MACLACHLAN, JAMES A., M.D., of Dayton, Wash., was born in Aylmer, Ont., in 1860. His father, Archibald MacLachlan, a Canadian farmer, died when James was only nine years old, leaving a widow and eight children (of whom James was fifth), the oldest of whom was sixteen, in very moderate financial circumstances. Young James received a common public-school education, and at seventeen became apprenticed to a miller and learned the milling business, which he followed at home till 1881, when he started West to better his fortune, and located in Dayton, Wash., where he worked at his trade for a period of two years, when his health required a change of occupation, and he went to the mountains and worked in the timber till 1883. During all this time his ambition was to become a physician, and now he decided to go East and begin his studies. He returned to his old Canadian home, and had about decided to study dentistry when, at the earnest solicitation of Dr. G. F. Clark, of Aylmer, he began the study of medicine under the latter's direction. He remained in Dr. Clark's office two years, or till 1886, when he went to Ann Arbor, Mich., well equipped by his previous hard study of medical subjects to enter the homœopathic department of the State University, located in that city. In the latter part of 1889 he graduated from this institution with high honors, and came West, re-locating in Dayton—this time as J. A. MacLachlan, M.D. He became associated with Dr. W. W. Day, an old-established physician of Dayton, and his success as a practitioner began. After a partnership of one year he struck out for himself, and now, after four years of active practice, he is known and very highly esteemed, both as a physician and a man, for miles around Dayton. He is still a keen student, and his library contains a fine collection of the latest and best medical works. The year 1893 marks an epoch in his history, the occasion being his marriage on March 28th to Miss H. C. Judson, a most estimable young lady of Portland, Ore. He has indeed well earned his popularity in exemplifying the old Latin quotation, "Omnia vincit labor," for by his labor he has overcome great obstacles that would have discouraged most men.

J. A. MacLACHLAN, M. D.

Dr. J. A. MacLachlan, for many years actively and successfully engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery in Dayton, was born near Springfield, in the province of Ontario, Canada, in 1860. After acquiring a public school education in his native country he became a student in the University of Michigan, where he pursued his professional course, winning the degree of M. D. upon graduation with the class of 1889. He had studied the homeopathic methods and following his graduation at once began a search for a suitable location. Making his way westward, he decided to establish his home in Columbia county and has since been identified with the medical profession in southeastern Washington. Through the long years of his residence in Dayton he has occupied a foremost place among the medical practitioners. He is extremely modest and free from ostentation but public opinion establishes his position and colleagues and contemporaries acknowledge him the peer of the ablest physicians and surgeons of the Inland Empire. He was elected to the position of vice president of the state board of medical examiners and he belongs to the Washington State Medical Society, thus keeping in touch with the trend of modern professional thought, research and investigation.

Dr. MacLachlan was united in marriage to Miss Daisy Ping, a daughter of Robert Ping, one of the well known pioneer settlers of Columbia county, and with his family he occupies an attractive home in Dayton. He belongs to the Dayton Club and has been identified with many movements looking to the welfare and betterment of his community. He stands at all times for progress and improvement and his aid and influence are given on the side of those activities which are a matter of civic virtue and of civic pride. He served in 1890 and 1891 as health officer of Columbia county. He is well known as a leading member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Odd Fellows lodges, having been identified with those organizations for many years.

JAMES A. MACLACHLAN, M. D.

Dr. James A. MacLachlan, one of the early Dayton physicians, was born in Springfield, Ontario in 1860. He was of a family of three boys and two girls. The three boys all graduated from the University of Michigan, two of which, John and Daniel, specialized in Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. James graduated in 1889 in Homeopathy and came directly to Dayton to start his practice and continued for a period of 46 years until his death in 1935.

He was married to Daisy Ann Ping in Dayton and had four children, Faye (died in infancy), James who died in the Influenza epidemic of 1917, Margaret and Dorothy.

