future home. "But the best laid plans o' mice and men, gang aft a'glee," says Bobby Burns, and Mr. Hull found that in his own case this line had become a prophesy; for in December, 1861, there came a flood from the mountains, through the Coquille river, that carried away his house and buildings, leaving him afloat in a ferry boat. He thought that, as this was not quite equal to the drowning of the world, in Noah's time, he might find dry land in some other part of it, and accordingly abandoned this locality and moved to Walla Walla, in August 1862. In January of 1863, he purchased 120 acres of the place where he now lives, of E. Davidson, for $2,500.00. Mr. Hull came to the Walla Walla valley with 260 head of stock, $500, and a reputation for honest dealing with his fellows as a capital to start with. For three years stock was the branch of industry that occupied his attention; but, as the years passed and the country became settled up, he concluded to make a home of it, and turned his attention to agriculture. From year to year he has added to that original 120 acres, until he now has 960 all told, 400 of which constitute the home farm, (see view in this book.) Horses and hogs are the principal stock now raised by him; of which he has at the present time 21 head of the former, and over 100 of the Magee Poland China species of hogs, that from personal inspection, we found to be very fine.

The home farm is situated seven miles east of Walla Walla City, and at the base of the Blue mountains, Russell creek running through his door yard. The land is like the other foot hill farms; it is all inclosed and under cultivation. He has 41 stand of bees, something rare in Washington Territory; an orchard of various kinds of fruit trees, including a number of varieties of excellent apples. Taken all together, it is a home worthy the effort to make it such, combining merit in production, with beauty in location, from where the Blue mountains loom up in the south east, and the beautiful Walla Walla valley lies like a dream of Canaan, stretching away towards the Columbia below and to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull have three children: Viola, wife of T. J. Anders, who lives in Walla Walla City; Hila, wife of Smith Swezea, who lives in Garfield Co., W. T.; and Eva, who lives with her parents. In conclusion we would say of these two, Mr. and Mrs. Hull, that the fortune, which, in the autumn of life, surrounds them, has been gathered by worthy hands and properly rewards the life labors of two pioneers of this country. It is not unfrequent, that those who struggle less and are favored according to their efforts, are envious of those who succeed; but we can only say, success is generally the result, as in this case, of intelligent and honorable endeavor to succeed. In the wandering to seek a favored spot for a life home, there have woven into their history some strange adventures and hair-breadth escapes, where want of food and the Indian scalping knife have lurked close upon their trail, but to detail these would require more space than is admissible in this work.

ORLEY HULL.

Attracted by gold discoveries in California, Orley Hull came to the Pacific coast and throughout the intervening period until his death was a resident of this section of the country. He was born in Iowa in 1825 and there the period of his boyhood and youth was passed amid the conditions of frontier life, for at that time the state of Iowa was yet a part of the great western territory that lay uninhabited and undeveloped west of the Mississippi. He continued in that state until he reached the age of twenty-four years, when the news reached him concerning the discovery of gold in California and he determined to try his fortune upon the Pacific coast. Accordingly he made the necessary arrangements for the trip, securing a covered wagon and an ox team, with which he started across the plains in 1849. The journey was a long and arduous one over the hot stretches of sand and across the mountains, but he pushed on day after day and ultimately reached his destination. After spending some time in California he determined to make his way northward and came to Walla Walla county, Washington. Here he took up the occupation of farming and stock raising, to which he devoted a number of years, becoming one of the representative agriculturists of the county. Eventually he established his home in Walla Walla, where his last days were passed.

It was in Walla Walla that Mr. Hull was united in marriage to Mrs. Hannah M. Laird, a native of Rochester, New York, and a daughter of Dr. Hiram Preston, of that city. After reaching womanhood she married Leonard Laird and they subsequently removed to Minnesota, where he engaged in farming for a time. He possessed considerable musical talent and took an active interest in religious work. On leaving Minnesota he removed to Hillsboro, Oregon, where he conducted a hotel for two years, but about 1877 brought his family to Washington, and located on a farm seven miles from Walla Walla, where he spent his remaining days, dying there in 1879. To Mr. and Mrs. Laird were born six children, of whom four are still living, namely: Miss Florence, a resident of Walla Walla; George D., of Portland, Oregon; Jennie, the widow of Millard Roff, of Walla Walla; and Nellie A., who is the widow of James A. Delaney and is living with her mother in Walla Walla. During the Spanish-American war Mr. Delaney entered the service and died of Manila fever. He left one child, Adrian L., now a guard at the Washington penitentiary in Walla Walla.

Mr. Hull was a stalwart and loyal member of the Masonic fraternity, in the work of which he was actively and helpfully interested, being ever ready to extend a helping hand to a brother of the order. He also took an active part in the upbuilding of the city of Walla Walla and his aid and cooperation could be counted upon to further any measure or movement for the public good. Those who knew him esteemed him as a man of high purpose and of honorable life and when he passed away in April, 1892, his death was the occasion of deep and widespread regret in the southeastern section of the state, where he had long made his home and his funeral was widely attended. He was a man of marked integrity and his word was always as good as his bond.

