HISTORY

OF

WHITMAN COUNTY

STATE OF WASHINGTON

W. H. LEVER, PUBLISHER

JOHN T. WALLACE.—This enterprising merchant of the town of Albion was born in Missouri, on June 21, 1846, his parents being David O. and Ellen (Turner) Wallace. He acquired a common-school education in his native state and continued to reside therein until 1872, when he removed to Kansas and engaged in farming, which industry continued to furnish a field for the exercise of his energies until 1882, in which year he retired temporarily from active participation in the vocations of life, that he might indulge to a certain extent his passion for travel. In 1886 he decided to locate in Albion, this county, where for the ensuing three years he served as principal of the public school.

In 1889 he engaged in the mercantile business in Albion, and in the upbuilding and extending of his trade he has busied himself ever since. He is the owner of a fine, well-stocked store, supplied in abundant measure with everything which experience has shown him that the trade demands, and he is justly regarded as among the leading merchants of Whitman county.

We should not neglect to mention the very important fact that our subject has the honor of having bravely upheld the flag and the Union in the dark days when fraternal warfare was rife in the land. On May 24, 1863, though not yet seventeen years old, he enlisted in Company K, Sixth Missouri Cavalry, and was mustered out in St. Louis, July 18, 1865. On October 4, 1863, he was captured at Neosho, Missouri, but was released on parole of honor and two months afterwards was back in his regiment again. He participated in all the battles and skirmishes of the campaign against Price in 1864, in every engagement acquitting himself with credit, and discharging all his military duties with courage and ability.

Mr. Wallace has been a member of the Christian church since 1868, and is now one of the leaders of that organization in Albion. He is also prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity, being a charter member of the local lodge, and at present its master.

On October 22, 1868, the marriage of our subject to Miss Hannah J., daughter of William H. and Catherine (Quinn) Frederick, natives of Ohio, was duly solemnized, and they became parents of five children, J. Leslie, Noah W., Herbert H., Charles B. and one that died in infancy. Mrs. Wallace died December 25, 1900, at the age of fifty years. She was a member of the Christian church for thirty-seven years, and a sincere, earnest worker in it, and when she was summoned to the life beyond her husband was deprived of a devoted helpmeet and the children of a loving, kind mother.

JOHN L. WALLACE.

For almost ten years John L. Wallace has been engaged in the abstract, real estate, loan and insurance business in Dayton, where he conducts his interests as a partner in the firm of the Weatherford-Wallace Company, ranking with the leading business men and representative residents of the city. He was born in Harvey county, Kansas, on the 16th of August, 1874, his parents being John T. and Hannah J. (Frederick) Wallace, who came west to Washington in 1886, settling in Whitman county. The father was engaged in educational work for twenty-three years, teaching in Kansas and Missouri, and after coming to Washington he identified himself with mercantile interests and for a number of years was engaged in business in Albion. Subsequently he resumed the profession of teaching and became connected with the schools of Lincoln county, where he was located at the time of his death, which occurred about 1906. For several years he had survived his wife, who died on Christmas day of 1900.

John L. Wallace had the usual advantages of the public schools and in 1892 entered the Portland (Oregon) Business College, where he pursued a commercial course. In the summer of 1893 he was offered and accepted the position of manager of a grain warehouse in Albion and in 1894 and 1895 he was a student in the Washington Agricultural College at Pullman, now the Washington State College. Subsequently he went to Hailey, Idaho, where he was employed for two and a half years in a grocery house. He then returned home but after a year he went to Portland, Oregon, in 1898 and became one of the teachers in the Portland Business College, there spending seven years. While thus engaged he took up the study of law, attending night school, and in 1901 he was admitted to the bar in the state of Oregon. He continued teaching, however, in the business college until 1904, when he returned to Whitman county, Washington, and through the succeeding two years devoted his attention to merchandising in Albion. In the fall of 1907 he was appointed deputy county prosecutor of Whitman county and on the 1st of July, 1908, he came to Dayton, where he bought a partnership in the Geo. B. Baker Company, an abstract, real estate, loan and insurance business. He has since been engaged in this line and has won for himself a prominent position, having a very large clientage. He has negotiated many important realty transfers, has placed many loans and has written a large amount of insurance, so that his business has reached a most gratifying figure.

On the 4th of June, 1902, Mr. Wallace was united in marriage to Miss Sophia A. Schmidt, of Portland, Oregon, by whom he has one child, Dean Leslie. Mr. Wallace was a stalwart supporter of republican principles for many years but in 1912 left the ranks of the party and followed Roosevelt in the organization of the progressive party. He has since been a staunch advocate of progressive republicanism and is recognized as one of the political leaders of this section of the state. Fraternally he is connected with Dayton Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M.;

Dayton Chapter, No. 5, R. A. M.; Alki Lodge, No. 136, I. O. O. F.; and the Dayton Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, while both he and his wife are members of Rainbow Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

For the past seven years Mr. Wallace has served as city clerk of Dayton and has made a most excellent record as a public official, being careful and systematic in the discharge of his duties and at all times prompt and faithful to the trust reposed in him. He has many admirable traits of character, is loyal to the public good, is thoroughly reliable in all business dealings, holds friendship inviolable and is devoted to the welfare of his family. His pronounced characteristics have gained for him a high position in public regard, while his enterprise and indefatigable energy have placed him among the leading business men of his adopted city.

WILLIAM D. WALLACE resides about eight miles southwest from Starbuck, on the old Mullan road. He also has a residence at Waitsburg, Washington, where he spends a portion of the time. He gives his attention to stock raising and general farming and is one of the substantial men of Columbia county. Mr. Wallace has so conducted himself in life that he has made an unsullied reputation and stands well in the community. He was born in Taylorsville, Indiana, on May 26, 1852, the son of John and Minerva E. (Duffy) Wallace. The mother was born in Jefferson county, Indiana. Her father was of Irish extraction and her mother of French. Our subject's father was born in Jefferson county, Indiana, and is a direct descendant of Sir William Wallace, of fame in Scotch history. He is a millright and built several plants throughout the central states. He is also an engineer and mechanic. In 1892, he came to Moscow, Idaho, and later erected a mill at Kendrick, which he finally sold. He is now residing with his wife at Moscow. During the Civil War, he was in government service as an engineer. His mother was a native of Amsterdam, Holland. Our subject moved to Iowa with his parents when a child and completed his education in the Oskaloosa college of that state. After that, he learned the moulder's trade and became an expert machinist and engineer and followed the latter for several years. In 1876, he turned from this occupation and took up farming in Iowa. Two years later, he came to Walla Walla and again went to work at his trade in the mill. The next year, however, he settled on Whiskey creek mountain and in 1880, he transferred his residence to Columbia county and here has been engaged in farming ever since. He follows this occupation and has made an excellent success in it. During his stay here, he has been deputy assessor for three terms and has ever manifested a lively interest in political matters and local affairs of the country. He is well informed and a man of influence.

Mr. Wallace is a member of the I. O. O. F., while he and his wife belong to the Baptist church at Dayton. They have one child, William H., a student at the Waitsburg academy. Mr. Wallace has a quarter section of fine land besides property in other places.

W. D. WALLACE,

Republican nominee from the third district, for county commissioner, is a bright and energetic farmer, who usually takes more interest in the general welfare of the county than the average citizen. He was one of the foremost workers in securing votes in favor of the court house, and takes a special pride in improving county roads, and has at different times contributed his labor gratuitously in bettering their condition. He belongs to a family of republicans, his father and one brother now occupying important offices in Kansas. Mr. Wallace was born in Indiana where he lived for nine years, when he moved to Iowa, remaining there twenty years. Came to Whiskey Creek Mountain, in the fall of 1878 and two years later moved to his present home in Fields Gulch. He is well posted in regard to every locality in the county and knows just what should be done to better the condition of each section. There is no better man for commissioner in the land than Mr. Wallace.

KNOW YOUR KIWANIAN

John L. Wallace was born in Harvey, County, Kansas, on August 16, 1874. To the best of his recollection, the birth occurred in a sod house, out on the plains. He was the fifth child born to his parents, and the first to survive.

On the first day of April, 1886, the Wallace family, father, mother, John, and three younger brothers, took advantage of the rate war between the Santa Fe, the Central Pacific, the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific, and started west, at a rate of six dollars a head for adults and half fare for children. Also accompanying the family was Uncle Aps Ausman a potential Indian fighter, carrying a long barreled Colt purchased for that particular use. At a small town in New Mexico the train was greeted by a number of cowboys, firing their guns in welcome. At that point Uncle Aps lost all interest in gun-play, and effectively became a non-combatant by dropping his weapon down the toilet, so making his mark in history. Some men are born to fame, some achieve fame, and some have fame thrust upon them.