His offices were always located in the second floor of the same building first called the Lockwood building and later the Weinhard building. His home was first on the corner of Second Street and Patit Avenue - a house which burned destroying most of his records. He later lived across the street on Patit Avenue, the present home of Stan Neal.

During the severe influenza epidemic of 1917, the Doctor went for thirty days and nights, without much rest, taking care of his patients.

The Dr. MacLachlan had for a time an associate, his brother Dr. John MacLachlan, who later moved to Seattle. In the early years the Doctor had two teams of horses and drivers. His patients were widely scattered throughout the area, Prescott, Pomeroy, Walla Walla, and between. He had one of the early cars in the territory.

Dr. MacLachlan was noted for his interest in thoroughbred racing horses and at one time owned and raced quite a few of these horses. He is also said to have had one of the first telephones in Dayton.

He was for a long period of time on the State Board of Medical Examiners and went to Seattle frequently for these examinations. He was also the Railroad Physician for Northern Pacific Railroad for many years.

Dr. MacLachlan died in 1935. When returning from a call he dropped on the stairs leading to his office. He is buried in the Dayton Cemetery.

The writer of this article has always had an interest and affection for this early doctor, who was the family physician for my family, and was in attendance at my birth. He was still in practice in the early 30's after I started my practice here. I also was called at the time of his death. While Dr. MacLachlan and I differed greatly on the theories of medicine he remained a friend until his death. The Doctor made a courtly appearance, was always immaculately dressed, very courteous to all he contacted. In spite of failure to keep up with medical advances over the years, the Doctor had a very wide experience in medicine, which probably greatly overcome this disadvantage.

DR. J. A. MAC LACHLAN DIES FRIDAY EVENING

27 Oct 1966

The community was profoundly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Dr. J. A. MacLachlan Friday night. He suffered a heart attack as he was leaving his office shortly after nine o'clock, and death was almost instantaneous.

Funeral services were held from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Monday afternoon at two o'clock with the Rev. Mack Cahill of the Church of the Nazarene of Pomeroy, an old friend of the family, in charge. Beautiful music was provided by the Rev. and Mrs. Cahill, and lovely floral offerings massed the casket. The pallbearers were Arthur Nilsson, E. A. Holman, Robert Pate, Frank Thompson, Dr. Wesley Frick and Ernest Ping of Pomeroy. Business houses of the city were closed during the hour of the services.

James A. MacLachlan was of Canadian birth and Scottish descent. He was born at Aylmer, Ontario, Canada, August 25, 1860, and came here in the early eighties. He first made his home with his uncle, Charles Robertson, and worked in his sawmill. For several years he was employed in the old flouring mill at Longs, and he used his savings to assist his brothers through medical college.

Later his brothers aided him in obtaining higher education, and he received his doctor's degree from the University of Michigan in 1889. He was a charter member of Mu Sigma Alpha, national medical fraternity.

After his graduation from medical college Dr. MacLachlan returned to Dayton to practice, and his death terminated a period of nearly 46 years dedicated to the service of others. He was first associated with Dr. William W. Day, grandfather of the present Dr. W. W. Day, and later opened offices of his own.

In 1894 Dr. MacLachlan was married to Miss Daisy Ping, a member of one of the oldest families of the county. To this union five children were born, two of whom died in infancy. James Jr., the only son, died during the first influenza epidemic in 1917. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Daisy MacLachlan, two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Lieum of Grand Forks, North Dakota, Miss Dorothy MacLachlan, Walla Walla, one grandson, a brother, who is a physician in Detroit, Michigan, and two sisters, of Ontario, Canada.

Wilson McBride and Alonzo Sanford were brothers-in-law and similar in that neither were farmers. Wilson proved up on a claim while he taught school at Covello. He received a patent in 1892. When most of the schools in that end of the county closed he moved his family to Dayton. Roy, the oldest of four children, was county engineer at one time. Charles and Clarence were the other boys and Hattie (Russell) the only girl.