J S. HULL, a member of the grocery firm of Hull & Stevenson, of Cheney, was born in New York, in 1843, a son of J. J. and Sarah (Smith) Hull, natives also of that State. The father was a farmer by occupation.

J. S. Hull, the eldest of five children, was educated in the public schools of his native State. In 1864 he engaged in farming in Iowa, where he remained eight years, followed the same occupation in Western Nebraska fourteen years, and in 1888 came to Cheney, Washington. The grocery firm of Hull & Wright was founded the same year, but in 1889 Mr. Wallis purchased Mr. Wright's interest, and one year later our subject purchased the entire store. He remained alone until burned out by the great fire, when he lost about $2,500, but immediately put in a new stock, and in the fall of 1890 the firm of Hull & Brittain was established. One year later Mr. Stevenson purchased the latter's interest, and the business is now conducted under the firm name of Hull & Stevenson. The capital invested is about $4,000, and the firm is the largest of its kind in the city, carrying a general stock of groceries.

Mr. Hull was married in 1877, to Miss Mary Kenton, a native of Indiana. They have two children: Mary E., aged seven years; and A. J., three years. Our subject is a thorough business man, and has done much for the material good of Cheney.

As rises on night's jeweled brow
Some orb supremely bright,
So Washington, from dawn to day,
Emerges on our sight,
From gloomy depths of endless pines,
From privacy of snow;
Where ice-lad peaks o'erlook the vales,
Where milder breezes blow;
From doubtful dawn to daylight,
From savagery to state,
She comes to prove the triumph
Of those who watch and wait.

HULL, S. G., farmer and stock-raiser, of Ellensburg, Kittitas Valley, was born in Ohio in 1817. His parents were natives of that State. His father, a farmer, who lived to the ripe age of ninety-two, died in 1887, leaving three children, of whom Mr. Hull was the third. Coming west to Colorado in 1860, the subject of our sketch devoted himself to farming, but removed two years later to Oregon, from whence he returned to Idaho in the spring of 1863. With that desire to return to the Pacific Coast so characteristic of those who have once settled there, we find him revisiting Oregon, and going from thence to his present location in the Kittitas Valley in 1887. Here he bought land, and now cultivates one hundred and twenty acres of fertile soil four miles north of the thriving city of Ellensburg. Mr. Hull was married in Ohio in 1840 to Miss Margaret Ann Donny. Seven children grace their union, one of whom, married to a native of Oregon, has provided the old couple with no less than eight grandchildren. Who shall venture to say that the far West is not a great and growing country, or that the American race is likely to die out upon the Pacific Slope?

JOHN HULL, in every sense a progressive and energetic Sherman county farmer, residing six miles northwest of Wasco, is a native of the Buckeye State, having been born in Ohio, January 29, 1838. His father, Levin Hull, was born in Virginia, as were his parents, descendants of the distinguished American family of Hulls, who have won historical records as soldiers, naval commanders and prominent southern planters. The mother, Mary A. (Kaylor) Hull, was born in Maryland; her parents were natives of Germany.

Our subject was reared in Ohio until he was thirteen years of age, and there he first attended the district schools in his vicinity. He was taken to Illinois in 1851, and seven years later, in 1858, struck out into the world for himself. He rented a farm in Illinois which he cultivated until 1888, when he came to Sherman county with his son; one year later he was followed by the rest of the family.

In Pike county, Illinois, in 1858, he was joined in marriage with Mary F. Johnston, born in Illinois. When she was quite a small child her father died. He was a member of the old Johnston family, of Scotch ancestry, many of the members of which became prominent in the Revolutionary war and the war of 1812. They were early pioneers in Virginia.

Our subject has four brothers and four sisters;

David, a farmer living in Adams county, Illinois; William, a Missouri farmer; George and Thomas, also of Adams county; Rebecca, wife of George Shearer, a farmer in Missouri; Catherine, single, residing in Adams county; Caroline, wife of Squire Mink, of Christian county, Illinois; Mary, wife of Henry Nebergall, a farmer in Missouri. Mrs. Hull has two brothers and two sisters; Alexander, a physician, living in Missouri; Edward T., an Ohio farmer; Sarah A., widow of Amos Emmerson, late of Texas; Elizabeth E., wife of George W. Pine, a farmer in Nebraska. The fraternal affiliations of our subject are with Griggsville Lodge, No. 45, A. F. & A. M., of which he has been a member since 1868. At present he is unaffiliated with the I. O. O. F. and M. Politically he is a Democrat, and has served as delegate to every Democratic county convention for twelve years past. For twenty-five years or more he was school director in Illinois and Oregon, for six years road commissioner in Illinois, for four terms justice of the peace in Sherman county, and for six years treasurer of the commissioners. He came to Sherman county with practically no capital, and has since accumulated a competence.

CHARLES E. HULL, the subject of this sketch, is a successful and industrial farmer in Sherman county, residing four miles northwest of Wasco. He was born in Pike county, Illinois, August 12, 1867. His father, John, a native of Ohio, born January 29, 1838, was a Virginian, and a member of the old and distinguished Hull family, distinguished in American history as extensive planters, military and naval officers. The mother, Frances (Stafford) Hull, is a native of Illinois. She lives in Sherman county with her husband, and mention of both will be found in another column.