Such was the progress of this happy family westward. Subsequently the family settled in Whitman County, Washington, at Albion. The trip west merely a taste to the younger Wallace boys, being of an impressionable age. Bernie worked on the railroad, Herbie's occupations were too numerous to catalogue, and Wilbur became an itinerant house mover. John the eldest, of a more mature nature, became the owner and operator of a combination mortuary and grocery store at Albion. Albion was a dying town, but not fast enough, so John turned his attention to his education, attending the Washington State Agricultural College, and received his degree in law from the University of Oregon. After graduation he taught in the Portland Business College. Back to Albion, to Colfax, and to Dayton in 1908.

Justly famous for his literary works, the best known is that classic, "How to make Money Raising Castor Beans", and his "Reply to the Western Pacific Collection Agency on how to get in touch with Mrs. Effie P. Finney, deceased".

By Dean Wallace

KNOW YOUR KIWANIAN

Maybe you were around on September 28, 1910--if you were, did you see John Wallace?

That was quite a day for him and his good wife Sophia, so no wonder he looked as he did.

The reason? Oh, yes, it was this way--that long-legged bird had just flown in with a fair sized bundle for John and Sophia. They named him Dean Leslie.

Years passed, and he grew through all the stages of boyhood, as stories and the Album testify.

Now, here is a "cutey" taken of our boy at approximately the great age of four. The photographer is north, Dean is heading south, clad in a sleeping suit, completely unaware that he should be feeling a draft. Yes, indeed, the Album is a great institution.

Turn a page; there he is again--he had been hoeing beans that summer, teen-year. Here's another--he must have started golfing in his early teens. No wonder he is considered a fair golfer when he plays.

Here's another--say, not a bad sized fish--must be "that" steel-head, or maybe one of those fabulous Kamloops trout. Of course, it makes no difference-- he fishes streams, rivers, or lakes. Have you seen his new boat--half Wes'--half his? Pretty fancy! The boys made it, too.

Yes, that's Dean on skis--right over there. Here's one of him standing up.

What are these pictures? Hi-school. Graduated in 1928 from the local halls of learning. A year at Moran School for boys on Bainbridge Island as a junior, but he was handed his diploma in Dayton. Then, to Seattle and the University of Washington for a couple of years.

Now, who's this--oh, sure, that's Adelaide. He met her in Seattle. They were married in '33, in Seattle, came back to Dayton to live.

This must be Leslie, she's ten, now. And, here is David--he's nine.

Here are more pictures--flying. Oh, yes--our dad can fly an airplane. He was a soldier, too, an infantry-man--Camp Roberts--what a place!

Should have a snap of John and Dean with their Kiwanis Past-president's pins shining in the sun. Yes, they each were.

Indeed, that was quite a day for John--did you see him?

Mr. Wallace was instrumental in forming Dayton Kiwanis club and served as charter president in 1922 and was re-elected in 1923. He also served as a Kiwanis lieutenant governor. Resident Here 45 Years Dies

Funeral services were held from the Congregational church Monday afternoon for Mrs. Sophia Andrea Wallace, wife of John L. Wallace, 45 years a resident of Dayton.

Mrs. Wallace died suddenly early Friday morning at the family home and her passing was a great shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Wallace was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, September 6, 1874. With her parents she moved to Portland, Oregon, when about 12 years old. At an early age she became identified with the millinery business and at the time of her marriage was designer for a wholesale millinery house.

Rev. J. Logan Peringer of the Congregational church officiated at the service, and said of Mrs. Wallace:

"She was married to John L. Wallace at Portland, Oregon, on the 4th day of June, 1902, and at the time of her death had completed more than 51 years of married life.

"Sophia loved the beautiful things. She loved the flowers; she was thrilled at the sight of a beautiful sunset; she saw beauty in all nature.

"She did not live a spectacular life, but went along in her quiet way, having little thought of herself, but seemed to live for the good she could do others. The thought of starving people in foreign countries pulled at her heart strings. Her home was a haven for birds, and no stray dog ever came to her kitchen door and left without food.

"She avoided everything that would attract attention to herself. It was her wish that her 50th wedding anniversary go by unnoticed.

"She passed into eternity as quietly as she had lived. The sundown of her life came as she would have had it."

The Wallaces came to Dayton in July, 1908, and have since taken

Dean L. Wallace

Feb. 27, 1991, pg. 3

Dean L. Wallace, 80 years of age, will be laid to rest at the family plot at the Dayton City Cemetery.

Dean was born in Dayton at his parents' home near the Touchet River on Tremont St. on Sept. 28, 1910. He attended Moran Boys School and graduated from Dayton High School in 1929, furthering his education at the University of Washington. When attending the university, Dean met Adelaide Ellen Oliver, whom he married on May 21, 1933.

He went into business with his father, John Leslie Wallace, and expanded the Wallace Insurance Agency, Columbia County Title Co., and also farmed wheat and peas southeast of town until his retirement in 1961. He was involved with many local and community organizations: Lions, Eagles, Elks, Kiwanis. The Dayton Golf and Country Club was his pride and joy, because he had spent all his extra time perfecting his golf with Cub Winnett, Deb Laughery and others.

If you couldn't find him at work or at the Golf Course, he was probably over at the Snake River fishing with Wes Blize.

After the untimely death of Adelaide, he pulled his family together, and if you had the slightest interest in snow skiing, you always knew that Dean was taking the kids up to Spout Springs every weekend.

It was very seldom when the old Pontiac wasn't packed with kids each ski year.

After the children had graduated from High School, he remarried to Annabelle Ludwick on November 10, 1957. She passed away on August 8, 1983.

It was a blessing that he wintered in Mazatlan, Mexico, for the past 23 years, so he could rest up for the next summer's romp with his grandchildren and, lately, his great-grandchildren.

In time of need, he always showed up with a special sharing and wanted little in return, that was just Dean. "He just wanted to be proud of each and every one of us. In life, sometimes that high of a standard is difficult to maintain, but we have all done it, and will continue to do so for generations to come."

His remaining family members are his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. & Mrs. John Anderson (Leslie) of Calgary, Alberta, Canada; his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. & Mrs. David Wallace of Spokane; six grandchildren—Mr. & Mrs. Mike Reinland of Walla Walla, Mr. & Mrs. Jeff Peterson (Tracy) of Wenatchee; Andy & Pat Reinland of Seattle, Jeff Wallace also of Seattle, Julie Wallace of Spokane; and four great-grandchildren.

DOUBLE FUNERAL.
Burial of Two Prominent Citizens, Victims of Auto Accident.

(Waitsburg Times)
 The funerals of Millard H. Keiser and William D. Wallace, who met their death Wednesday evening, Sept. 24th, when their auto was struck by a train at the R. C. McCaw crossing west of this city, was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.
 The services took place at the Christian church, of which both men were members. Rev. A. F. Van Slyke, pastor of this church delivered the funeral address.
 This double funeral was very largely attended, and this church, which has the largest seating capacity of any building in town, was too small to accommodate the friends of the two families, who desired to pay their last respects to two of our best-beloved citizens.

J. S. Wallace, a brother of W. D. Wallace, with his wife, arrived Sunday from Sac City, Iowa, to attend the funeral, and a sister of W. D. Wallace, Mrs. Jennie E. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Jennie F. Rosson, of Moscow, Idaho, were also able to be present.

The funeral was conducted by Samuel & Bailey and the double funeral effect was carried throughout the entire service. The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers, with many specially designed wreaths given by the church, lodges and individuals.

The pallbearers were the 12 men of the official board of the church. Both Mr. Wallace and Mr. Keiser were on the board. They were H. D. Mills, O. M. Conover, A. E. Clark, A. J. McLaughlin, F. P. Mills, Glen Conover, D. E. Howell, Frank McCown, L. E. Mock, Dr. C. A. Wayne, W. E. Price and M. B. Buroker

Interment of both bodies was in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery, under the auspices of the local lodges of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, of which order these men had been affiliated for many years.

William D. Wallace.

William D. Wallace was born at Taylorsville, Indiana, on May 26th, 1851. When a young man he moved with his parents to Keokuk county, Iowa. Here he met Miss Hannah De Witt to whom he was afterwards married. To this union one son was born, Mr. William Wallace, of this city. In the year 1878 he removed to Walla Walla county and a short time afterwards took up a homestead in what is known as the Field's Gulch country in Columbia county. On March 23, 1905, Mrs. Wallace passed away and later he was married to Mrs. Sarah F. Harris who survives him.

Millard H. Keiser.