Sanfords have returned to place family tree's roots began

The Sanford Family, by James E. Sanford

Alonzo Lapum Sanford, my grandfather, came West from Iowa in 1871, after serving in the Iowa Militia from February 1864 to August 1865, with General Sherman in the Civil War. He settled in the Walla Walla Area.

Alice McBride, my grandmother, came West by wagon train from Iowa, when she was five. She traveled with her parents, Harriet Wilson McBride and Wallace McBride, and younger brother, Wilson McBride.

The 1864 trek took them to Albany, Oregon. The following year her father died, and the family moved by stagecoach to the Walla Walla area to be near sister Caroline Tharp and other family members. Mrs. McBride died in 1867, and her brother went to live with Aunt Caroline and Uncle Brady Tharp, who had moved to The Dalles, Oregon. Later, the family moved to Covello, near Dayton, and lived on a farm.

Caroline, and many of the Wilson family, including her parents Jeremiah and Eliza Wilson, are buried in the old cemetery near Turner. Alonzo Sanford later bought the farm from the Tharps. At the same time, 1881, he met and married Alice. They joked that he bought the farm and Grandma came with it. They lived on the farm until 1899, when they moved in to Covello, having built the first house there.

Eight children were born to Alonzo and Alice Sanford: Wilson: Caroline, who died at age 8 of diphtheria and is buried in the cemetery near Turner; Bertrand, Christopher (my father); Pearl, Estella, Brian and Elton.

Bert remained in this area all his life, and raised two girls alone, after his wife drowned when the girls were very young. He is buried in the Dayton cemetery along with his wife.

Christopher married Virginia Jones in April 1916. They had two boys, both who died early in life. In 1917 they moved to Tacoma, where Virginia died in April of 1919.

Christopher remarried, wedding Lydia Krauss in March of 1922. They had six children, Gladys, Herbert who died at age 10, James, Lloyd, John, who died at 18 months of age, and Ruth.

Pearl married Jesse Carlton of Covello, but the couple later moved to Oregon, where Jesse died. Pearl then moved to Tacoma and married Al Miller. She had ten children.

Estella married Robert Smith of the Covello area. They later moved to California. They had three children.

Brian married Annette Dor. They moved to Tacoma in 1918. They had two boys.

Elton never married. He moved to Tacoma with his parents in 1918.

I, James, moved to Lewiston, Idaho in 1949, and married Dorothy Cash on February 4, 1950. We raised three girls and two boys and now have two granddaughters. I retired in 19186 after 37 years with Potlatch Corporation. We moved to Dayton in 1987, bringing the family tree back to the area where the roots began.

My brothers and two sisters remain in the Tacoma area.

Wilson remarried in later years, and moved to Kellog, Idaho, then retired in Spokane. He is buried in the Dayton cemetery with his wife, the former Myrtle McGee. They raised five daughters.

He is survived by his widow, who is a sister of Wilson McBryde of Columbia county; two sons, Bert and W. G. Sanford, residents of this county, the two sons and a daughter in Tacoma and a son and daughter in California. Bert and W. G. Sanford left by automobile for the coast upon hearing of their father's death. The funeral was held Thursday at Tacoma.

Pioneer Teacher, Surveyor, Passes

Wilson McBride Crossed Plains in 1862—Taught in County Years.

Funeral services for Wilson McBride, early day schoolmaster of Columbia county, who died at the home of his son, Roy L. McBride of Tucanon, Monday morning, were held from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock with the Rev. W. C. Gilmore of the Congregational church in charge. Mr. McBride had been in failing health for more than ten years, and had been practically helpless for a long period.