In Illinois our subject grew up, attended the public schools where he laid the foundation of a good business education, until he was twenty years of age. In 1888 he came to Sherman county, accompanied by his father, the family following one year later. Here the father filed on a homestead and purchased a half section of land later. Our subject bought four hundred and eighty acres.

October 31, 1894, at Chico, California, Mr. Charles E. Hull was united in marriage to Miss Annie E. Gray, a native of Butte county, born March 21, 1874. She is the daughter of Jeremiah and Rachel (Meeker) Gray, natives of Illinois. Jeremiah Gray was a descendant of an old American family. He died in 1888. The mother lives at Chico, California. Her parents were well-to-do farmers in Illinois.

Our subject has five brothers and four sisters living: J. William, a miner at Taylorville, Illinois; Albert, a drayman at Goldendale, Washington; Frank; Delphus, a barber in Wasco;

Cecil, at home with his parents; Kate, wife of John C. Fields, living near our subject; Mary J., single, at Moro; Carrie, wife of Frank L. Morrow, a blacksmith at Wasco; Emma, wife of William M. Haggard, city marshal of Moro.

Mr. Hull is a member of Sherman Lodge, No. 157, I. O. O. F., of Wasco, of which he is at present noble grand. In partnership with Edward Miller he owns a steam thresher. Among a large circle of acquaintances he is highly esteemed and popular throughout the county.

COVELLO CLIPS

Following is a brief sketch of Grandma Hull's life, who departed from this life on Monday, Dec. 27, 1897, at five o'clock P. M. Her maiden name was Miss Sophronia Ripley. Born July 8th, 1815 near Rotchester, New York. In the fall of 1833 she was married to Mr. Oliver Pomeroy. As a result of this union three children were brought into the world, all boys. Oliver E. while fighting for his country, lost his life at Vicksburg, Sidney L. while at home had an attack of typhoid fever, from the effects of which his soul was wafted across the chilling waters, while George R. still survives her and was at her bedside at the time of dissolution. Mrs Pomeroy, being a widow came to Walla Walla in 1872, and later on went to Moscow, Idaho where she resided with her son George. Here she met with and married John A. Hull in 1877, and removed to a fine farm near Covello where they have resided continuously up to the present time. Mr. Hull died some little time ago. Grandma Hull professed religion in 1825 and has been a faithful follower of our meek and lowly Saviour for 72 years. Just think of it. There wasn't anyone in the whole country, who knew Grandma, but loved and respected her. Who could help but love such a good, kind and sunny disposition such as she had. There was not many on earth like her and perhaps never will be. Some thirty days previous to her demise she took a sudden sinking spell, almost resembling that messenger that all must meet, but she rallied, having wonderful vitality for a person of nearly 83. However, dissolution had set in and at the end of twenty-nine days she was no more. During her illness everything was done for her comfort by her son George and near neighbors as well among which might be mentioned Aunt Rebecca McKee and daughter, Miss Annie Romane, Mr. Prater's folks and many others too numerous to mention. The funeral services were held at the residence and were conducted by Rev Will B. Gray, of this place, who, in a few well chosen words eloquently portrayed the character of deceased that brought tears to many eyes. Notwithstanding the fearful condition of the roads a large number of friends followed her remains to the little churchyard on the hill near here where they were tenderly lowered to their long home. As she had always lived at peace with all mankind, may she find a peaceful rest on that other shore, lost in that mysterious dwelling place from which no sound has ever yet come through the frowning portals of the tomb. Pall bearers, L. M. Vannice, J. A. Gwinn, Fred L. and Frank Porter. Echo.

COVELLO CLIPS

Weather has changed a trifle since last writing, and very likely 'twill change about forty times before next, or even before you see this.

Rev. Skipworth delivered a very interesting Christmas sermon here on last Sunday.

Oren Teel is down from Spokane on a visit with his sister Mrs. John F. Jackson.

John Knox, wife and daughter Miss Helen from Lower Whetstone visited with relatives in the burg during Christmas times.

Master Mat Parker has folded his old pants and silently gone away to other climes.

Glen F. Porter came down from Pomeroy and spent Christmas between Dayton and this place, giving some time to each.

Grandma Hull, and old respected resident of this community, quietly fell asleep Monday and thus passed to the land of the dead.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. English visited with the family of Mr. Ulan last Sunday.

Misses May Marquis and Myrtle McKee, two of Dayton's vivacious belles, were visiting around here recently.

Hon. Joseph McCourts came down from Pomeroy the day before Christmas, just in time to locate his name and ponderous appetite in the capacious turkey pie at the farm of Uncle Henry Black. Joe knows where to hit the shore.

Charles Oakes and wife were in the city this week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis. Mr. Oakes took up his claim in this county in 1871, in the Covello district, where he resided until 1886. He then came to town and engaged in the second-hand store business. Not finding the business profitable, he sold out and went to Pullman where he bought land, afterwards selling it and going to Medical Lake, where he now resides. He owns valuable wheat land near that city.

(Charles's wife Alice is a daughter of John Hull)