Millard H. Keiser was born near Silverton, Oregon, May 19th, 1854. With his parents he came to Walla Walla county in 1872, where they settled on a homestead now known as Valley Home farm in Spring Valley. Afterwards he entered a homestead also, and on March 1st, 1874, was married to Miss Clara McBride, who was a teacher in the Spring Valley school. To this union were born four children, Cecil of Spring Valley; Dell, of Vera, Wash.; Maurine, of Waitsburg, who survive their father, and Nellie, who passed away Jan. 25th, 1915. In 1897 the family moved to Waitsburg, where on July 30th, 1917, Mrs. Keiser passed away. Mr. Keiser was a member of nine different lodges, Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, Masons, Camp, A. O. U. W., W. O. W., Modern Woodmen, Circle and Eastern Star.

An aunt of Asa and Frank Johnson, of this city, who had lived under 26 presidents was buried last week in Seattle at the age of 104.

She was Mrs. Martha Applegate Wallace, who celebrated her 104th birthday last November 6. She was believed to have been the oldest Seattle resident, stated the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Andrew Jackson, seventh president, was in the White House when Mrs. Wallace was born in Oxford, Ohio, in 1835. The first telegraph line in the United States was still eight years away, and the question of slavery was not then the burning issue that it became 25 years later.

Abraham Lincoln was a young man studying law in Illinois, and a few days after her birth Texas proclaimed its independence of Mexico and the siege of the Alamo followed.

After she reached her young womanhood, Mrs. Wallace saw plenty of history. During the Civil War she was married to John Scott Wallace, and they lived in Indiana until 1874, when they came to Washington, settling near Mount Vernon.

Seattle was then a small community of about 2,000 persons, and Mrs. Wallace has watched with interest the development of her adopted state. In 1905 the Wallaces moved to Seattle where Mr. Wallace died in 1909.

Alert physically and mentally, Mrs. Wallace took a keen interest in life. With her daughter, Miss Lillie Wallace, she made her home at 1413 3rd Ave. W., and each year as many members of her family as could reach there were present to help her observe her birthday.

A member of the United Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Wallace was a devout Christian, and attributed her longevity to her reading of the Bible, a daily practice.

Last fall she helped her daughter with the canning, and until she had a fall recently in which she broke a rib, she was able to be up daily. She had an attack of the flu last winter, and failed to rally. The end came May 19 at her home where she insisted she wished to be to answer the Lord's summons.

Friends gathered in the chapel of Arthur A. Wright and Son for the final rites, and the centenarian was laid to rest in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Besides the daughter with whom she lived there are three other children, Mrs. Eva Blake of Olympia; the Rev. Scott Wallace of Los Angeles and Irvin Wallace of Sedro Woolley. There are also numerous grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Dora Elizabeth Wallace

By E. S. Hubbard

Dora Elizabeth Wallace, age 80 years, passed away Tuesday, July 20, 1944 at Western State Hospital in the land of the setting sun under the shadow of beautiful Mt. Tacoma.

She was born of true pioneer stock, of parents who emigrated from Old Virginia and settled on the plains of Kansas before the Civil War. There Dora Hubbard was born in 1864.