Wilson McBride was born in Albia, Iowa June 10, 1857, and crossed the plains with his parents in 1862. The family first settled near Albany, Oregon but later moved to Walla Walla. Mr. McBride's parents died during his early boyhood, and he was reared by an uncle, Brady Tharp. He took up surveying when a young man, and was employed on the railroad during its construction in the Umatilla district. He also taught district school for many years, and followed both surveying and teaching in this county for many years. He served this county as engineer for several terms, and was one of the most efficient in the history of the office. He was married more than 50 years ago to Alice Lewis, daughter of the late J. M. Lewis of this city, and to this union four children were born, all of whom survive. Mrs. McBride died several years ago, and Mr. McBride is survived by three sons, Roy L. McBride and Clarence McBride of this county, and Charles McBride of Hoquiam, and one daughter, Mrs. A. C. Russell of Bay View, Washington. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Alice Sanford, of Tacoma, eight grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Bateman, late of Sunnyside and formerly of Dayton, consideration $14,000, including eight head of horses and some farm machinery. Mrs. McBride took in exchange Sunnyside property. Mr. Bateman will move his family here at once and will farm the place himself. Mr. Bateman is a son of Pleni Bateman, a well known ex-resident of Columbia county, who now resides at Walla Walla and who has lately placed a patented harrow on the market.—Prescott Spectator.

CHARLES ALEXANDER McCABE.

Charles Alexander McCabe, a well known attorney at law of southeastern Washington, practicing in Pomeroy as a member of the firm of Kuykendall & McCabe, was born June 18, 1889, in the city where he still resides, his parents being Charles A. and Mary (Bohan) McCabe. The father was a native of Ireland and the mother of Pennsylvania. The former came to the United States in 1848, as a boy of eleven years, in company with his parents, who settled in Pennsylvania, where the son attained his majority. About 1864 he determined to try his fortune on the Pacific coast and made his way westward to Walla Walla, after which he operated a pack train and also engaged in prospecting and mining, thus becoming familiar with pioneer experiences and lines of business such as are common in frontier districts. In 1865 he removed to Garfield county, where he turned his attention to the sheep industry and through the following twenty years, except for a few years in Montana, was prominently identified with sheep raising in this section of the state. He subsequently became postmaster of Pomeroy, which position he occupied for several years, discharging his duties with promptness, fidelity and capability. He was also engaged in the jewelry business and for many years ranked with the prominent business men and progressive citizens of Pomeroy, contributing much to its upbuilding and progress along material and other lines. He was married in Pennsylvania in 1888 and passed away in 1913, Mrs. McCabe having preceded him in 1901.

Charles Alexander McCabe, whose name introduces this review, was educated in the public schools of Pomeroy and in Gonzaga College at Spokane. In the fall of 1909 he took up the study of law, reading in the office of Gose & Kuykendall, and in the spring of 1911 he was admitted to practice. Immediately following his admission he entered into his present partnership relations with Mr. Kuykendall, whose former partner, Mack F. Gose, had been elected to the bench. The firm of Kuykendall & McCabe has since been engaged in practice and their clientage is extensive and of a very important character. Mr. McCabe carefully qualified for the practice of law and in the conduct of his cases has shown notable resourcefulness combined with marked ability to accurately apply the principles of jurisprudence to the points in litigation.

In June, 1911, Mr. McCabe was united in marriage to Miss Anna Mock, of Columbia county, Washington, and to them have been born two sons and a daughter: Charles Patrick, Kathleen and Robert Alexander. The parents are communicants of the Catholic church and Mr. McCabe is identified with the Knights of Columbus and also with the Woodmen of the World. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCabe are well known socially in Pomeroy, occupying an enviable position in those circles where true worth and intelligence are accepted as passports into good society.