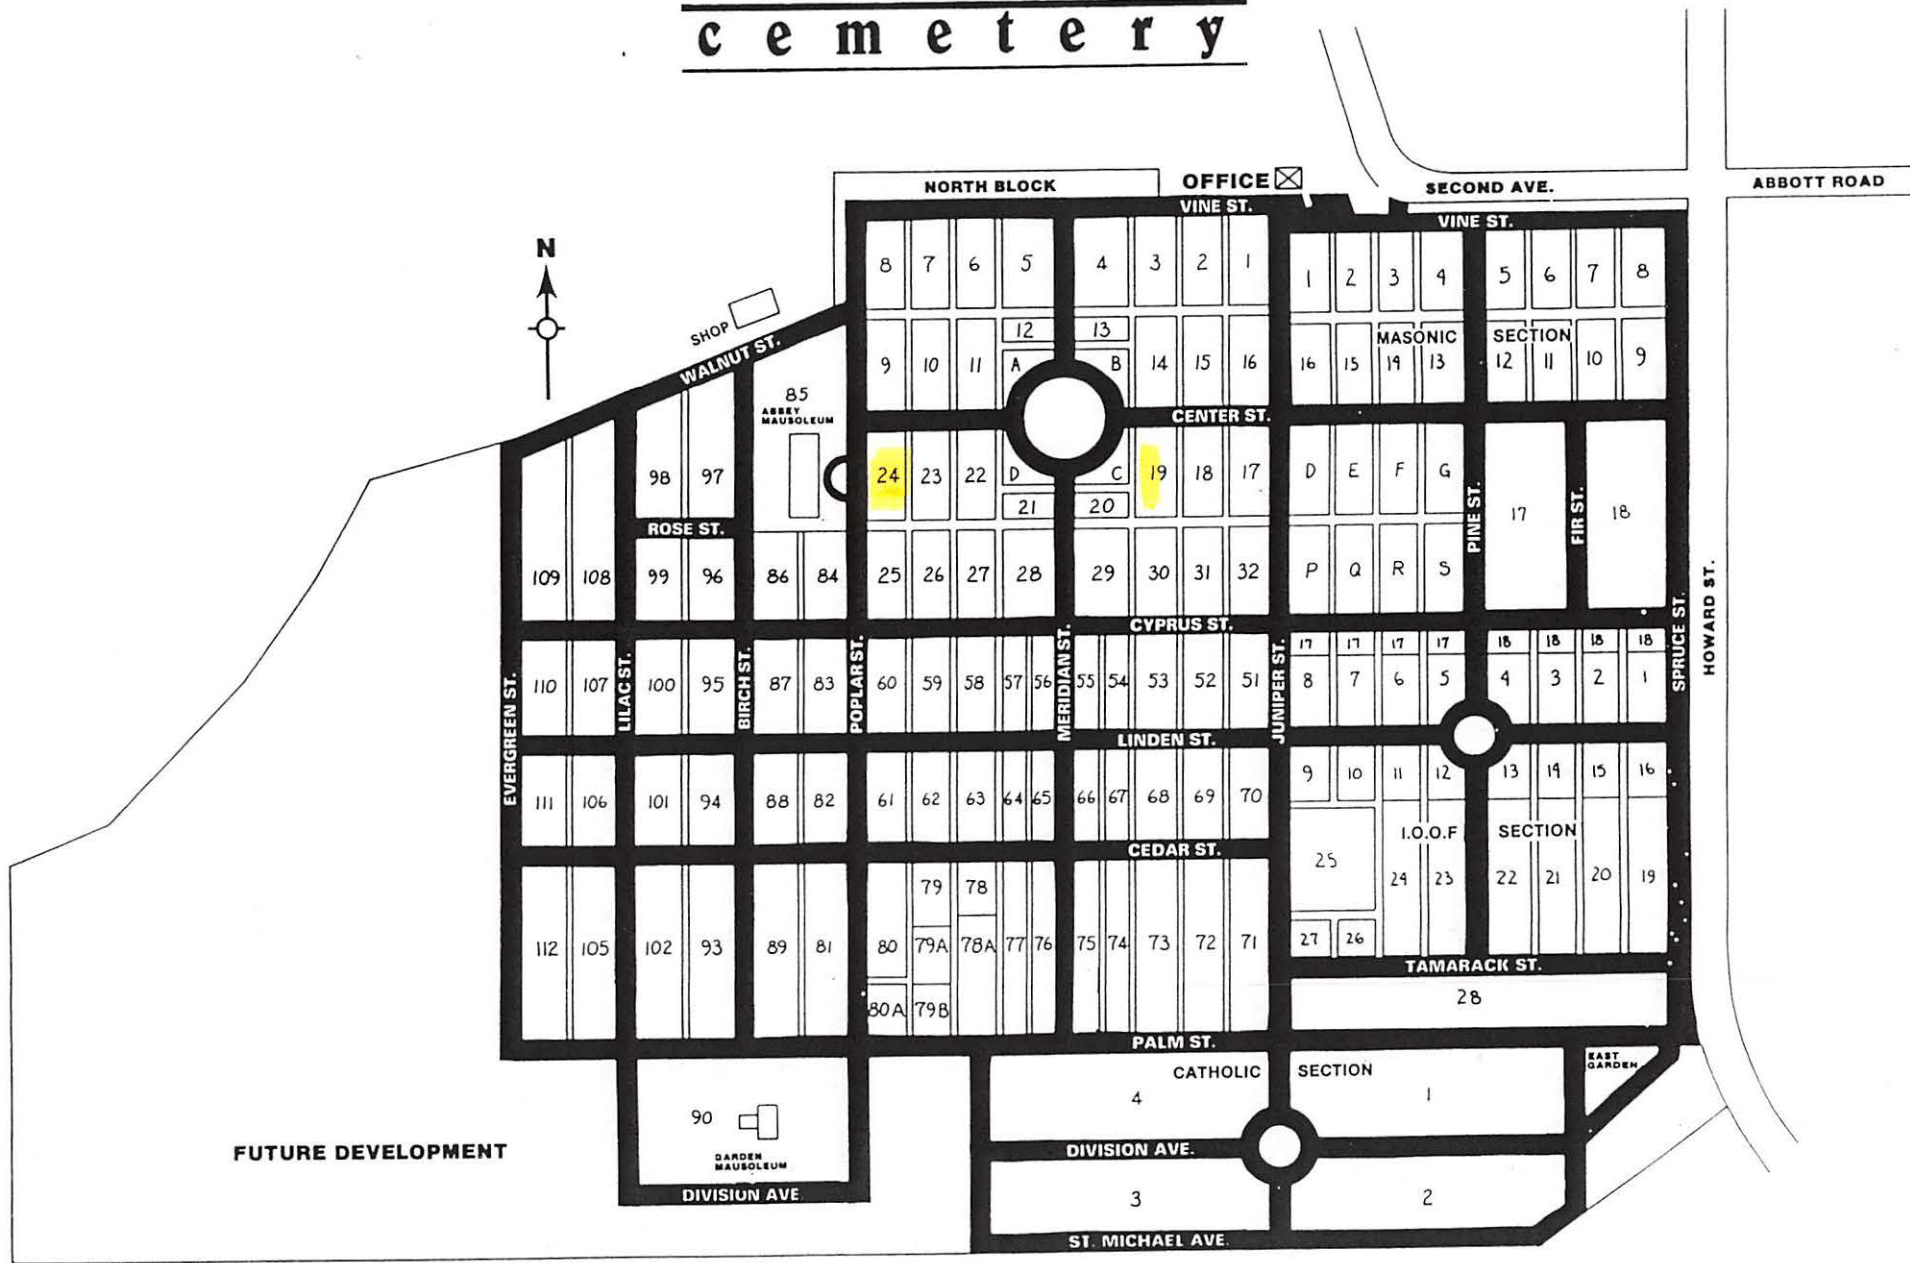

In 1865 the parents started on that long long trail a winding. That trail that covered many hardships and dangers. A trail that passed burning emigrant camps where the Indians had done their deviltry. A trail that took five months and five days to cover before they landed in the Willamette valley.

In 1871 the parents again moved, this time northward, and settled on the old homestead six miles northeast of Dayton known as the Old Hubbard Place. Here her early girlhood was spent.

The last fifty years of her life were spent mostly on the WILLIAM WALSH is a pioneer of Columbia county and well known all through southeastern Washington. For thirty years he has labored in this country and has accomplished much for its building up. He was born in Monroe county, New York, on January 17, 1844, being the son of Patrick and Anna (Gilmore) Walsh, natives of Ireland. They were married in their native country and came to America in 1824 and settled in Canada. Some years later they removed to the United States and made their home in Monroe county, New York, where they remained until their death. They were the parents of seven children whose names are mentioned below, Thomas. John.

James, William, Mary A., Ellen, and Antasia. Our subject spent the first sixteen years of his life in Cornwall, Canada, then came with his parents to New York and remained in Monroe county until twenty years of age. He spent the winters of each year in study and upon arriving at his majority, he went to Green Bay, Wisconsin, and engaged in the lumber woods. This occupied him during the winters and the summers were spent in the shingle mills. He thus labored for six years and then came by team to southwestern Minnesota, where he took a homestead and remained five years. After that he returned to Wisconsin, and later came back to Minnesota whence in 1875, he journeyed west to southeastern Washington. For six months he was employed in the mountains, then bought a man's right to the timber culture where he lived for twenty-five years. He purchased other land and now has a choice farm about six miles northwest from Dayton. In 1901, Mr. Walsh retired from active business and removed to Walla Walla where he has a lovely residence and some real estate. He spends a portion of his time in that city and a portion on his farm in Columbia county.

In 1872, Mr. Walsh married Mrs. Avilla Eastwood, a native of Watertown, Wisconsin, where her parents remained until their death. To this union six children have been born, Anna O., the wife of C. H. Minion in Adams county, Washington, Aggie, the wife of J. A. Waddell in Walla Walla county, Washington; Daisy, the wife of W. S. Strong in Whitman county, Washington; Herbert, in Walla Walla; Daphne and Ora at home.

In political matters, Mr. Walsh is a Republican and is a hard worker in his party. He has held various offices and has given liberally of his time and attention to the advancement of school matters. He and his wife are members of the Catholic church and have reared their family in that faith. Mr. Walsh is deserving of the commendation of his fellows,

DAYTON'S OLDEST
PIONEER PASSES

15 Mar 1928

Richard (Dick) Walsh died at the family home on Fourth street early Saturday morning following an illness of several years. Mr. Walsh, with his nurse and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Rex Walsh, had gone out of the house, following his inability to sleep, and passed away as they were crossing the yard. Funeral services were held from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel on Tuesday, and interment was had in the Dayton cemetery.

Although Mr. Walsh has seldom been on the street in the past few years he was probably one of Columbia county's best known citizens. At the time of his death he was the oldest resident of the city in point of residence. Mr. Walsh located in Dayton in 1872 and came here from Walla Walla to help set up machinery for a woolen mill. Ten years before that he had camped at the mouth of the patit, and there was no town here then. The story of Mr. Walsh's life would be most interesting.

He was born in Ireland and came to America with his parents when an infant, and at the age of 14 came west with a friend of his parents because of poor health. Mr. Walsh had been a woolen mill employ and had learned his trade at the time he came west. The trip to San Francisco was made by way of the Isthmus of Panama. Landing at the Golden Gate, the traveling companion of Mr. Walsh did not like the looks of things and returned east. Mr. Walsh learning of his companion's intentions paid his hotel bill and left the city on foot. He spent several years in California, then drifted into this country. One of his first activities in this country was the working of mining claims in the Florence and Orofino districts of Idaho. Later he operated a pack train of forty mules between Wallula and Missoula, Montana. During his time in Montana he learned considerable about the cleaning up of the famous Plummer gang, and has told many interesting incidents connected with this activity.

Mr. Walsh was united in married in 1873 with Clara Watrous, member of another Columbia county pioneer family. After the marriage the couple moved to San Francisco but lived there only a year before returning to Dayton where they have since resided. For many years Mr. Walsh "ran" horses in this country, but was finally forced out of that business by the fencing of the ranges. Mr. Walsh maintained one of the best gardens in the country. His garden was punctuated with trees bearing the finest apples and the juiciest cherries, in the whole northwest. "Dick" Walsh, a man highly thought of by his business associates will also long linger in the memories of those who knew him when they were "kids."

Besides his widow, Mrs. Clara Walsh, he is survived by one daughter Mrs. Jess Matzger of Dayton, and three sons, Frank and Myrl Walsh of Port Angeles, and Rex Walsh of Spokane. Rev. W. C. Gilmore conducted the funeral services.

MRS. RICHARD WALSH

Mrs. Richard Walsh, 88, one of Dayton's oldest residents, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jess Matzger, Wednesday afternoon at about four o'clock. She had been in declining health since experiencing a fall several years ago, but her condition had not been serious until lately. Funeral arrangements have not been made pending word from relatives.

Clara Watrous was born in Iowa
May 8, 1852, and came here in 1874.
When a young woman she took employment in the woolen mills, a pioneer industry here, and there she met Richard Walsh, a weaver in the mills, whom she married a year later.

Mr. and Mrs. Walsh made their home on Fourth St. throughout their married life, and there Mr. Walsh died in 1928. Since that time Mrs.
Walsh has lived with her daughter, Mrs. Jess Matzger. She was a member of the Rebeleh lodge, and a member of the Methodist church in the early days. Of late years her church affiliation has been the Congregational.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Matzger, Mrs. Walsh leaves three sons, Frank, of Port Angeles, Rex, of Athol, Idaho, and Myrl Walsh of Pasco, six grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. P. A. Hatfield of Dayton. The original Watrous family was one of the largest families of early settlers, and she has many other close relatives throughout the county.

WILLIAM W. WALTER.

William W. Walter, an honored pioneer of Washington, was born in Wayne county, Indiana, September 7, 1827. He was a descendant through his mother, Rachel Doddridge, of the Doddridge family of England. The name of Phillip Doddridge is common in the Walter family and every branch of the family has one child bearing the name of Doddridge. The father, William Walter, Sr., was a Virginian who lived for a time in Maryland and afterwards became a resident of Ohio and still later of Indiana, where his son, William W. Walter, was born. When the latter was eight years of age the family removed to Iowa, which was then a wild, unclaimed country. In 1845 the spirit of emigration swept over the east and Mr. Walter, then a youth of seventeen years, was among those who desired to see the great country beyond the Rocky mountains. His father, being of a roving turn of mind, decided to emigrate. That spring all was made ready and soon they had started on that long and perilous journey. Several families of the relatives, with many others, formed a company of about sixty-five wagons and elected Sol Tetheroe, a man experienced in that line of work, as their captain. They moved in order, stood guard every night to avoid surprise, and parties of hunters were organized to furnish game for the camp. The first part of the journey was very pleasant. Dancing on the green at night and hunting big game by day was very pleasing to the youngsters at least. Buffaloes were so plentiful there was often trouble keeping them out of camp. As they traveled along immense herds would come bearing down on the train, when riders would be sent out and guns fired to turn them from their course and save the train from being run down and trampled by the huge beasts. On the eastern slope the company experienced the first Indian scare. They were in the Crow country and Indians had been in sight all day, skirting around in small parties. Late in the day several hundred Indians confronted them, yelling and beating drums and dashing wildly toward them. The emigrants thought an attack was imminent and corralled the wagons, thus making a fortification. They placed the women and children in the circle and the men made ready to fight. Then a Rocky Mountain man named Greenwood, who was acting as guide, rode out to meet the Indians and called a council. After a talk the Indians dispersed although they had intended an attack. Only the influence of Greenwood, whose wife was a Crow Indian, saved them from serious trouble. The greatest excitement on the trip was caused by a stampede of the teams. One never experiencing a stampede cannot form any idea of the terror and danger. There seems to be a sort of animal telepathy among cattle, so that at a signal from one, a thousand head will go wild in an instant. Then imagine if you can a train of sixty-five wagons with from five to ten yoke of oxen to a wagon tearing along the prairie at full speed, teams doubling, passing each other, tearing off wheels, amid the screams of children scattered along the way. Some teams ran two miles before stopping, yet with it all no one was killed, although one woman had a leg broken and several wagons were demolished. It took some time to get in moving order again and mothers were looking for their children and the babies crying for their mothers. The excitement was intense and it was an experience never to be forgotten. At length, however, the party moved on again. At Fort Hall they met Steve Meek, a brother of Joe Meek, who agreed to show them a new route to Oregon bearing more to the south, crossing the Cascade mountains near the head waters of the Willamette, thus avoiding the Blue mountains. He made the proposed route appear so feasible that they followed him, leaving the old trail near Boise, Idaho. They followed the Mathew river to the south and west and soon found themselves in a trackless desert of sagebrush, rock and sand but with little feed for the stock, and to add to their troubles they could no longer find water. They traveled on and on, sending men ahead to search for water. These men returned and reported water forty miles ahead, so that the party traveled all night to reach it. While encamped there resting, a man herding the cattle picked up a large nugget of gold and from that find originated the famous blue nugget gold find, but the spot has never been located again, at least no mine has been discovered. People starving would not remember places very well as they were more anxious about something to eat. The party forced the guide to pilot them to The Dalles, which he did. When at last they reached the Deschutt river they were in a pitiable condition, many being sick from lack of food. There they lashed wagon boxes together for a raft and ferried over their effects, swimming the cattle. Finally they arrived at The Dalles, where they cut trees in the forest, made rafts of the logs, loaded wagons and families on them and proceeded to float down the Columbia, while the boys and younger men drove the cattle down the trails. The rafts were tied up at night and camp made on shore. It now began to rain and food was almost an unknown article. They had had no bread for weeks. Those are the hardships which try men's souls and show what stuff they are made of. When they reached the Cascades they made the portage with the teams over the muddiest roads ever seen, it requiring three days to travel six miles. Their only food until they reached Vancouver was a salmon now and then purchased of the Indians. Dr. McLoughlin came to their relief most nobly when they reached Vancouver. They afterwards moved out to the Tualitin plains, in Washington county, Oregon, and settled on as fine land as ever lay out of doors. The principal food supply that winter was boiled wheat and potatoes, with plenty of deer meat. The following year was a prosperous one and the hardships were forgotten and life in the main was a happy existence. In the fall of 1847 the news of the Whitman massacre reached that country. The people were wild with excitement and a company of volunteers was organized. All were eager to join it. Mr. Walter joined and served through the war.

In 1849 the discovery of gold in California caused great excitement and all the young men and many older ones rushed to the gold mines. Mr. Walter went in 1850. They traveled by land through the Rogue river country, where the treacherous Indian lurked at every turn. Mr. Walter had some thrilling adventures with the Indians. At one time he and a companion rode all one day and night with their guns ready for use. They saw many Indians in ambush watching them and their only theory concerning the failure of the red men to attack was the belief that there was a large party coming behind the two lone riders. The two young men lived in the open and their amusements were hunting bears, panthers and Indians. They mined on the American river, having fair luck, and afterwards remaining in California for a year returned to Oregon.

In 1856 William Walter married Miss Charity A. Marsh, a student in the Forest Grove Academy. She was a native of Michigan and crossed the plains in 1852. Following their marriage they removed to Douglas county, Oregon, where they remained a few years, and in March, 1860, arrived in Walla Walla county, Washington. After reaching Walla Walla county Mr. Walter engaged in cattle growing, in which he prospered. By 1861 he had a fine herd and was for those times a wealthy man, but an unusually severe winter came on, causing most of his herd to die. Broken in resources and in spirit, he gathered the remainder of his herd, numbering about thirty head of cattle and these he sold. He then bought a pack train of his own and became one of the earliest packers in this region and developed a business of extensive proportions in that connection. He hauled supplies to nearly all the mines in the surrounding states. Many strenuous and trying experiences came to him, for robbers were numerous and these road agents were always alert for the returning pack train to haul in the returns of the pack sales through their robbery, attaining their end, if necessary, by murder. Mr. Walter was a man of fine physique and great strength and his physical prowess often served to protect him. While the husband and father was away on his pack train trips, which often lasted for six or more months, the pioneer mother, left alone with her small children, with many hostile Indians about, had to bear heavy burdens in order to care for and protect the interests of her frontier home.

Four of their children are still living on or near the old homestead on the Touchet. The eldest, Mrs. O. M. Fine, was born in Douglas county, Oregon, July 12, 1857. Mrs. Kate W. Pettijohn was born in Douglas county, Oregon, December 18, 1858. Mrs. Fanny Dunlap was born in Walla Walla county, October 31, 1866, and John Doddridge Walter is also a native of Walla Walla county, born December 8, 1869.

W. W. Walter and his family were among the earliest settlers in the valley. At that time Walla Walla was but a little garrison town and the many flourishing towns of the present were unknown. On the Touchet, near a big spring, Mr. Walter built his first cabin of logs with a thatched roof covered with dirt. The earth served for a floor. They were very comfortable during the summer but when the fall rains set in there was trouble, for the roof would leak for several days after all was fair outside. Moreover, the snakes deemed the roof no bad place for a home and one morning while the family were enjoying their breakfast one of the reptiles caused a commotion, especially among the feminine portion of the family, by wriggling through the roof and dropping on the table. This necessitated a new roof and a trip to the Blue mountains for shakes. An Indian trail ran in front of the cabin door and on Sunday droves of Indians would pass by on their way to the home of Rev. H. H. Spalding, a half mile below, to hear him preach. The settlers also attended the services, for the sermons were spoken in English, an interpreter repeating them to the Indians. The singing of these Indians, led by Mrs. Spalding and her daughter, Amelia, will ever be a sweet memory, for their voices were soft and low. Visiting in those days meant more than a ceremonious call. A carriage was unknown in these parts and people usually traveled on horseback, even children learning to manage a horse at a very early age. People came from afar to visit and stayed for days and surprise parties and dances were frequent occurrences. In 1862, the neighborhood having become quite thickly settled, the number of children of school age demanded a school, so several of the leading citizens called a meeting to devise ways and means. They had no organized district and no public money. They went into the woods, cut cottonwood logs, drew them to a designated place and erected a schoolhouse in the dooryard of Mr. Walter. The roof was of shakes made in the Blue mountains and hauled down. The heating plant was a huge fireplace in the east end of the building, built of sod and the chimney was of sticks and mud. A log was cut out in the north wall and a row of eight by ten inch window panes fitted in and this furnished the only light except the open door. The seats were of puncheon. A subscription was taken up to pay the teacher, who was a Virginian with a very pronounced southern accent. The old elementary spelling book was the principal textbook. There are still many persons living who received their first lessons in this little log schoolhouse. Later a district was organized and a schoolhouse built a mile or so up the valley near the center of the neighborhood. The Walter family experienced the usual incidents and hardships of pioneer life. The nearest physician was at the garrison of Fort Walla Walla and a rider was sent there for aid on more than one occasion, yet altogether those were happy days. The whole wide country lay before them and everyone for miles around was friend and neighbor. Where today are seen immense wheat fields in those days there were seas of waving bunch grass. The hills were dotted with sleek cattle and horses and the ever present cayuse, or Indian pony. In those days cattle was king and times were good, although opportunities for an education were limited. Only public schools were available and very few studies were taught. The daughters in the Walter household had two winters in the Waitsburg public schools, which ended their attempt to acquire an education, although later they studied at home, especially history, rhetoric and the languages, although they had no teacher to assist them.