ELIJAH W. MCCALL is one of the leading farmers and stockmen of Columbia county and resides one mile north from Dayton. He was born in DeKalb county, Missouri, on October 2, 1854, the son of John and Polly A. (Maxwell) McCall, natives of Tennessee and Illinois, respectively. They were married in Indiana and were pioneers all their lives. The mother died in 1902, in Washington. The father came to Missouri when it was yet an unsettled country and so on thereafter, journeyed to Iowa. In 1869, he came to San Francisco, and thence to Lane county, Oregon, and purchased a farm in Rattlesnake valley. He sold this two years later and came to Waitsburg where he rented land. Next he moved to Whetstone Hollow, near Dayton and they were among the first settlers in that country and for a good many years were extensively engaged in raising cattle and horses. In 1889, he passed away, having lived a good life and done a good work. He always was ahead of the railroad, a typical frontiersman, and took great delight in the strenuous exercises and hardships of life. Our subject received his education in Iowa, Oregon and Washington, being eighteen years of age when he came to the last named territory. When he had arrived at his majority, he took a homestead in Whetstone valley and was associated with his father in stock raising until the latter's death. It was 1901 when Mr. McCall sold his homestead and purchased the property where he now resides just out from Dayton. He owns two hundred and twenty acres of fine land which is well improved and utilized for diversified farming. Mr. McCall raises cattle, horses, hogs, poultry, sheep and all kinds of crops that do well in this latitude. He is an energetic and progressive man and has shown himself possessed of excellent wisdom in the calling he has pursued. He has a beautiful home, while thrift and industry are in evidence throughout the entire premises.

In 1890, Mr. McCall married Miss Sarah White, who was born in Iowa and crossed the plains with his parents in an ox train to the Willamette valley in 1862. Her father, Andrew W., was a pioneer of Oregon and married Miss Margaret Messinger, a native of Indiana. They crossed the plains to Oregon in pioneer days. To Mr. and Mrs. McCall four children have been born, Elmer B., deceased, Burrell, George L., and Bessie.

Mr. McCall is a member of the F. & A. M. and the W. W.

"Covello, A Pioneer Remembers"

By

Ward Benhart

There were three McCall homesteaders. A.E. was the last to get a patent but he had taught school one term in Illinois and three years in Oregon on his way west. James and Elijah proved up in 84. A.E. was an outstanding citizen. He was a leader in the drive for getting a railroad extension and for statehood. He was appointed joint representative for Columbia and Whitman counties on the territorial council and was elected to the first state legislature to represent Columbia County. He was always ready to help a neighbor in need and cosigned many notes and surety bonds. The McCalls had six children, Walter, Mary, Hattie, Charles, Fred and Zana. A.E. retired, rented the farm to Sigmund Marquis and moved the family to Dayton where tragedy struck in November of 1890. Marquis had given up his lease on the McCall land after renting the Thronson farm but presumably was entitled to half the straw from the last crop. The new McCall renter denied him this privilege. He rode into Dayton, tied his horse to the McCall yard fence and called A.E. out on the porch where an argument ensued. When McCall said no, Marquis pulled his gun and fired five shots, four of them hitting his target. He then turned the gun on himself but it was empty so he drew out his pocket knife and stabbed himself five times in the breast. He died that day and A.E. the next.

The family moved to Spokane soon after. Zana married a civil engineer named Joe Stimmer. Their daughter Dorothy, married Sid Mays of Dayton so she came back and still lives just west of the Lewis and Clark State Park. James and Elizabeth homesteaded west of A.E. Joe had bought land which joined A.E. on the south. Joe married Grace Porter (sister of Fred). They acquired a good sized spread at Fairfield and moved there but Joe died soon after the move. Grace returned to the Covello home and later sold it to the Neaces.

HON. A. E. McCALL, deceased, was a prominent and able citizen of Columbia county, Washington. He was born in Hawkins county, Tennessee, March 4, 1845, his parents being Joseph and Melinda (Craddock) McCall. When he was only five years of age his parents removed to Hancock county, Illinois, and there he was reared to manhood and adopted the profession of teaching. He was married there, April 8, 1869, and after his marriage resided on the old home farm, a little over a year, teaching one term of school during the winter.