In 1861 the Civil war broke out. Washington's citizens had come from every state in the Union and their opinions were accordingly diversified. The patriotic contingent decided that they should have a flag, so the material was purchased and a sewing bee was held at the home of S. H. Erwin, where they made a flag, every stitch by hand. The thirty-four stars were whipstitched on the blue field and with patience and perservance the stripes were set together. The old flag is still in existence though largely in tatters today. It has played a prominent part on the Fourth of July celebrations and is a valued pioneer memento. At the second election of President Lincoln the news was brought across the continent by pony express. Some one caught the word at Walla Walla and rode to the Touchet, stopping at each door with a shout and waving of the hat, telling the glad news and then passing on. The neighbors bore the flag to the schoolhouse, hoisted and unfurled it there, took off their hats and saluted with cheers, while the children marched around Old Glory, singing "Rally Round the Flag Boys." While the west was rejoicing over peace having been established once more the direful news was flashed over the country that Lincoln had been assassinated. Again the news was long on the way and again a rider brought in the word from Walla Walla, but there was no shout of joy or waving of flags as on the former occasion. A number of men, however, came to the schoolhouse and raised the old flag until it hung at half mast. The sturdy pioneers stood with bowed heads and solemn countenances, while the children were awed and half afraid, not knowing what it all meant.

Some time in the middle '60s the settlers conceived the idea of celebrating the Fourth of July, so the neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Walter and proceeded to clear out a grove near the Big Spring, where they fitted up seats and a platform. People gathered from all parts of the valley, stage loads coming from Walla Walla, and Judge J. H. Lasater was the speaker of the day with "Uncle Billy" Smith, of Waitsburg, as master of ceremonies, while J. M. Hedrick read the Declaration of Independence and Jonathan Pettijohn and William Smith were also among those who spoke. A public dinner was served, all being invited to take part at one long table, and in the evening a dance was enjoyed by all. To that celebration the families came in wagons and the young people on horseback and they were among the happiest and most care-free people in the world. The people in this country went through the reconstruction period in a different way from the east and lawlessness reigned for a time. The chief offences were murder and horse stealing and as gold was discovered in Idaho and Walla Walla became an outfitting place for miners the town became infested with thieves, gamblers and gunmen. Then the Vigilantes came into existence as a protection to life and property and were very effective in ridding the country of its undesirable element. In the late '60s their work was done and the country took on a normal tone. Business enterprises were started, farms opened up where stock had previously ranged and wheat raising was begun with success. Today wheat is king and, like all of the west, stock raising has become largely a thing of the past in Walla Walla county, as have the cowboy and the Indian.

William Walter never left the home he had made for himself and family. His wife passed away December 23, 1897, and he continued to live on the old place with his youngest daughter until September 23, 1906, when he passed on. He was a man of sterling worth, a steadfast friend, doing his part in all affairs of public interest, was most hospitable in his home and he and his wife took the greatest pleasure in entertaining their friends. Their home was the gathering place for all the young people of the countryside.

While Mr. Walter volunteered to find the murderers of Dr. Whitman, whom he knew personally, he was a friend to the Indians as a whole and had some stanch friends among them, some of whom came to camp by his door until the time of his death. He attended the ceremonies at the erection of the monument to Dr. Whitman and the other martyrs and he was one of the party who buried the remains of Dr. Whitman and his wife. He became a member of the first organization of Pioneers of Walla Walla and was also a member of the Oregon Pioneers' Association. In 1880 the first railroad was built in the Touchet valley and little towns were started, among them Prescott, which became quite a railroad town with roundhouse and machine shops. It was filled with railroad men and cowboys which formed two factions, and as the town boasted three saloons and was wide open, a clash was due to come occasionally. Prescott went through all the phases of a frontier town, with gambling houses, etc., had her quota of murders and robberies until the boom dropped out, when it seemed for a time that the town was doomed to die a natural death. Then a new era came. The place began to revive, a good school was built, churches were established, the surrounding country was planted to wheat to furnish grain for one of the largest mills in the country, responsible men took hold of the business enterprises and today Prescott is one of the most thriving little towns in the county. The children of William Walter, having been reared in this valley, have seen all of the changes wrought in the last half-century. They have seen the wild, unbroken prairies developed to their present high state of cultivation and the eldest daughter, Mrs. Fine, still lives on a part of the old homestead. She is the mother of eight sons and a daughter, all grown to manhood and womanhood and all married and settled in homes of their own, with the exception of one. Mrs. Dunlap, another daughter, lives in the house in which she was born. J. D. Walter, the only son, also occupies a part of the old homestead and is mentioned elsewhere in this work. The other daughter, who in 1890 became the wife of John H. Pettijohn, is living on a homestead which was taken up in 1880 and they occupy an attractive little residence in which they expect to spend their declining years. The Walter family has indeed played an important part in the progress and development of this section of the country from the early days and the name is written high on the roll of honored pioneer settlers.

JOHN D. WALTER.

John D. Walter is a resident farmer of Walla Walla county and a well known representative of one of the honored pioneer families. He was born December 8, 1869, on the farm which he yet owns and cultivates, his parents being W. W. and Charity (Marsh) Walter, who in 1845 first crossed the plains and who are mentioned at length on another page of this work.

Spending his youthful days under the parental roof, John D. Walter became largely familiar with many of the experiences which constituted life for the pioneer. He was educated in the district schools, the first school of the neighborhood being built in his father's dooryard. He early became familiar with the best methods of tilling the soil and caring for the crops and later he engaged in the butchering business in Prescott and also devoted much time to buying and selling stock, being thus occupied for twenty years. On the expiration of that period he sold his business and turned his attention to farming on the old home place. Today he owns five hundred acres of rich and valuable land splendidly adapted to wheat raising and in addition he cultivates another five hundred acre tract which he rents, so that he is most extensively engaged in general farming. His crop is largely wheat and owing to his indefatigable energy and intelligently directed labor his efforts have been crowned with success. He is also engaged in stock raising and keeps on his place high grade cattle, horses and hogs.

In 1898 Mr. Walter was united in marriage to Miss Lula R. McSherry, a daughter of Nelson McSherry, mentioned elsewhere in this work. Mr. and Mrs. Walter have become the parents of four children, Ernestine O., Helen and Leila, twins, and Camille.

Pg 562

The family is now living in the city of Walla Walla at No. 114 Colville street. They attend the Presbyterian church and Mr. Walter belongs to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, to the Elks and Knights of Pythias lodges. In the first named he has filled all of the chairs. His political endorsement is given to the republican party and he keeps well informed on the questions and issues of the day but does not seek nor desire office as a reward for party fealty. His children possess much musical talent, which is being thoroughly trained and cultivated. The family, connected with Walla Walla county since early pioneer times, has always kept pace with the trend of modern day thought and progress. The work begun by the father has been carried forward by the son, whose farm is today an expression of twentieth century methods in agriculture.

A PIONEER SUCCUMBS

Mrs. Fannie Dunlap Dies on the Farm Where She Was Born

Mrs. Fannie Dunlap passed away Christmas night shortly after 10 o'clock at her home about a mile east of this city. Mrs. Dunlap was 55 years of age when she died and had been a sufferer for some time of pernicious anaemia. She was born and reared on the homestead where she died.

Mrs. Dunlap was a daughter of the late W. W. Walter, a pioneer frontiersman of this section who was among the first settlers in the Touchet valley.

Mesides her husband, Robert Dunlap, Mrs. Dunlap is survived by two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Henry Fine and Mrs. J. H. Pettijohn of Prescott and J. D. Walter of Walla Walla.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Federated church, Rev. Dr. Allen of Walla Walla, officiating. Interment was in the McCaw cemetery.—Prescott Spectator.

Some miles westerly of Spalding, on the old Indian trail that Lewis and Clark had followed, Jonathan Pettyjohn erected a cabin that stood alone and stared at by the passing natives. He located it on the north side of the Touchet River, on an elevation in the valley, and he built it of handhewed cottonwood logs cut along the river, chinking them with clay mud to keep out the cold, and roofing the building with handhewed boards. The fireplace, on the north side, was made of creek rocks, and the door, like the Indian tepees, faced east "to greet the rising sun in the morning." As a final touch and a precaution against the attack of Indians or other enemies, in this wild country when the cabin might be used as a fort, he cut port-holes in the logs.

After that year of 1859, change and growth were inevitable. The first pioneers, putting down strong roots, drew others with their hastily scribbled letters to friends and relatives in praise of the abundance of water flowing by, the richness of the soil and the gift of the wild grass on a thousand hills. Besides Jonathan Pettyjohn, who brought to his lonely cabin his wife, Hannah, four small sons and two hundred head of cattle, the list of 1860 settlers on the Touchet contained the names of Robert Strong, Edward McNall, Isaac Levens, Hugh O'Bryant, Mr. Atwood, Samuel H. Erwin and William W. Walter.

Pg 58

Nature, too, produced one of her extreme vagaries of weather that would leave its mark on the country for years to come. The winter of 1861 and '62 was the severest one ever known to Indians or whites on the Pacific Coast. Late in December, winter suddenly dropped a white, blinding curtain over the land. For forty days and nights the snow continued to fall, sometimes in a heavy, blowing blizzard, sometimes lightly, but never stopping until the end of January, and with the temperature ranging from freezing to thirty-two degrees below zero until almost the first of April of the following spring. The deepest snows in the history of Washington Territory, at one time ten feet deep over the entire Walla Walla valley and twice that depth where it had drifted, isolated every settlement from the rest of the world. Cattle starved and froze by the thousands; men were caught in the drifts, trying to make their way out from the mines; death, loss and disaster stalked the storm.

As the snow settled, the freezing weather formed a heavy crust on its surface and the cattle, struggling to paw through to the bunchgrass beneath for food, cut their legs on the broken, icy edges until they left streaks of red blood wherever they went. When the snow became too deep for them to reach the grass at all and they could no longer hold out against starvation and the awful cold, they died where they stood, alone or falling together in frozen masses. Some uncannily remained on their feet after life was gone, their hoofs so solidly frozen to the hard crust that the carcasses did not fall over. Of ten thousand cattle in the valley in the fall, only one thousand remained in May.

Nor were men spared the same fate. Three froze to death on the Tucannon in what became known as Deadman's Gulch. One man died while going from Walla Walla to his farm home a short distance away, and his frozen body was found partially devoured by wolves. Several men were lost in the snow between Lewiston and Walla Walla. Out of nine, traveling from Walla Walla to The Dalles, with the temperature at forty-five below zero, only two survived to reach the place, and one of those with his feet so badly frozen they required amputation.

With their means of subsistence swept away, the men could see only one path left open to them. Like the increasing number of others in similar circumstances, they set out to make a living by packing supplies into the Idaho and Montana mines from the river boat landing at Wallula on the Columbia. William Walter traded his remaining cattle for a string of forty mules which he loaded with bacon, flour and whiskey, the miner staples, and made the trip to the mines six or more months out of the year, until he had earned enough to resume the cattle business.

Pg 63

And of Charity Walter it noted:

...the pioneer mother, left alone with her small children, with many hostile Indians about, had to bear heavy burdens in order to care for and protect the interests of her frontier home.

To brighten this lonely existence, Charity secured two delicate and fragrant climbing roses, brought from Walla Walla by William on one of his trips, and planted them about her cabin. Somehow she found time to help hand-stitch the stars and stripes on a great ten-foot flag, designed by her husband and first unfurled on the Fourth of July in 1862, in a burst of community patriotism.

Nature, too, produced one of her extreme vagaries of weather that would leave its mark on the country for years to come. The winter of 1861 and '62 was the severest one ever known to Indians or whites on the Pacific Coast. Late in December, winter suddenly dropped a white, blinding curtain over the land. For forty days and nights the snow continued to fall, sometimes in a heavy, blowing blizzard, sometimes lightly, but never stopping until the end of January, and with the temperature ranging from freezing to thirty-two degrees below zero until almost the first of April of the following spring. The deepest snows in the history of Washington Territory, at one time ten feet deep over the entire Walla Walla valley and twice that depth where it had drifted, isolated every settlement from the rest of the world. Cattle starved and froze by the thousands; men were caught in the drifts, trying to make their way out from the mines; death, loss and disaster stalked the storm.

As the snow settled, the freezing weather formed a heavy crust on its surface and the cattle, struggling to paw through to the bunchgrass beneath for food, cut their legs on the broken, icy edges until they left streaks of red blood wherever they went. When the snow became too deep for them to reach the grass at all and they could no longer hold out against starvation and the awful cold, they died where they stood, alone or falling together in frozen masses. Some uncannily remained on their feet after life was gone, their hoofs so solidly frozen to the hard crust that the carcasses did not fall over. Of ten thousand cattle in the valley in the fall, only one thousand remained in May.

Nor were men spared the same fate. Three froze to death on the Tucannon in what became known as Deadman's Gulch. One man died while going from Walla Walla to his farm home a short distance away, and his frozen body was found partially devoured by wolves. Several men were lost in the snow between Lewiston and Walla Walla. Out of nine, traveling from Walla Walla to The Dalles, with the temperature at forty-five below zero, only two survived to reach the place, and one of those with his feet so badly frozen they required amputation.

With their means of subsistence swept away, the men could see only one path left open to them. Like the increasing number of others in similar circumstances, they set out to make a living by packing supplies into the Idaho and Montana mines from the river boat landing at Wallula on the Columbia. William Walter traded his remaining cattle for a string of forty mules which he loaded with bacon, flour and whiskey, the miner staples, and made the trip to the mines six or more months out of the year, until he had earned enough to resume the cattle business.

Pg 63

And of Charity Walter it noted:

...the pioneer mother, left alone with her small children, with many hostile Indians about, had to bear heavy burdens in order to care for and protect the interests of her frontier home.

To brighten this lonely existence, Charity secured two delicate and fragrant climbing roses, brought from Walla Walla by William on one of his trips, and planted them about her cabin. Somehow she found time to help hand-stitch the stars and stripes on a great ten-foot flag, designed by her husband and first unfurled on the Fourth of July in 1862, in a burst of community patriotism.

Early Pioneer Is Laid at Rest Here

William Walter Ward, Pioneer of West, Dies at Mikkalo, Oregon.

The funeral of William Walter Ward, for 12 years a Dayton postmaster, and a pioneer of the community, was held from the Congregational church Monday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. W. C. Gilmore, of the congregational church, assisted by Rev. Gordon Luke, Episcopal rector. Mr. Ward died suddenly New Year's day at Mikkalo, Oregon, where he was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Newell Reed. There was a large attendance of old time friends at the services.

Led Adventurous Life

In his early days Mr. Ward led a colorful and adventurous life in the west and mid west, and came to Dayton in the eighties where he started a store.

William W. Ward was born in Vincennes, Indiana, July 16, 1861. After the Civil war, the family moved to Veray, Indiana. His mother died when he was 15 years old, and he and another adventurous youth ran away to the then far west to seek their fortunes. He freighted in and out of Leadville, Colorado; set out the first trees in Pueblo, when the town was being platted; and staked out the town-site of Durango, Colorado. After three years' wanderings he received his first mail from home—a great pile of letters, asking him to come home and offering him a long coveted Kentucky saddler. The already homesick boy took his savings in gold dust, traded his town-site for the only thing offered, a Colts revolver, and went home. He went back to school and read law in his father's office two years, but decided he did not want to become a lawyer.

Became Jeweler

He went then to Rising Sun, Indiana, a nearby Ohio river town, and became apprenticed to a jeweler. Here he met Fleta Hainer, to whom he was married September 25, 1883. To this union ten children were born, two of whom died in infancy, the first living at the present in the west. Mrs. Ward passed away March 25, 1923.

From Rising Sun, the family moved to Eaton Ohio, where Mr. Ward opened a jewelry store and lived for three years. Following an attack of typhoid fever he was sent west for his health by his physician. He came to Wallula and walked to Dayton and helped carry two children who had been on the train and were not able to walk the long journey.

After looking Dayton over and making friends with Jo Day, Chester Miller, C. J. Broughton, Sid Frary and others, he decided to locate here, opening a store where the P. P. & L. Co. offices are now located. Later he was appointed Dayton postmaster, serving in this capacity for 12 years.

He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Clyde Weatherford and Mrs. Lonnie Hatfield, of Dayton, Mrs. Hickman, Portland, Mrs. Newell Reed, Mikkalo, and Mrs. R. S. Duncan, Seattle; and three sons, Edwin and Walter of Montana and Russel, of Portland.

28 Mar 1923

Mrs. W. W. Ward.

Mrs. W. W. Ward died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clyde Weatherford, of this city, Sunday morning between six and seven, after several years of invalidism. Her funeral was held from the Hubbard & Rogg chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. W. C. Gilmore of the Congregational church in charge.