In 1870, on account of ill-health, Mr. McCall came West. He and his wife remained in the Grande Ronde valley, Oregon, three years, he being engaged in farming principally during this time, and also teaching one term of school. In the meantime he visited Willowa valley several times with the intention of locating there, but was induced to give up the idea. In 1873 he left Oregon for Washington, arriving in Walla Walla valley on the 26th of July, and locating on 160 acres of railroad land. During the year he bought, also, 155 acres of deeded land. He raised grain and stock, and for a number of years taught school during the winter. He served two terms as Justice of the Peace. In 1880 he was appointed and served as United States Census Enumerator. In 1882 he was nominated for Joint Representative of Whitman and Columbia counties, but failed of election. In 1884, however, he was elected to represent Columbia county in the Territorial Legislature, and served in the ensuing session with credit. He was a Democrat politically, and was a staunch champion of the principles of the party. He was recognized as a man of character and ability, and his opinion on public matters always carried weight. Mr. McCall's death occurred November 25, 1891.

Mrs. McCall was formerly Miss Rebecca Evelyn Craddock. She was born in Hawkins county, Tennessee, daughter of James and Elizabeth Craddock. When a mere child she accompanied her parents to the vicinity of Agency, Wapello county, Iowa, where she was reared. Her mother died in Tennessee, her father in Iowa. The children of Mr. and Mrs. McCall are six in number, and are as follows: Walter, Alice, Hattie, Charles, Fred and Zana.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Sigmund Marquis Shoots A. E. McCall
Then Stabs Himself.

BOTH MEN DEAD.

A horrible tragedy was enacted in Dayton last Monday morning which caused a great deal of excitement and resulted in the death of two worthy citizens. There seems to be a long chain of circumstances which lead up to the time of the tragedy and which will never be revealed, having been buried with the unfortunate victims.

The principal cause of the trouble between Mr. Marquis and Mr. McCall seems to have been concerning a straw stack, half of which, according to good authority belonged to Marquis and half to McCall.

For several years Marquis has been a renter of McCall's farm near Covello. This season a verbal agreement was made between Marquis and McCall that McCall should have the entire stack of straw if he would pay for the stacking, providing Marquis moved to another county, which he talked of doing. It was also understood that if Marquis remained in the county, he would be entitled to half the straw stack, and was to pay for half the stacking. After harvest, Marquis decided to remain in the county. He rented the Thronson farm and recently moved his family onto the place. When settlement was made for thrashing he paid his part for stacking the straw. Last Saturday he went to haul his part of the straw to his new home, but was forbidden to take any by some one in authority, who is now living on McCall's farm. Marquis said he would take the straw as it belonged to him. In the afternoon it was his intention to haul another load, but was persuaded by his wife not to do so until he had consulted with Mr. McCall about the matter.

Marquis spent Sunday with his family and attended church. Monday morning he carried water for his wife, to help along with the washing and then started for town. Before starting his wife cautioned him not to have any trouble with McCall, to which Marquis replied: "I will have my rights, or I won't live." He then started for the barn to get his horse. When about half way to the barn he stopped as if in meditation, then turning, walked a few steps toward the house, then turned again, went to the barn, got on his horse and started for town. On the road he met Dan Duty, with whom he held a short conversation, and among other things said that he was coming to town to have a settlement with McCall, and that if the settlement is not satisfactory, "I won't live. If anything happens, be good to Johnny and the family."

As nearly as can be ascertained, Marquis rode directly to McCall's residence. He hitched his horse to the fence and went into the house where he found McCall. It is supposed a business talk was had between the two men, and from what soon after transpired, it is evident, was not satisfactory to Marquis. The two men came out of the house on the north side, and as McCall turned to go into the back lot Marquis said: "Well, are you going to let me have that straw, yes or no?" McCall replied, "No." Marquis then drew a revolver and shot McCall in the left breast. McCall being unarmed fled. Marquis followed and continued shooting until he had emptied his pistol, the second shot passing through McCall's hat and the fifth and last shot striking him in the back as he jumped the fence on Fourth street. McCall ran up stairs, loaded his revolver and stepping out on the porch, fired one shot at Marquis, who had stopped in the corner of the lot. After firing, McCall fell on the porch. Marquis seeing him fall, put the pistol to his own head and pulled the trigger, but the last shot had been fired. He then drew a pocket knife and turning to John Church, who rode up on horse back, said: "Have I fixed him?" Church replied, "I guess you have." Marquis then stabbed himself four times in the left breast and once in the right, and soon fell to the ground. Church took the pistol and knife from him, and Marquis said: "Here is the pistol that done the shooting and there is the knife that done the cutting. Don't blame anybody. I done it all myself."

The shooting took place about half-past ten o'clock and a few minutes later almost every inhabitant was shocked by the horrible news. As soon as possible physicians were on hand, but it was beyond their power to do more than relieve intense suffering, as the wounds inflicted were fatal.

Mr. Marquis was then taken to a room in Engel's lodging house, where he died soon after 12 o'clock. His last words were: "All that I regret about this is that McCall is not dead."

His remains were taken to the residence of J. M. Morgan in Brooklyn, from where he was buried on Tuesday. He was 50 years of age and leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss. He was a poor man financially, but from all accounts was rich in friendship and commanded the respect of his neighbors, who all have a good word to say for him, for what he has been in years gone by.

Mr. McCall lingered until Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, when he expired. He has been a resident of this county for many years and had acquired considerable property. Not long ago he purchased the Rainwater place, and moved his family to the city, no doubt to take the world easy and school his children. He has always been a hard working man and had just reached such circumstances as would enable him to live in comfort the remainder of his days. He once represented Columbia county in the territorial council, was a member of the United Brethren church, and has raised a fine family.

He made his will Monday, leaving all his property to his wife. His funeral, which was held at the Southern Methodist church Wednesday morning, was largely attended. His remains were interred in the cemetery near Covello. He was forty-five years of age, a man of considerable ability, universally respected by his neighbors and worshiped by his family.

Ray McCall Victim of Fairmont Hotel Fire

Ray H. McCall, former Dayton man, was burned to death in the flames which ruined the major part of the Fairmont hotel in Spokane Friday night. Two other deaths occurred in the fire, those of an elevator operator and a Lewis and Clark high school senior.

The fire was thought to have started in the basement of the hotel and roared up an elevator shaft, mushrooming out on the upper floors.

Miss Wilma Knox, Dayton girl, who is employed on a Spokane publication, and a companion, Miss Marian Peterson were nearly trapped in the flames on the fourth floor where they were rooming. When they became aware the hotel was afire they rushed to the stairway, but flames were coming up the stairs. They phoned to the clerk and asked him to send an elevator so they could get out. It was nearly a half hour before the elevator arrived. They considered jumping out of the window into the court which would have been fatal and finally had to crawl down the hall to the elevator on their hands and knees, their faces covered with wet towels. Miss Knox lost all of her clothing in the fire except what she was wearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Black, of Dayton, were among those in Spokane during the fire and state that it was an awesome spectacle. The traffic conditions and jam of spectators was beyond anything they ever saw.

Man Dies In Tragic Death

Friends and acquaintances of George Crall were shocked Friday evening at receiving word of his tragic death. He was crushed by a log which fell from his truck while he was unloading at the Reinland mill on South Fourth street, about 4:30 that evening.

George had spent nearly his whole life working with timber, either in the woods or in trucking logs, and there were none more familiar with the work than he and those who knew the abilities of George unconsciously thought of him as indestructible.

Always careful of his equipment and keeping it in top shape, George didn't use the more common way of a line to unload his logs. On this occasion he had unfastened the binding chains, leaving the "gut" chain until last, and that was his misfortune. When that chain was loosened, the top log swung and rolled and caught George underneath.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Hubbard-Rogg chapel with Rev. J. Logan Peringer officiating.

George Crall was born at Grangeville, Idaho, October 11, 1895. While still a child his parents moved to Garfield county, and on to Dayton about 1910.

December 1, 1923, he was married to Alice McCall, who survives him. Other survivors are two sons, Lewis Johnson of Walla Walla, Gene Crall of Dayton; one daughter, Mrs. Wally Robins of Dayton, and his father, Frank Crall of Dayton. There are also five grandchildren.