Fleta Hainer was born in Memphis, Tennessee, December 25, 1861, and moved with her parents when still a child to Rising Sun, Indiana, where she was married in 1882 to W. W. Ward of Eaton, Ohio. Six years later Mr. Ward came to Dayton and before he was joined by Mrs. Ward and their daughter, Fleta, he received the news of the death of their older child, a boy of three years. Mrs. Ward lived a most unselfish life, and although her own family was large and her duties many, she made room in her home for the motherless children of a dead sister, and for many years was a mother to them. She was kindly disposed towards everyone and is gratefully remembered by many young people for whom she has shown rare sympathy and interest. Mrs. Ward was a member of the Episcopal church, of the Pythian Sisters and of the Women of Woodcraft.

Besides her husband, W. W. Ward, Mrs. Ward is survived by five daughters and three sons who are: Mrs. Clyde Weatherford, Dayton; Mrs. Anson Hickman, Portland; Mrs. Ray Duncan, Seattle; Mrs. Newell Reed, Clem, Ore.; Miss Katharyn Ward, Dayton; Walter Ward, Lonesome, Montana; Russell Ward, Seattle, and Edwin Ward, Dayton. A little daughter, Emily, just older than Katharyn, died when but a baby.

Lowery Family Awakened Just Before Roof Collapses, Wednesday Morning.

Members of the James Lowery family, whose home on Front St. was destroyed by an early morning fire yesterday, were probably saved from death by the driver of the city sprinkling truck, who noticed the flames shooting from the roof as he set out on his early morning duties at about three o'clock.

Mrs. Lowery was not at home that night having stayed with her mother, Mrs. Charlie Thompson, and the daughters of the family were sleeping in rooms on the first floor of the house. When the warning came, the roof of the dwelling was just ready to cave in, and the family escaped with almost none of their personal possessions or household goods.

The house was for many years the home of W. W. Ward, but had recently been a property of the Helen E. Van Patten estate. It was one of the oldest houses in the city, and it is thought the fire originated from defective wiring, which in all probability had not lately been inspected. An insurance policy of $1,000 covered the losses on the house.

Death From Natural Causes Is Verdict of Coroner's Jury

Composing the jury were Bert Dingle, C. J. Broughton, Maurice Roe, C. L. Hechtner, Dewey Whipple and Glenn Jackson. Those testifying at the inquest besides Sumner, the doctors, sheriff, and Dorr and Nilsson, were J. K. Storie, Bert Patrick, and Mrs. Jerry Pounds.

None of those present at the inquest knew of any relative of the deceased.

Henry Ward, 84, died from natural causes according to the verdict of the coroner's jury which rendered its decision just before noon Thursday, and Earl Grooms, who was taken into custody on suspicion in connection with the death, was released.

The body of Mr. Ward was found on the floor of his cabin, back of the J. K. Storie residence, about 4 Wednesday afternoon, by a neighbor, Samson Sumner. Sumner called in passing mail carriers Clark Dorr and Albert Nilsson, and Ward's physician, Dr. Wesley V. Frick. Dr. Frick after hearing Sumner's story of finding the body, and other circumstances called Coroner Owen L. Knowlton, and County Physician Dr. W. W. Day was called.

Evidence, as given by Sumner before the coroner's jury, caused the notifying of the sheriff and later apprehension of Earl Groom.

According to evidence given the jury Thursday morning, by Sumner, Groom was visiting Ward and was under the influence of liquor; summer was invited into the cabin for a drink, and after visiting a while went on about his chores. When he returned half an hour later it was to find Ward lying dead on the floor, and Groom gone.

The deceased had a bruise on his head, according to the evidence of the doctors, but not such a one as would be made by a blow, more as though his head had been "skuffed." Much attention was given at the inquest to blood the deceased had on the back of his hand. But nothing developed from this.

Both doctors agreed at the inquest that the deceased was in delicate health and under those circumstances no suspicion would attach his passing. He had but recently been dismissed from the hospital where for a time his life hung in the balance. But the evidence of Sumner, as given Dr. Frick seemed to call for investigation.

According to Sheriff Warwick's testimony, Groom remembered little about his visit with Ward, just after he was picked up by Deputy Sheriff Bauman. In the questioning by the sheriff and Prosecutor Knowlton, Groom was the first to mention the death of Ward.

The coroner's jury went into closed session with the evidence about 11 o'clock, and before long called in Groom for questioning.

Evidently they agreed with the doctors who had expressed the opinion that on the evidence they would conclude the old gentleman had died of natural causes—that there was no external evidence about the person of the deceased indicating he had met with foul play.

MRS. WARD, PIONEER
ANSWERS LAST CALL

Came to This County to Reside From Indiana in Year 1888

Mrs. W. W. Ward, pioneer resident of this city, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clyde Weatherford of this city, Sunday morning about seven o'clock after several years of invalidism. Funeral services over the remains were conducted from the Hubbard-Rogg chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. W. C. Gilmore officiating.

The deceased was born in Memphis, Tennessee, on December 25, 1861, and moved with her parents when still a child to Rising Sun, Indiana, where the family resided for a number of years. In 1882 she was united in marriage to W. W. Ward, of Eaton, Ohio, and to this union nine children were born of which eight are still living.

Mr. Ward came to this county to reside in the year 1888 and Mrs. Ward joined him shortly after, and they have made this their home since that time.

to Veray, Indiana. His mother died when he was 15 years old, and he and another adventurous youth ran away to the then far west to seek their fortunes. He freighted in and out of Leadville, Colorado; set out the first trees in Pueblo, when the town was being platted; and staked out the town-site of Durango, Colorado. After three years' wanderings he received his first mail from home—a great pile of letters, asking him to come home and offering him a long coveted Kentucky saddler. The already homesick boy took his savings in gold dust, traded his town-site for the only thing offered, a Colts revolver, and went home. He went back to school and read law in his father's office two years, but decided he did not want to become a lawyer.

Became Jeweler

He went then to Rising Sun, Indiana, a nearby Ohio river town, and became apprenticed to a jeweler. Here he met Fleta Hainer, to whom he was married September 25, 1883. To this union ten children were born, two of whom died in infancy, the rest living at the present in the west. Mrs. Ward passed away March 25, 1923.

From Rising Sun, the family moved to Eaton Ohio, where Mr. Ward opened a jewelry store and lived for three years. Following an attack of typhoid fever he was sent west for his health by his physician. He came to Wallula and walked to Dayton and helped carry two children who had been on the train and were not able to walk the long journey.

After looking Dayton over and making friends with Jo Day, Chester Miller, C. J. Broughton, Sid Frary and others, he decided to locate here, opening a store where the P. P. & L. Co. offices are now located. Later he was appointed Dayton postmaster, serving in this capacity for 12 years.

He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Clyde Weatherford and Mrs. Lonnie Hatfield, of Dayton, Mrs. Hickman, Portland, Mrs. Newell Reed, Mikkalo, and Mrs. R. S. Duncan, Seattle; and three sons, Edwin and Walter of Montana and Russel, of Portland.

Mrs. Ward was a member of the Episcopal church, Pythian Sisters and of the Women of Woodcraft.

Besides her husband, W. W. Ward, Mrs. Ward is survived by five daughters and three sons who are: Mrs. Clyde Weatherford, Dayton; Mrs. Anson Hickman, Portland; Mrs. Ray Duncan, Seattle; Mrs. Newell Reed, Clem, Oregon; Miss Kathryn Ward, Dayton; Walter Ward, Lonesome, Montana; Russell Ward, Seattle, and Edwin Ward, Dayton.

Mrs. W. W. Ward.

Mrs. W. W. Ward died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clyde Weatherford, of this city, Sunday morning between six and seven, after several years of invalidism. Her funeral was held from the Hubbard & Rogg chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. W. C. Gilmore of the Congregational church in charge.

Fleta Hainer was born in Memphis, Tennessee, December 25, 1861, and moved with her parents when still a child to Rising Sun, Indiana, where she was married in 1882 to W. W. Ward of Eaton, Ohio. Six years later Mr. Ward came to Dayton and before he was joined by Mrs. Ward and their daughter, Fleta, he received the news of the death of their older child, a boy of three years. Mrs. Ward lived a most unselfish life, and although her own family was large and her duties many, she made room in her home for the motherless children of a dead sister, and for many years was a mother to them. She was kindly disposed towards everyone and is gratefully remembered by many young people for whom she has shown rare sympathy and interest. Mrs. Ward was a member of the Episcopal church, of the Pythian Sisters and of the Women of Woodcraft.

Besides her husband, W. W. Ward, Mrs. Ward is survived by five daughters and three sons who are: Mrs. Clyde Weatherford, Dayton; Mrs. Anson Hickman, Portland; Mrs. Ray Duncan, Seattle; Mrs. Newell Reed, Clem, Ore.; Miss Kathryn Ward, Dayton; Walter Ward, Lonesome, Montana; Russell Ward, Seattle, and Edwin Ward, Dayton. A little daughter, Emily, just older than Kathryn, died when but a baby.
